Berlin Gunplay Raises Tension In Divided City

Red Policeman Fires At West Berlin Officer

BERLIN (AP) — The second gunplay incident in 24 hours raised tension to a new and dangerous pitch along Berlin's concrete and barbed wire wall Thursday night.

The latest shooting occurred when a Communist policeman fired one aimed shot at a West Berlin officer who demanded that the Communists "stop that nonsense" of throwing rocks at a West Berlin crowd. No one was hit.

But hostile West and East Berlin police forces facing each other across the 25-mile wall were nervous and itchy fingered.

Crowds Herded Away

West Berlin officials feared new incidents might lead quickly to serious trouble and attempted to herd jeering and rock-throwing demonstrators and sightseers to side streets.

The Vopos, East German peoples' police, appeared to be furious that one of their men was shot and wounded by West Berlin police Wednesday night.

Fresh bouquets of flowers marked the spot where an East Berliner, Bernd Luenser, 22, fell to his death when trying to escape over rooftops to the West. His attempt to escape led to the first shooting fray between the two police forces since the Communists began building their wall seven weeks ago.

The houses on Bernauerstrasse are in East Berlin, but the sidewalk is in West Berlin.

"Unprecedented Provocation"

ADN, the East German official news agency, claimed Luenser was a "criminal." It said the East German Interior Ministry protested to West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt and the French sector commandant, Gen. Jean Lacomme, against the "unprecedented provocation" of the shooting at police in East German territory.

News of the incident drew large angry crowds to Bernauerstrasse Thursday.

A West Berlin police officer went up to the wall and told the Communists to "stop that nonsense."

The Communist reaction was to aim several weapons at him.

One Vopo said, "Take your head away" and fired one aimed shot, West Berlin police said. West Berlin police did not answer the shot.

JFK, Gromyko Hold Crucial Talks Today

Officials Confident Berlin Shots Won't Affect Conference

WASHINGTON (AP) — The echo of the gunfight between East and West Berlin police reverberated in Washington Thursday on the eve of the conference between President Kennedy and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

Washington officials, making last-minute preparations for the White House talks, were seriously concerned over the shots exchanged Wednesday and Thursday on the border of East and West Berlin.

But the feeling was that while the shooting inevitably heightened tension there was no sign indicating "trigger happiness on a higher level," as one official put it.

The statement urged the Soviet Union to prevent such incidents which it said "seriously jeopardize peace and public order in Berlin."

The department made it clear the United States is convinced the West Berlin police defended themselves against Communist East German provocation. Officials who have first-hand knowledge of events in Berlin said the West Berlin police have shown admirable restraint during the weeks since Aug. 13 when the Communists began to wall off their sector of the city.

Officials are confident the incident will not influence the Kennedy-Gromyko conference. There are far greater issues at stake, these officials said, and Gromyko's attitude during his earlier talks with Secretary of State Dean Rusk in New York indicated he is fully aware of that.

Kennedy expects his guest at 5 p.m. No preparations have been made for a separate Rusk-Gromyko meeting.

Nevertheless, officials stress, this depends entirely on Gromyko. The State Department is ready for a separate conference between the two policy chiefs, should Gromyko wish one.

Doctors Say Malignancy Is Incurable

Veteran Speaker Of House Not Told Nature Of Illness

DALLAS, Tex., (AP) — Sam Rayburn, veteran speaker of the House of Representatives and "Mr. Democrat" to millions of Americans, is suffering from cancer, Baylor Hospital officials revealed Thursday.

An aide of the 79-year-old Texas congressman said the cancer is incurable.

"It may be just a matter of a few days," the aide said when asked how much time. Doctors later said, "This thing could last for several weeks."

Surgery will not be resorted to "because there is nothing they can do. It is all over him," the aide said.

The official bulletin issued by the hospital after doctors had made tests for the past several days said, "A biopsy of the lymph gland in the right groin has just been completed. The biopsy revealed a metastatic malignancy.

"This indicates that the most likely primary site of the malignancy is the pancreas. No further surgery is anticipated."

Kennedy Voices Sorrow

A metastatic malignancy is one that has spread from its point of origin into other parts of the body.

A late hospital bulletin said Rayburn withstood the test very well and added, "He is resting comfortably with the aid of sedatives. His general condition is unchanged."

He has not been told of the nature of his illness.

In Washington, President Kennedy voiced deep sorrow over the medical verdict and urged the nation "to join with me and Mrs. Kennedy in prayer for Speaker Rayburn, who has served his nation so well and so faithfully for so many years."

The speaker left Washington late in August before Congress adjourned. He complained of a backache and said it was due to lumbago.

For a month, Rayburn rested at his home at Bonham in northern Texas, receiving friends and taking occasional automobile rides. He reassured those about him that he would regain his strength and would be back in Washington before Congress reconvenes Jan. 10.

Entered Hospital Monday

But he continued to lose weight and his physician, not satisfied with his progress, sent him to the Dallas hospital Monday for exhaustive tests.

He was placed under heavy sedation after entering the hospital and his condition was listed as serious.

Late Wednesday, his spirits seemed to have improved and he joked with a visitor, griping about the "poking and prodding" tests to which he had been subjected.

Rayburn has served in the House more than 48 consecutive years and has been its speaker more than twice as long as the previous record - holder, Henry Clay. He was elected speaker in September 1940.

Burma Delegate Gains Support For U.N. Post

UNITED NATIONS (UPI) — The bandwagon appeared to be rolling Thursday night for U Thant of Burma to become acting secretary general of the United Nations even though the United States withheld approval of a complicated small-power plan to fill the post.

General Assembly President Mongi Slim of Tunisia and past president Frederick H. Boland of Ireland were still much in the running but delegates from all areas talked mainly of reported Russian support for the mild-mannered Burmese ambassador.

Russia told Thant two weeks ago that the Soviet Union found him personally acceptable.

U. S. sources authoritatively denied agreement on the plan or a candidate.

"The United States and the Soviet Union have not reached agreement on any facet of this problem," a delegation spokesman said. "The situation is fluid. No agreement has been reached at all."

Individual members of an eight-power group of uncommitted countries talked with Russian diplomats Thursday on the plan they all but completed Wednesday. Hope was expressed for Russian agreement on the proposal next week.

Another boost for Thant came from Arab leaders who said they would not oppose him for the interim post even though they disapproved of Burma's policy on Israel.

Nasser Won't Oppose Seating Syria In U.N.

CAIRO (UPI) — President Gamal Abdel Nasser said Thursday the United Arab Republic will not oppose Syria's admission to the United Nations or the Arab League as an independent country.

His statement was a final admission of the end of the 3½-year-old union of Syria and Egypt in the U.A.R. in a revolt that began a week ago Thursday. But Nasser said he would not recognize any Syrian government until it has popular support.

"I feel at this moment it is not imperative that Syria should remain part of the United Arab Republic," Nasser said. "But it is imperative that Syria should live and continue as part of the greater Arab homeland."

He said he decided to let Syria take an independent course to save it from civil war.

Top Educators Taken To Task By HEW Chief

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of Welfare Abraham A. Ribicoff startled 1,000 college presidents and deans Thursday by telling them: "I don't think you really care about education, or are going to do anything about it."

And, he told the annual meeting of the American Council on Education, "There are very, very few newspapers across the country which have a deep interest in education, and support it."

Ribicoff discarded most of a prepared text and launched into a blistering attack on those who, he said, profess an interest in education but do not accept their share of the burdens.

He described the administration's unsuccessful fight to get a program of general federal aid to education through Congress last summer, and asked: "Where were you educators? Each of you were looking for your own particular part, and were not interested in doing something for education as a whole. And education was done in."

Ribicoff was roundly applauded at the end of his talk even though he questioned the value of the very meeting he was addressing.

"You aren't going to solve the problems of education by meeting in conferences like this," he said.

"If you believe education is important, the best thing you can do is to make your speeches back in your own home town."

At another point Ribicoff asked: "How many of you have sat down with your congressmen to explain the importance of education? I won't embarrass you by asking for a show of hands. But I would wager it is less than five per cent."

The Cabinet member also suggested that college officials should do missionary work with the newspapers in their home towns.

McCormack Likely Rayburn Successor

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. John W. McCormack of Massachusetts appeared Thursday to be far ahead of all other possible successors to the gravely ill speaker of the House, Sam Rayburn of Texas.

In the first shock of the news that Rayburn's days may be sharply limited, no informed congressional source who could be reached suggested that anyone has more than an outside chance to displace McCormack.

McCormack, 69-year-old Democratic veteran of the political wars, is already speaker protem by formal vote of the House, taken when Rayburn yielded to his illness and went home to Bonham, Tex., in late August. He has been party leader in the House for most of the last 21 years.

The dominant party — now the Democrats—chooses the speaker in its own caucus, which may be divided, and then elects him in a straight party line vote in the House.

One possibility adverse to McCormack was mentioned, but only as a long-shot: that President Kennedy might intervene, encouraging younger Democratic liberals to try to win the leadership for someone closely inclined to their own views, if not for one actually of their own number.

The President and House leader have been at political odds in the past in their home city of Boston and some highly placed Kennedy lieutenants in the House were more or less openly dissatisfied with McCormack's handling of such issues as the ill-fated administration aid to education bill.

There was speculation that, if the liberals should decide to contest McCormack's election, they might ask Rep. Richard Bolling of Missouri to be their standard bearer. Bolling has often voted with the liberals, but has not identified himself with the loose organization they set up in recent years. He has the advantage of coming from a border state and he has been closely associated with Rayburn.

Others who have been mentioned as possible contenders if a wide-open race should develop include Carl Albert of Oklahoma, Hale Boggs of Louisiana, Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas, Albert Rains of Alabama and Francis E. Walter of Pennsylvania.

Little Headway Made Toward Ford Settlement

DETROIT (AP) — The nation's first full-scale auto strike in a decade moved through its third day at Ford Motor Co. Thursday with no signs of immediate progress toward settlement.

Since 10 a.m. Tuesday 120,000 production workers who belong to the United Auto Workers Union have been idle. Ford says their wages, when working, run $2.6 million daily.

Negotiators were attempting to iron out differences at 47 local bargaining units, 17 of them at the huge Rouge complex in suburban Dearborn.

For the first time federal mediators appeared at the downtown hotel where negotiations have been going on and talked with both sides. There was no indication of federal intervention.

Agreements were reached with 26 locals prior to the strike and 12 other locals had no demands. The 85 union locals cover 88 plants and parts warehouses in 26 states.

Talks on the noneconomic phase of the national contract were in recess. They were adjourned after two 30-minute sessions Wednesday until 2 p.m. Friday to allow the bargaining teams to concentrate on the individual locals.

A union spokesman described progress reports from the locals as encouraging.

Economic matters—wages and fringe benefits—were settled prior to the walkout.

Both sides talk hopefully of an early settlement but neither has been willing to indicate a target. Malcolm L. Denise, the Ford vice president for labor negotiations, and UAW President Walter P. Reuther have told reporters they would like to agree by the weekend. However, neither has said this will happen.

Rights Agency Urges Housing Loan Equality

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Civil Rights Commission urged Thursday that the government require practices barring racial discrimination in all home mortgage lending institutions supervised by a federal agency.

The commission split 4 to 2 on this recommendation. One dissenter, Vice Chairman Robert G. Storey, declared he was "very much opposed to further intervention by the federal government into the affairs and policies of private financial institutions."

But the six-member group was unanimous on two others:

1. That the President issue an executive order designed to insure all Americans equal access to the benefits of federal housing programs.

2. That the President direct the Federal Housing Administration, Veterans Administration and Federal National Mortgage Association to take steps to assure nondiscrimination by builders, banks and brokers who participate in government programs.

The commission said little progress has been made since 1959 in solving housing problems of Negroes and other minorities.

Its announcement termed the recommendations "a sweeping proposal to halt discrimination in most 'conventionally financed' housing, public housing, urban renewal, housing for the elderly and homes built with the aid of FHA mortgage insurance, VA loan guarantees, and FNMA secondary market purchases and sales."

25 Killed In Crash Of German Trains

HAMBURG, Germany (AP) — About 25 persons were killed and at least 100 injured in a crash Thursday night of a fully loaded suburban passenger train and a halted repair train carrying iron bridge building material, police reported.

Rescue crews said they feared the number of known dead and injured would increase as they progressed in clearing away the wreckage early Friday.

Strandees Flying Home From London

LONDON (UPI) —A party of 84 Californians — the second group of Americans to be stranded in Britain and Ireland in a week—left Thursday by chartered plane for Los Angeles after a delay of 51 hours.

The 84 were members of the British - American Club of California and have been on a month-long vacation visiting relatives in Britain. One couple left earlier by regularly scheduled airlines and a second remained behind because of illness.

The Californians had been scheduled to leave Tuesday morning but their plane, a DC7C of President Airlines, was delayed by mechanical difficulties. It arrived Thursday from New York and the passengers took off shortly afterward for their 22-hour flight home.

Soviet Union Abolishes Taxes On Low Incomes

MOSCOW (AP)—The Soviet Union has announced the second stage of its five-year plan to abolish income taxes.

The news agency Tass said Thursday that starting Oct. 1 the Ministry of Finance abolished taxes on workers earning up to 60 rubles a month. Taxes on incomes of 61 to 70 rubles were cut 40 per cent.

Irish Premier Faces Setback In Elections

DUBLIN (UPI)—Premier Sean Lemass apparently failed Thursday in his bid for control of the new parliament when his Fianna Fail party suffered a sharp setback in Wednesday's elections.

With more than 100 seats of the 144-member parliament decided, Lemass' party trailed the combined opposition by 11 seats.

Political experts said Lemass could only hope for a maximum of 69 seats, four less than a majority. In the last parliament his party held 78 seats, compared with 40 for the Fine Gael party and 12 for the Labor party.

Atlas Flashes 9,000 Miles In Low-Level Test

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Flying a low-angle simulated attack course, an Atlas missile registered the fourth longest surface-to-surface missile flight on record Thursday in a near 9,000-mile sweep from Cape Canaveral to the Indian Ocean.

The flight was further proof of the Atlas' long-range strike capability and provided vital information on how the nose cone withstands the severe heat and buffeting of re-entry into the earth's atmosphere.

The distance covered was slightly less than 9,000 miles. Only three other missiles, all Atlases, have flown farther in military test flights. The record is 9,054 miles. The longest known Soviet test rockets covered about 8,000 miles.

As the nose cone dived on the target area about 700 miles southeast of Capetown, South Africa, Thursday, it ejected a data capsule which parachuted into the water. It was sighted almost immediately by Air Force search planes and was picked up two hours later by the ocean range vessel Coastal Sentry.

One Thing Wrong With 102-Year-Old's Wedding—He's 79 And Sorry For Hoax

LONDON (AP)—There was only one thing wrong with 102-year-old Sidney Thain's wedding—he was not 102.

"I'm sorry I hoaxed the nation," he said Thursday. "There has been a mistake."

He was right about that.

Advertised on television as the wedding of the oldest bridegroom in Britain, the ceremony was attended by 5,000 persons. TV cameras recorded the arrival of the bridegroom and widow Maud Franklin, aged 73.

Sidney turned up in a chauffeur-driven limousine, the bride in a carriage drawn by two gray horses, all paid for by well-wishers.

Touched and tickled, the British public heaped presents on the man they thought was starting a new life at the age of 102. Checks, furniture, carpets, a TV set and clothes.

Hughie Green, the man who puts on the TV show "Double Your Money," served as best man. Champagne—paid for by other well-wishers—flowed at the wedding reception.

Then a doubting newspaper reporter handed him a reproduction of his birth certificate. After an embarrassing pause, Sidney said, "I seem to have made a slight mistake. I'm not 102. I'm just 79."

Never at a loss for words, he added, "You see, a bomb blew up my house during the war. I lost my memory. When I regained it at the hospital they told me I was 82. I couldn't contradict them. Why should I? I felt 82."

For the moment the bride looked stunned. But, breaking into a wide smile, she announced to the numerous guests who packed a pub for free champagne: "Never mind. It's the best wedding present I could have."

"Why, he's only a boy," she said, leaned over and bussed him.

TV man Green grinned and announced, "If anybody who sent presents in the belief this man was really 102 wants them back. I'll send them a check for the cost of the present. I can't say fairer than that."

Knight Delegation Offer Made Nixon, Aide Claims

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ex-Gov. Goodwin J. Knight, who had charged that a Richard M. Nixon spokesman tried to lure him out of the California governor race, Thursday was the target of a similar charge.

A Nixon aide claimed Knight once offered, if elected governor, to have the 1964 California Republican delegation support Nixon in a bid for the presidential nomination—provided Nixon did not run for governor.

Knight, at a press conference Wednesday, identified Los Angeles financier J. Howard Edgerton as the Nixon backer who, Knight has charged repeatedly, offered him any state job if he would step aside for Nixon. Knight said Edgerton clearly was speaking for Nixon.

The state's two top Republicans have been exchanging charges and countercharges since the former vice president announced last week he would seek the GOP gubernatorial nomination in 1962, and not try for the presidency in 1964. Knight's hat already was in the ring, and he obviously was stung to see Nixon's come sailing in, too.

Edgerton and Nixon both denied Knight's charge. Edgerton said he gave Knight advice, and told him he was qualified for any state post, but that he, Edgerton, was not representing Nixon.

Wednesday night Nixon's close adviser, Atty Robert Finch, came forth with the story of the Knight delegation offer. He said Knight made it last August, and Nixon told Knight at that time that it was too early to talk about 1964. Knight denied the Finch story.

One possibility adverse to McCormack was mentioned, but only as a long-shot: that President Kennedy might intervene, encouraging younger Democratic liberals to try to win the leadership for someone closely inclined to their own views, if not for one actually of their own number.

The President and House leader have been at political odds in the past in their home city of Boston and some highly placed Kennedy lieutenants in the House were more or less openly dissatisfied with McCormack's handling of such issues as the ill-fated administration aid to education bill.

There was speculation that, if the liberals should decide to contest McCormack's election, they might ask Rep. Richard Bolling of Missouri to be their standard bearer. Bolling has often voted with the liberals, but has not identified himself with the loose organization they set up in recent years. He has the advantage of coming from a border state and he has been closely associated with Rayburn.

Others who have been mentioned as possible contenders if a wide-open race should develop include Carl Albert of Oklahoma, Hale Boggs of Louisiana, Wilbur D. Mills of Arkansas, Albert Rains of Alabama and Francis E. Walter of Pennsylvania.

Little Headway Made Toward Ford Settlement

DETROIT (AP) — The nation's first full-scale auto strike in a decade moved through its third day at Ford Motor Co. Thursday with no signs of immediate progress toward settlement.

Since 10 a.m. Tuesday 120,000 production workers who belong to the United Auto Workers Union have been idle. Ford says their wages, when working, run $2.6 million daily.

Negotiators were attempting to iron out differences at 47 local bargaining units, 17 of them at the huge Rouge complex in suburban Dearborn.

For the first time federal mediators appeared at the downtown hotel where negotiations have been going on and talked with both sides. There was no indication of federal intervention.

Agreements were reached with 26 locals prior to the strike and 12 other locals had no demands. The 85 union locals cover 88 plants and parts warehouses in 26 states.

Talks on the noneconomic phase of the national contract were in recess. They were adjourned after two 30-minute sessions Wednesday until 2 p.m. Friday to allow the bargaining teams to concentrate on the individual locals.

A union spokesman described progress reports from the locals as encouraging.

Economic matters—wages and fringe benefits—were settled prior to the walkout.

Both sides talk hopefully of an early settlement but neither has been willing to indicate a target. Malcolm L. Denise, the Ford vice president for labor negotiations, and UAW President Walter P. Reuther have told reporters they would like to agree by the weekend. However, neither has said this will happen.

Nasser Won't Oppose Seating Syria In U.N.

CAIRO (UPI) — President Gamal Abdel Nasser said Thursday the United Arab Republic will not oppose Syria's admission to the United Nations or the Arab League as an independent country.

His statement was a final admission of the end of the 3½-year-old union of Syria and Egypt in the U.A.R. in a revolt that began a week ago Thursday. But Nasser said he would not recognize any Syrian government until it has popular support.

"I feel at this moment it is not imperative that Syria should remain part of the United Arab Republic," Nasser said. "But it is imperative that Syria should live and continue as part of the greater Arab homeland."

He said he decided to let Syria take an independent course to save it from civil war.

Rights Agency Urges Housing Loan Equality

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Civil Rights Commission urged Thursday that the government require practices barring racial discrimination in all home mortgage lending institutions supervised by a federal agency.

The commission split 4 to 2 on this recommendation. One dissenter, Vice Chairman Robert G. Storey, declared he was "very much opposed to further intervention by the federal government into the affairs and policies of private financial institutions."

But the six-member group was unanimous on two others:

1. That the President issue an executive order designed to insure all Americans equal access to the benefits of federal housing programs.

2. That the President direct the Federal Housing Administration, Veterans Administration and Federal National Mortgage Association to take steps to assure nondiscrimination by builders, banks and brokers who participate in government programs.

The commission said little progress has been made since 1959 in solving housing problems of Negroes and other minorities.

Its announcement termed the recommendations "a sweeping proposal to halt discrimination in most 'conventionally financed' housing, public housing, urban renewal, housing for the elderly and homes built with the aid of FHA mortgage insurance, VA loan guarantees, and FNMA secondary market purchases and sales."

Strandees Flying Home From London

LONDON (UPI) —A party of 84 Californians — the second group of Americans to be stranded in Britain and Ireland in a week—left Thursday by chartered plane for Los Angeles after a delay of 51 hours.

The 84 were members of the British - American Club of California and have been on a month-long vacation visiting relatives in Britain. One couple left earlier by regularly scheduled airlines and a second remained behind because of illness.

The Californians had been scheduled to leave Tuesday morning but their plane, a DC7C of President Airlines, was delayed by mechanical difficulties. It arrived Thursday from New York and the passengers took off shortly afterward for their 22-hour flight home.

HAMBURG, Germany (AP) — About 25 persons were killed and at least 100 injured in a crash Thursday night of a fully loaded suburban passenger train and a halted repair train carrying iron bridge building material, police reported.

Rescue crews said they feared the number of known dead and injured would increase as they progressed in clearing away the wreckage early Friday.

Atlas Flashes 9,000 Miles In Low-Level Test

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Flying a low-angle simulated attack course, an Atlas missile registered the fourth longest surface-to-surface missile flight on record Thursday in a near 9,000-mile sweep from Cape Canaveral to the Indian Ocean.

The flight was further proof of the Atlas' long-range strike capability and provided vital information on how the nose cone withstands the severe heat and buffeting of re-entry into the earth's atmosphere.

The distance covered was slightly less than 9,000 miles. Only three other missiles, all Atlases, have flown farther in military test flights. The record is 9,054 miles. The longest known Soviet test rockets covered about 8,000 miles.

As the nose cone dived on the target area about 700 miles southeast of Capetown, South Africa, Thursday, it ejected a data capsule which parachuted into the water. It was sighted almost immediately by Air Force search planes and was picked up two hours later by the ocean range vessel Coastal Sentry.

One Thing Wrong With 102-Year-Old's Wedding—He's 79 And Sorry For Hoax

LONDON (AP)—There was only one thing wrong with 102-year-old Sidney Thain's wedding—he was not 102.

"I'm sorry I hoaxed the nation," he said Thursday. "There has been a mistake."

He was right about that.

Advertised on television as the wedding of the oldest bridegroom in Britain, the ceremony was attended by 5,000 persons. TV cameras recorded the arrival of the bridegroom and widow Maud Franklin, aged 73.

Sidney turned up in a chauffeur-driven limousine, the bride in a carriage drawn by two gray horses, all paid for by well-wishers.

Touched and tickled, the British public heaped presents on the man they thought was starting a new life at the age of 102. Checks, furniture, carpets, a TV set and clothes.

Hughie Green, the man who puts on the TV show "Double Your Money," served as best man. Champagne—paid for by other well-wishers—flowed at the wedding reception.

Then a doubting newspaper reporter handed him a reproduction of his birth certificate. After an embarrassing pause, Sidney said, "I seem to have made a slight mistake. I'm not 102. I'm just 79."

Never at a loss for words, he added, "You see, a bomb blew up my house during the war. I lost my memory. When I regained it at the hospital they told me I was 82. I couldn't contradict them. Why should I? I felt 82."

For the moment the bride looked stunned. But, breaking into a wide smile, she announced to the numerous guests who packed a pub for free champagne: "Never mind. It's the best wedding present I could have."

"Why, he's only a boy," she said, leaned over and bussed him.

TV man Green grinned and announced, "If anybody who sent presents in the belief this man was really 102 wants them back. I'll send them a check for the cost of the present. I can't say fairer than that."

Irish Premier Faces Setback In Elections

DUBLIN (UPI)—Premier Sean Lemass apparently failed Thursday in his bid for control of the new parliament when his Fianna Fail party suffered a sharp setback in Wednesday's elections.

With more than 100 seats of the 144-member parliament decided, Lemass' party trailed the combined opposition by 11 seats.

Political experts said Lemass could only hope for a maximum of 69 seats, four less than a majority. In the last parliament his party held 78 seats, compared with 40 for the Fine Gael party and 12 for the Labor party.

Knight Delegation Offer Made Nixon, Aide Claims

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Ex-Gov. Goodwin J. Knight, who had charged that a Richard M. Nixon spokesman tried to lure him out of the California governor race, Thursday was the target of a similar charge.

A Nixon aide claimed Knight once offered, if elected governor, to have the 1964 California Republican delegation support Nixon in a bid for the presidential nomination—provided Nixon did not run for governor.

Knight, at a press conference Wednesday, identified Los Angeles financier J. Howard Edgerton as the Nixon backer who, Knight has charged repeatedly, offered him any state job if he would step aside for Nixon. Knight said Edgerton clearly was speaking for Nixon.

The state's two top Republicans have been exchanging charges and countercharges since the former vice president announced last week he would seek the GOP gubernatorial nomination in 1962, and not try for the presidency in 1964. Knight's hat already was in the ring, and he obviously was stung to see Nixon's come sailing in, too.

Edgerton and Nixon both denied Knight's charge. Edgerton said he gave Knight advice, and told him he was qualified for any state post, but that he, Edgerton, was not representing Nixon.

Wednesday night Nixon's close adviser, Atty Robert Finch, came forth with the story of the Knight delegation offer. He said Knight made it last August, and Nixon told Knight at that time that it was too early to talk about 1964. Knight denied the Finch story.

News Of Rayburn Illness Shocks, Saddens Capital

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy expressed deep sorrow Thursday on learning that House Speaker Sam Rayburn, D-Tex., is seriously ill with cancer.

The news shocked and saddened the capital where Rayburn has been a towering figure for 40 years.

Kennedy said he knew "the whole nation will join with me and Mrs. Kennedy in prayer for Speaker Rayburn, who has served his nation so well and so faithfully for so many years."

Pierre Salinger, the White House press secretary, said Kennedy had asked for reports on Rayburn's condition. The speaker's physician kept in touch with the President's doctor, Dr. Janet Travell.

Salinger told newsmen he was unable to say whether Kennedy may go to Texas to visit Rayburn.

With Congress adjourned, most members were out of town, but word of the speaker's condition had a chilling effect on the hundreds of congressional employes.

Sen. Vance Hartke, D-Ind., said it was sad news for the nation.

"His leadership has been of the type that gets things done, and he always had his eyes on the welfare of the nation," he said of Rayburn. "This is sad news that grieves us all I am sure."

In Indiana, Rep. Charles A. Halleck of Indiana, the House Republican leader, said: "I count Sam Rayburn as one of my great friends in the Congress of the United States. I am deeply distressed at the report of his condition."

Dutch "Spies" Are Sentenced By Soviet Union

KIEV, U.S.S.R. (UPI) — Two Dutch merchant marine petty officers received 13-year sentences Thursday on charges of spying on secret Soviet military installations for the United States and NATO.

Evert Reydon, 30, and Louw De Jager, 25, both pleaded guilty, but Jager proudly called himself a "Christian anti-Communist." He defied the Soviet military tribunal despite continual pressure from the prosecutor, Maj. Gen. G. S. Klimov.

The trial was open to foreign newsmen.

"I admit to having committed a crime which should be punished," De Jager told the court. "I am like a soldier who, after fighting for a true cause, is taken prisoner, and when he is asked whether he is sorry, says no."

He said he became a spy because he thinks communism is dangerous.

Reydon apologized for his action and asked for the court's mercy. He said he was forced to spy to get a post as ship's mechanic in the Dutch merchant service.

Both men will serve six years in prison and seven in a labor camp.

They were accused of taking pictures of ships in Soviet and Communist Chinese harbors.

The sentences can be appealed within a week.

The tribunal found Reydon and Jager guilty of spying for the Dutch Intelligence Service, for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, and for unnamed U.S. intelligence agencies.

The prosecution introduced photographic equipment and rolls of developed film which it said were found on the defendants. The films contained pictures of secret military objectives, it said.

Bridge Mined Ever Since World War II

HALDEN, Norway (AP) —A bridge on the main highway in this area near the Swedish border has been mined ever since World War II.

The highway department Wednesday found about nine pounds of TNT under the bridge.

Experts say the bridge could have been blown up if the TNT had received a hard blow.

Fire Destroys Two Buildings At Uniontown

UNIONTOWN, Pa. (UPI)—Fire which began in a lighting fixture in the Kinney Shoe Co. destroyed the three story building and an adjoining structure early Thursday with loss estimated at several hundred thousand dollars.

Fire Chief Clarence Wilson, who estimated the loss, said the alarm was turned in by a tenant in the Kinney Building where 14 persons were evacuated.

The adjoining Leonard building, also a three-story structure, was gutted by flames. The building houses offices, including the law office of State Sen. Thomas Kalman (D-Fayette).

Defense Chief Orders Military Stick To Policy

WASHINGTON (UPI)—Defense Secretary Robert S. McNamara Thursday ordered the military to avoid expressing their views unless they are "non-partisan and in accordance with established national policy."

McNamara's stiff new edict appeared to be directed against military participation in seminars such as the one held recently in San Antonio, Tex., where some administration policies were sharply criticized.

It prohibits military participation that might "lend an air of sponsorship to the statements of others which may be either partisan in character or contrary to established national policy."

The new order also appears to modify a cold war directive issued by the National Security Council during the administration of former President Dwight D. Eisenhower.

Though Eisenhower's order has never been made public, it was cited in a critical memorandum by Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., which warned President Kennedy that the political activities of some military officers were endangering the administration's programs.

The new order will undoubtedly spark sharp criticism from Sen. Strom Thurmond, D-S.C., and other congressional conservatives, who have accused the administration of trying to "muzzle the military."

West Berlin Mayor Arrives In New York

NEW YORK (UPI)—West Berlin Mayor Willy Brandt said Thursday night that he will "convey in complete frankness" the views of his people on the Berlin crisis in private talks during his two-day visit in New York.

Brandt, who arrived here on an airliner from Cologne, was asked by newsmen about the exchange of gunfire between East and West Berlin border guards.

"It is a rather critical incident," Brandt replied. "I should not care to comment until there is a further discussion with the Allies."

Brandt said that West Berliners "trust our American friends." He called for "cooperation based on confidence in one another."

Jackie Accepts Gift Of Historic Wallpaper For White House

WASHINGTON (AP) — Mrs. John F. Kennedy flew back to Newport, R.I., Thursday to resume her vacation after putting in a busy 24 hours at official duties.

The first lady came to Washington Wednesday mainly to join the President in honoring visiting Sudan President Ferik Ibrahim Abboud at a state dinner Thursday night.

While at the White House, she officially accepted Thursday historic antique wallpaper and additional furnishings that complete a $180,000 gift of antiques from the National Society of Interior Designers.

Edward F. White of Los Angeles, president of the designers society, said Mrs. Kennedy was delighted with the gift of furnishings for the Diplomatic Reception Room.

Among the latest acquisitions which make the room the first in the White House complete with antique furnishings is a set of historic zuber wallpaper known as "Scenic America." It was printed from wooden blocks in Alsace in 1834. Predominantly in shades of teal blue and green, it consists of scenes of early America and covers all the wallspace above the painted dado in the 36 by 36 foot ground floor oval room at the south entry of the White House.

The wallpaper was found recently by Washingtonian Peter Hill on the walls of an old Thurmont, Md., home, which was being demolished. Hill paid $50 for the find and the society paid him $12,500. The appraised value was $17,500, and it could have brought that much on the open market, White said.

'Marchers' Set Off Red Word Battle

MOSCOW (UPI) —A group of "peace marchers" went to Moscow University Thursday and provoked a verbal battle between Russian students and their professors.

The 31 marchers from nine nations, who are promoting unilateral disarmament, arrived in Moscow Tuesday after a hike from San Francisco across the United States and Europe.

Thursday, when faculty members tried to cut short a scheduled hour-long meeting, the Russian students shouted and pounded on their desks until the session was permitted to continue an extra 90 minutes.

At one point when a faculty chairman tried to cut short a marcher's answer to a question, the Russian students began to chant, "Let them speak, let them speak."

Soviet faculty members asked questions, attacking the idea that Russia could disarm while West Germany and other Western powers menace the Soviet.

One student called out to a faculty member, telling him to stop throwing cold water on the meeting.

At the end of the session the university students gave hearty applause to the visitors.

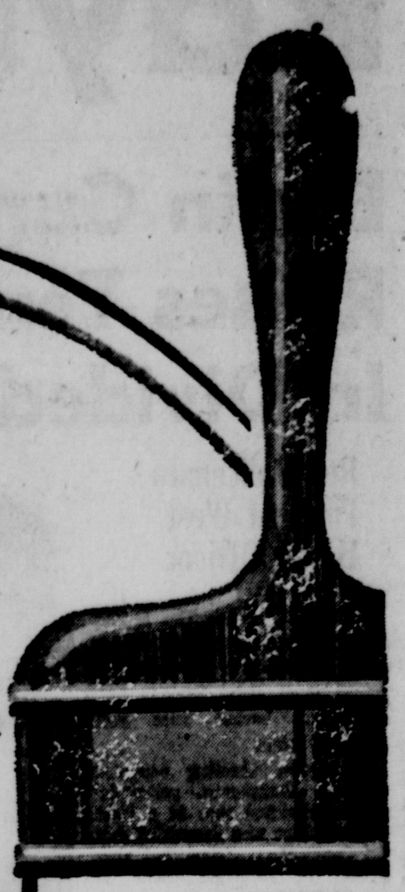

The "peace marchers" will meet Mrs. Nikita Khrushchev Friday. They have been refused a meeting with the Sovite premier, who is out of Moscow.

Bradford Lyttle, a spokesman for the group, said they still hope to get permission to demonstrate in front of the Soviet defense ministry.

Focus On Health

By The Associated Press

School day sickness, the personal attention of doctors, and asthma from pet house birds are subjects for focus on heath:

Well, a national suvey shows that children are, indeed, more prone to acute illnesses than are older persons. But these acute illnesses are mostly minor.

During one survey year, children between the ages of 5 and 14 years had an average of three acute illnesses a year, mostly colds or other respiratory problems. More than half of them needed a doctor.

On the average the children lost almost 5½ days of school.

Doctors and healers through the ages have always added to their knowledge, a sort of magic, says a British doctor. But now there is a reaction setting in.

In the new medical world of X-rays, tests, drugs and specialists, the doctor no longer feels the need to build up his personality or his bedside manners, suggests Dr. T. F. Fox, editor of the Journal Lancet.

"To get rid of the personal magician may be wise," Dr. Fox said in a recent talk. "But, even in a technical age, haven't people still a need for personal medical care?"

Everybody, he said, should have a doctor who is really his special doctor. As for the doctor, he must have heart as well as mind.

Some persons are extra sensitive to pet parakeets and canaries and can actually have asthma attacks because there is a bird in the house. Most of the troublesome allergic agents are apparently in bird feathers.

Some patients have a greater sensitivity to the extracts of canary and parakeet feathers than to an equally concentrated extract of mixed feathers and down, doctors report.

Marylander, Official Of ICA, Dies In Kenya

WASHINGTON (AP) — Joseph M. Lamb, executive officer for the International Cooperation Administration in Kenya, died Tuesday in his African home in Nairobi after a heart attack. He was 35.

He was the son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Lamb of suburban Wheatland, Md.

He was born in Pennsylvania and spent his early life in Shamokin and Mount Carmel, Pa. After his family moved to the Washington area, he attended Gonzaga High School and was graduated from Georgetown University School of Foreign Service in 1949.

The Cape Cod National Seashore is within a day's drive for 50,000,000 people.

BARRED FROM EAST BERLIN—Edmond Khayat, a Lebanese pacifist, carries an 85-pound cross and a sign along barbed wire entanglements after Communist guard refused to let him cross through the Brandenburg Gate into East Berlin yesterday. In background are East German soldiers. The 10-foot cross carries the word "humanity." The sign reads: "After 2,000 years humanity still suffers from exploitation and war, and still carries its cross. When will peace come to earth at last? When will peace come? When?" Top Student, Wrestling Champ Is Blind

Ken also is blind.

The 22-year-old student finished high school in three years, and, according to university officials, he will get his bachelor degree in the same time.

He attended summer school this year and expects to graduate in February.

Ken's future plans are to teach high school history for a few years.

"I think I can make the subject interesting enough for the students that there'll be no discipline problems," he said.

As a sophomore at Batavia, Ken became the 138-145 pound New York state wrestling champion.

In 1958, he enrolled in night courses at the University of Buffalo, while keeping a job 60 miles away at a furniture factory.

Three days a week he was up at 6 a.m. and worked right through to midnight. He commuted by bus to get to his classes and back to work.

Ken does most of his studying with a tape recorder. He has all his textbooks recorded, some by the Recording for the Blind in New York, others by his classmates.

One 300-page textbook required 14 hours of listening. In one course alone, he has listened to more than 3,000 pages.

Los Angeles Cuts Cost Of School Driver Training By Use Of Mobile Classrooms

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — School administrators and the insurance industry are looking at the driver education program in Los Angeles schools as one way to beat the high cost of "practice driving."

The cost of "practice driving" has been the big stumbling block in providing a program that would be complete enough to qualify students for insurance rate reductions.

Los Angeles schools expect to provide each student with the behind-the-wheel phase of instruction in 1961-62 at a cost to taxpayers of only $6.70 per student. This compares with the 1960-61 cost figure of $23 per student — and there will be 46 per cent more students in the program next year than this.

A total of 11,895 students are in the program this year. There will be 17,504 next year.

The reduction in costs per student is credited to a lower aggregate cost of instruction through planned use of mobile classrooms, each equipped with 12 driving simulators. These devices test the reactions of students operating a stationary automobile-like machine when they are confronted with various driving situations on a series of films.

The generally accepted standard for an efficient driver education course consists of 30 hours of classroom study plus six hours of actual behind-the-wheel experience.

In many states, including California, six hours of "practice driving" in an automobile simulator can be substituted for three of the six hours of actual driving experience.

Young men who pass these generally accepted standards are eligible for insurance rate reductions. Girls receive no reductions even though they pass the course because their insurance rates are no higher than regular "family" rates.

One Los Angeles insurance executive, Donald M. Johnson, had high praise for the program.

"The action by the Los Angeles City Board of Education and its able staff in developing the most economical way yet discovered to provide good training for their students should blaze a trail that all schools might very well follow," said Johnson.

"The insurance industry already recognizes the value of a complete driver education program such as Los Angeles offers by reducing auto insurance rates for young men with the training."

Johnson is vice chairman of the Pacific Coast Advisory Committee of the Insurance Information Institute.

The Los Angeles Board of Education learned in a poll of taxpayers and parents on the subject of driver education and training that most were strongly in favor of a good program of instruction.

Eight out of ten taxpayers polled said they thought the course should be given even if it meant more taxes. Nine out of ten adults favored the course when the question was separated from any mention of taxes.

The net cost to Los Angeles in 1960-61 for all students given behind-the-wheel training will be $282,000. That figure will be cut to $117,333 in 1961-62, despite the fact that an additional 5,609 students will be trained the second year.

In addition to the cost to Los Angeles, the state of California makes available up to $35 per student given behind-the-wheel training to any school district undertaking this optional program. The classroom phase of driver education is compulsory in all California public high schools.

Plans For Moon Lab Prepared By Scientists

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Scientists Wednesday forecast the establishment of an international laboratory on the moon in 20 to 25 years.

They also predicted as a parallel development a rocket transport linking the earth and moon, with flights becoming as commonplace as a jet airplane trip from New York to Paris.

A Lunar International Laboratory (LIL) already is being planned by the International Academy of Astronautics. The academy, headed by Dr. Theodore Von Karman, American space scientist, is part of the International Astronautical Federation which is holding its 12th annual congress here.

Von Karman and Dr. Frank J. Malina, deputy director of the academy, told reporters that scientists of many countries have been asked to submit recommendations on the kind of research they believe should have priority when the lunar laboratory is established.

Maline said the academy expects to have these suggestions in hand by 1964 for presentation at a meeting which it hopes will be conducted under the auspices of the United Nations Educational, Scientific, and Cultural Organization (UNESCO).

He credited President Kennedy's program for landing a three-man American crew on the moon before 1970 with giving "great impetus" to LIL.

Meanwhile, Soviet delegates to the conference said it still is uncertain whether effects of weightlessness will limit man's ventures into space.

The Russians, O.G. Gazenko and V.T. Yazdousky of the Soviet Academy of Sciences, indicated it may be necessary to provide artificial gravity for travelers embarked on long space trips.

Yuri Gagarin, who went into orbit for one trip around the earth on April 12, suffered no sensory or motor disturbances during his hour of weightlessness, the Soviet scientists said.

But Gherman Titov, who spent nearly 24 hours in orbit Aug. 6-7, reported prolonged discomfort which "resembled seasickness." He felt "unpleasant sensations" caused by inner ear disturbances stemming from weightlessness.

This is in the face of a reaction that knocked the Dow Jones industrial average down from about 726 to close to 690.

A fine performance by the rail issues is helping clear the air, some analysts feel.

Walter K. Gutman of Stears & Co. is one of those who are looking for better things. He says he believes that the decline last week "which wiped out all the sweet summer rally is over."

"I think a new rally will start as it becomes clear that the immediate possibility of war has been slimmed down," he explains. "I think the market will be improved by signs of a continuing upsurge in business. Practically everyone agrees that business is going to get bigger. Maybe we're all wrong but the $6 billion in increased defense spending is going to make up for slacks elsewhere."

A. M. Kidder & Co. predicts that—subject to tax selling and news unsettlements — the stock averages should make worthwhile gains by the end of the year and probably beyond in anticipation of generally higher earnings and dividens.

In addition to the expected rise in steel output, the firm adds, the motor industry in the coming year has a good chance of approximating its 1955 production record.

However, there are a good many shades of opinion in the Street.

Goodbody & Co. says that despite a lag in certain areas of the economy, which might have caused even greater uncertainty in the market, it sees no reason to change its opinion that stocks on the whole are pretty well sold out.

An overwhelming short-term bearish picture is shown by virtually all technical indicators, in the opinion of the financial publishing firm, Prentice-Hall.

Ewing Posts Bail In Income Tax Case

BALTIMORE (AP) — Sherley Ewing, former Maryland Civil Defense director who faces charges of failure to file federal income tax returns, posted $1,000 bail Wednesday with the clerk of the U.S. District Court.

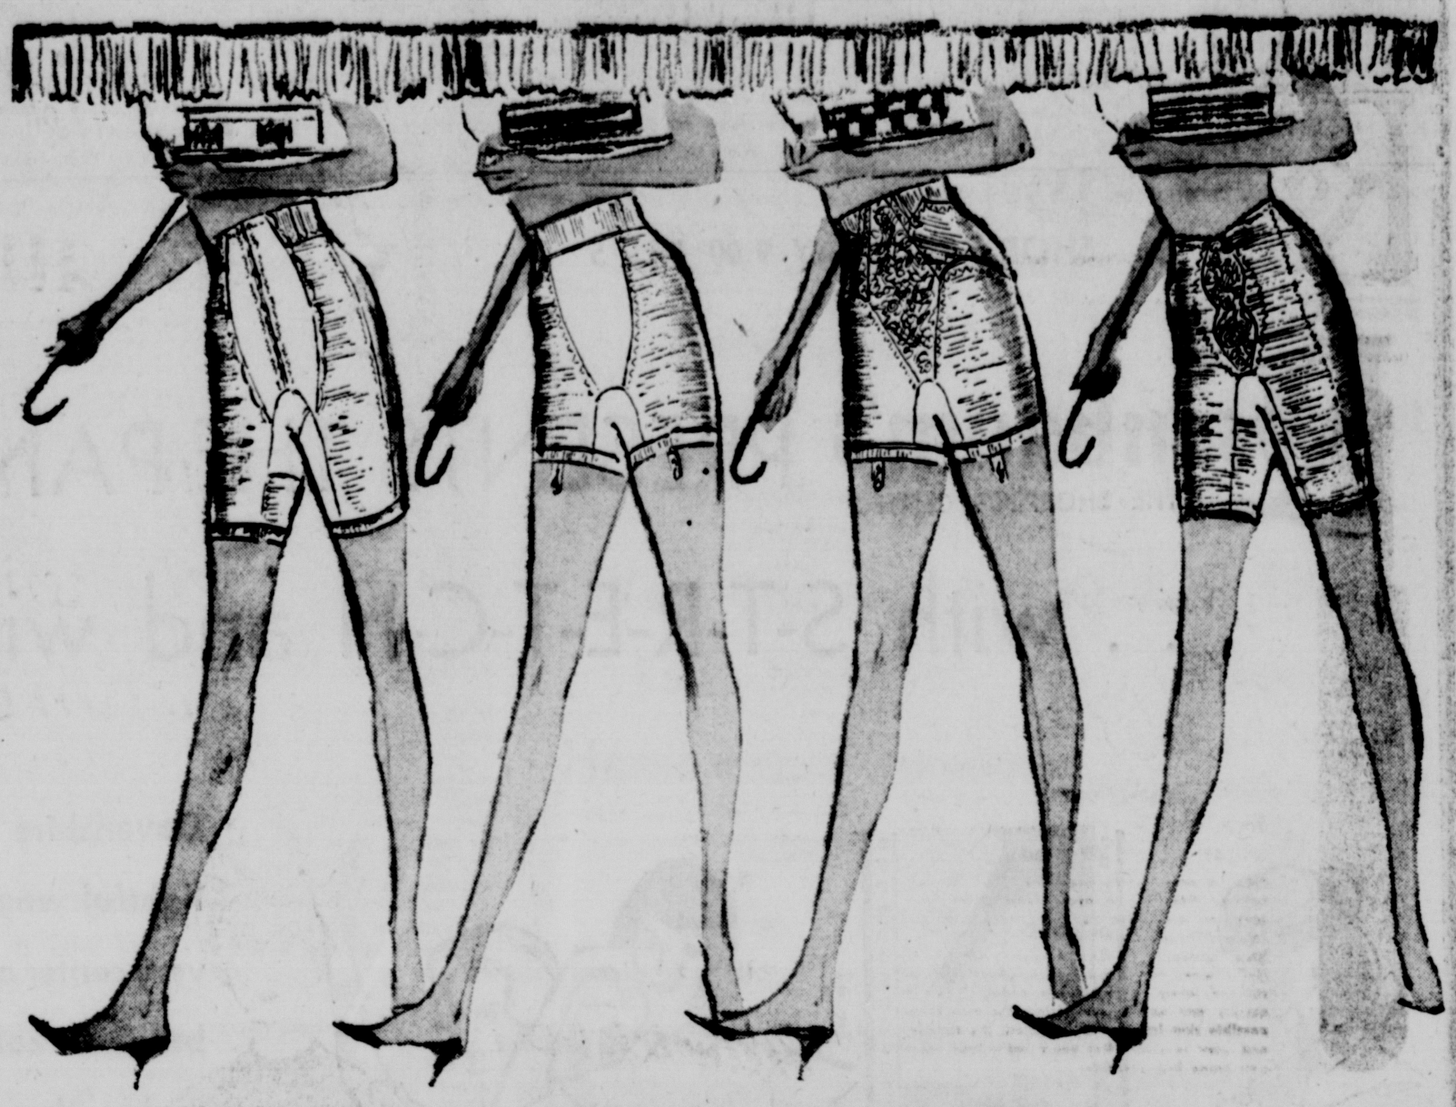

Ewing, 51, of Timonium, resigned Sept. 22 after U.S. Atty. Joseph D. Tydings filed papers charging him with failure to file tax returns for 1957, 1958 and 1959.

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Out of joint" joint accounts add up to a family bank problem as common as the common cold.

And most often when the bank informs the John Does that the joint account has lost its balance, John, who's quick on the draw, blames his wife.

Miss Kollmann, in banking for 26 years, said most joint accounts get out of kilter occasionally.

Miss Kollmann, vice president, cashier, director and trust officer of the State Bank of Blue Island, Ill., gave a simple formula for keeping joint accounts out of the red.

"Operate from one checkbook," she said, "and keep track of the checks as they are written."

If you can't do that, the expert suggested having two accounts—his and hers.

"Banking," she said, "more and more is becoming woman's work. Of 685,000 bank employes in the nation, 390,000 are women."

30 female bank officers, Miss Kollmann started as a bookkeeper. The bank she helps run has 48 employes, including seven males.

She said that a bank employe must assume, to a great extent, that most customers are honest.

"Even when someone brings in an envelope full of ashes and claims it's the remains of a $100 bill, you don't throw up your hands in disbelief," Miss Kollman said.

"You send the remains to the Treasury Department. The experts there can analyze the residue and tell you the denomination of the bill."

Designates Week

WASHINGTON (UPI) — President Kennedy Thursday designated the week beginning Oct. 15 as National Forest Products Week.

The Chief Executive in a proclamation urged the public to use the week for activities and ceremonies focusing attention on the importance of U.S. forests to the nation's continued economic growth and well-being.

Girl, 6, Faces "Living Death"

She stretched out on a metal radiator cover, under an open window to get the breeze. She propped her head upon an old electric toaster that sat on the cover.

The toaster, not in use, was plugged into a wall outlet.

The perspiration on the 6-year-old girl's head caused a short circuit. A shock went through her body.

A doctor at a hospital emergency room said the child was dead. She had no heart beat. She did not breathe.

A doctor opened her chest and massaged the heart. Finally the heart began to beat.

The child had been technically dead for about 15 minutes.

Examination showed she suffered brain damage because of the loss of oxygen in the blood.

Doctors reporting on her condition Wednesday said they hold little hope for the child to lead a normal life. She is fed through tubes. Doctors said most of her brain was destroyed. They said they could see no possibility of the child ever walking, thinking, seeing, talking, or smiling.

There are many places in Cornwall, England, that claim connection with King Arthur, says the National Geographic Magazine. But nowhere is the legend more believable than on a headland called Tintagel. There, on a sea-torn cliff, stand the gaunt ruins of a castle. Its eerie surroundings make the visitor forget scholars' doubts about the king, his knights of the Round Table.

Philippines Envoy Plans Retirement

MANILA (UPI) —Ambassador to the United States Carlos P. Romulo, 60, one of the Philippine's most eminent diplomats, Wednesday night announced he was retiring from the Philippine foreign service.

Romulo, who once served as the United Nations General Assembly president, said he came to Manila to reiterate to President Carlos P. Garcia "my firm decision to retire from the foreign service."

Romulo said he came here to receive a decoration from the Knights of Rizal, a group dedicated to the ideals of Philippine national hero Dr. Jose Rizal, and also to vote in the November presidential elections.

The children of French, German and British parents who emigrated to the United States grow to be slightly taller than their parents.

House Delegate Asks Special Session To Enact Anti-Discrimination Measure

BALTIMORE (AP) — A Democratic member of tthe House of Delegates made a new proposal Thursday for a special session of the Maryland Legislature to enact an equal accommodations law.

Del. Alexander Stark, D-Balto 8th, aked Gov. Tawes to issue a call for a special session in the wake of another incident of racial discrimination involving an African diplomat traveling through Maryland.

The governor, commenting on the latest incident, said such occurrences "will continue to happen from time to time" as long as State law permits restaurant operators to deny service to anyone.

"It would be much better," Tawes said, "if they (the African diplomats) would stop at places with an open door policy."

Tawes has turned down several previous requests for a special session on civil rights legislation, saying the next regular session of the legislature is only a few months away.

Sark added a new twist. He suggested the special session be held the day before the next regular session convenes in February.

"There is a perfectly workable bill left over from the last session," Stark said. "If the state is not to have such legislation, let the legislators face up to the matter yes or no and not keep issuing platitudes."

Stark said the issue of equal accommodations for Negroes in Maryland restaurants is as important as the Baltimore municipal court and savings and loan issues, on which the governor called a special session this summer.

The Legislative Council, between-sessions study arm of the legislature, has under study an equal accommodations proposal. Officials of the U.S. State Department appeared before the council last month and urged adoption of a law which would halt discrimination against African diplomats traveling between Washington and New York.

In the latest incident, a Nigerian diplomat was refused table service Tuesday at a restaurant on U.S. 40 northeast of Baltimore.

The diplomat, Aliyu Y. Bida, said in New York Wednesday that he is leaving the United States with "a bad impression."

WASHINGTON (AP) — A State Department spokesman said Thursday one-fifth of all racial discrimination incidents against diplomats reported this year have occurred on U.S. 40 in Maryland.

Deputy Protocol Chief Pedro Sanjuan, in giving this information to newsmen, expressed hope that Maryland will enact a public accommodation law banning racial discrimination in public places.

Sanjuan said the State Department also hopes for voluntary action among restaurant owners to serve customers regardless of color. The department says racial discrimination on the route linking New York and Washington has damaged American foreign policy.

Sanjuan said that since he took office in February, there have no reported instances of discrimination against African diplomats on the parts of Route 40 which pass through New Jersey and Delaware.

But in the short restaurant-lined strip of U.S. 40 between Baltimore and the Maryland State line there have been nine reported incidents — one-fifth of the total since February.

Federal Grand Jury Opens Md. Crime Probe

BALTIMORE (AP) — Six witnesses went before a federal grand jury Thursday as U.S. attorneys opened an investigation of possible rackets and organized crime in Maryland.

U.S. Atty. Joseph D. Tydings declined to name the witnesses. They were kept in a special room before testifying and gave their testimony behind closed doors.

The testimony was heard by a special session of a regular grand jury. Tydings has received court permission to convene the jury two days a month on the rackets probe.

Tydings said earlier the witness called on the first day would give testimony limited to gambling.

Tydings said members of his office have been gathering information for the investigation over the past several months. He said the FBI, Bureau of Internal Revenue, Federal Bureau of Narcotics and the Department of Immigration were assisting in the probe.

The jury is expected to finish hearing testimony and consider any indictments by the end of the year.

Tydings has said the government is interested in possible violations of federal law in Baltimore and in Maryland counties where slot machines are legal.

The probe was understood to be an outgrowth of Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy's stepped-up national campaign against rackets and organized crime.

Historic Annapolis Salutes Traveler

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — The Colonial charm of this modern-day state capital will be displayed this month as Historic Annapolis, Inc., stages its annual Heritage Month program.

The program gets under way Saturday with the fifth annual conference of historical societies in Maryland at St. John's College, the first time the meeting has been held outside Baltimore City.

Heritage Month this year salutes the traveler — of the stagecoach and the modern jet. The program is keyed to entertainment of the traveler, "an Annapolis tradition for 300 years."

Historic Annapolis is a nonprofit organization of local citizens interested in preserving the city's Colonial atmosphere.

Maryland News In Brief

TOWSON, Md. (AP) — Bruce D. Westcoat, 28, charged with two Howard County murders, was returned to jail Thursday after being treated for slashed wrists.

Authorities at the Baltimore County Jail said Westcoat apparently cut his wrists with broken glass Wednesday night. He was treated at University Hospital in Baltimore.

Westcoat is charged with robbing and killing a service station attendant, Charles F. Gallion Jr., 31, last May 29. In addition, he and another Baltimore County man, Clarence Brindle, 26, are charged with the slaying of a policeman, Randolph Brightwell, after the robbery.

Mix Vat Fire Blamed In Rocket Fuel Blast

WASHINGTON (AP) — A fire in a mixing machine was the probable cause of an explosion of rocket fuel at the Indian Head, Md., Naval propellant plant last Aug. 25, the Potomac River Naval Command reported Thursday.

Five civilian employes died in the explosion.

A board of investigation narrowed the cause of the fire — which ignited the experimental rocket fuel — to friction and then traced the probable origin to a mixing vat with a defective bearing. The board said the defect, previously undetected, could have allowed fuel to seep between the bearing and the shaft of the mixing blade permitting frictional ignition.

The board's findings were approved and announced by Rear Adm. Thomas H. Robbins Jr., commandant.

Postpones Talks

SEOUL (UPI)—South Korea Thursday abruptly postponed indefinitely the Korea-Japan diplomatic talks scheduled to open in Tokyo next Tuesday. A foreign ministry spokesman said the talks were postponed "due to circumstances" but refused to elaborate. The problem of appointing a Korean delegate was believed to be the reason.

According to the National Geographic Society, it is estimated that at least 950 Bengal tigers now live in Pakistan's section of the swamp jungle where the many mouths of the Ganges empty into the Bay of Bengal.

House Delegate Asks Special Session To Enact Anti-Discrimination Measure

BALTIMORE (AP) — A Democratic member of tthe House of Delegates made a new proposal Thursday for a special session of the Maryland Legislature to enact an equal accommodations law.

Del. Alexander Stark, D-Balto 5th, aked Gov. Tawes to issue a call for a special session in the wake of another incident of racial discrimination involving an African diplomat traveling through Maryland.

The governor, commenting on the latest incident, said such occurrences "will continue to happen from time to time" as long as State law permits restaurant operators to deny service to anyone.

"It would be much better," Tawes said, "if they (the African diplomats) would stop at places with an open door policy."

Tawes has turned down several previous requests for a special session on civil rights legislation, saying the next regular session of the legislature is only a few months away.

Sark added a new twist. He suggested the special session be held the day before the next regular session convenes in February.

"There is a perfectly workable bill left over from the last session," Stark said. "If the state is not to have such legislation, let the legislators face up to the matter yes or no and not keep issuing platitudes."

Stark said the issue of equal accommodations for Negroes in Maryland restaurants is as important as the Baltimore municipal court and savings and loan issues, on which the governor called a special session this summer.

The Legislative Council, between-sessions study arm of the legislature, has under study an equal accommodations proposal. Officials of the U.S. State Department appeared before the council last month and urged adoption of a law which would halt discrimination against African diplomats traveling between Washington and New York.

In the latest incident, a Nigerian diplomat was refused table service Tuesday at a restaurant on U.S. 40 northeast of Baltimore.

The diplomat, Aliyu Y. Bida, said in New York Wednesday that he is leaving the United States with "a bad impression."

WASHINGTON (AP) — A State Department spokesman said Thursday one-fifth of all racial discrimination incidents against diplomats reported this year have occurred on U.S. 40 in Maryland.

Deputy Protocol Chief Pedro Sanjuan, in giving this information to newsmen, expressed hope that Maryland will enact a public accommodation law banning racial discrimination in public places.

Sanjuan said the State Department also hopes for voluntary action among restaurant owners to serve customers regardless of color. The department says racial discrimination on the route linking New York and Washington has damaged American foreign policy.

Sanjuan said that since he took office in February, there have no reported instances of discrimination against African diplomats on the parts of Route 40 which pass through New Jersey and Delaware.

But in the short restaurant-lined strip of U.S. 40 between Baltimore and the Maryland State line there have been nine reported incidents — one-fifth of the total since February.

Federal Grand Jury Opens Md. Crime Probe

BALTIMORE (AP) — Six witnesses went before a federal grand jury Thursday as U.S. attorneys opened an investigation of possible rackets and organized crime in Maryland.

U.S. Atty. Joseph D. Tydings declined to name the witnesses. They were kept in a special room before testifying and gave their testimony behind closed doors.

The testimony was heard by a special session of a regular grand jury. Tydings has received court permission to convene the jury two days a month on the rackets probe.

Tydings said earlier the witness called on the first day would give testimony limited to gambling.

Tydings said members of his office have been gathering information for the investigation over the past several months. He said the FBI, Bureau of Internal Revenue, Federal Bureau of Narcotics and the Department of Immigration were assisting in the probe.

The jury is expected to finish hearing testimony and consider any indictments by the end of the year.

Tydings has said the government is interested in possible violations of federal law in Baltimore and in Maryland counties where slot machines are legal.

The probe was understood to be an outgrowth of Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy's stepped-up national campaign against rackets and organized crime.

Historic Annapolis Salutes Traveler

ANNAPOLIS (AP) — The Colonial charm of this modern-day state capital will be displayed this month as Historic Annapolis, Inc., stages its annual Heritage Month program.

The program gets under way Saturday with the fifth annual conference of historical societies in Maryland at St. John's College, the first time the meeting has been held outside Baltimore City.

Heritage Month this year salutes the traveler — of the stagecoach and the modern jet. The program is keyed to entertainment of the traveler, "an Annapolis tradition for 300 years."

Historic Annapolis is a nonprofit organization of local citizens interested in preserving the city's Colonial atmosphere.

Miners Hospital Shows Profit For First Year

Frostburg's Miners Hospital, under its first year of operation by a private corporation of citizens, showed an operational profit for fiscal year 1960-61, according to the audit completed by James P. Rogers, Towson.

This is quite an achievement as for years the hospital lost money. With an unlimited state subsidy, the state would make up any difference between actual cost of operation and income.

William S. Jenkins, Cumberland and Frostburg attorney who is president of the Board of Directors, pointed out that the net income of the hospital was $8,599.44.

While this sum is not large, it represents a tremendous financial advance over the past two years. The loss made up by the state for fiscal year 1959-60 was $134,026.22. For fiscal year, the deficit was $91,223.30.

The total current assets of the hospital when the new board took over on July 1, 1960, under the directive set up by a law passed in the General Assembly, amounted to $1,157,946.91.

At the end of this past fiscal year after one year of operation by the new board the total current assets totaled $1,235,332.98.

Income from patients totaled $253,136.08. Total operating expenses were $244,536.64, leaving the net income from operations before depreciation of $8,599.44.

Chief among the expenses was the $94,753.25 for nursing services. Other expenditures were: Administrative, $29,278; laboratory, $19,330; dietary, $20,033; household, $17,577; plant, $15,094; medical and surgical services, $16,632; operating room, $13,273; X-ray, $9,688; repairs and maintenance, $4,086, and laundry, $4,787.

Income other than from patients was as follows: state appropriation in excess of Department of Public Assistance billings, $43,564 (this is the same aid given all hospitals in Maryland); Department of Public Assistance (welfare aid), $7,238; back accounts collected, $31,396; contributions, $3,111; vending machines and miscellaneous receipts.

Jenkins noted that this past year the board had put in an amount for depreciation of the building and its equipment. This was $28,287.

It is to be observed in the past years when the state subsidized the hospital, no provision was ever made for depreciation.

The 1959-60 loss of $134,026 and the 1958-59 loss of $91,223 did not include any depreciation.

The net income of $8,599 is to be used in comparing the two methods of operation as no depreciation was provided for previously.

The audit prepared by Rogers declares that the statement of the audit "reflects a net income after operations before depreciation of $8,599, and a ne loss from operations after depreciation of $19,687."

By means of explanation, this $19,887 is actually a paper loss, as the hospital cashwise broke into the black for the first time in many years.

This year again an amount will be set aside for depreciation and the board hopes that this will be met by the end of next year.

The patient income during the past year was based on an average ocupancy of 50 per cent.

The board hopes, Jenkins said, to have a higher percentage of occupancy and thereby make the hospital stronger financially.

Besides Jenkins who is president of the corporation and board chairman, other board members are William H. Lemmert, D. Varner Carpenter, Frank E. Hines, Francis Carrington.

Members by virtue of their offices are John J. Rowan, president of the Board of Allegany County Commissioners, and Joseph E. James, mayor of Frostburg.

The transfer of the hospital from state subbsidy to operation by a private corporation of citizens began back in 1958 in the General Assembly when Del. Gordon Boone of Baltimore County, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, revealed that Miners Hospital was the only hospital in the state receiving this type of assistance.

The state does assist hospitals through various ways and it is these funds that Miners received from the comptroller this past fiscal year instead of the subsidy.

The center has 30 days to report to the court on the youth.

Miner Is Injured

FROSTBURG—A Gilmore man is reported in "good" condition in Miners Hospital, where he was admitted Tuesday with severe leg injuries suffered in a strip mining accident.

Attaches said Floyd Raynor, 54, of Gilmore, sustained his injuries when a bulldozer toppled over and pinned him beneath it.

Bidders On State Projects Warned

BALTIMORE (AP) — Contractors bidding on state projects were warned Thursday they faced forfeiture of bid bonds in cases where their own errors lead to mistakes on their filings for building jobs.

The comment was offered by State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein and Albert P. Backhaus, director of public improvements.

Their warnings came in the wake of Board of Public Works action Wednesday allowing the apparent low bidder on a University of Maryland dormitory project to withdraw because it under-estimated costs.

The board said it permitted the withdrawal to avoid possible ensuing legal delays. To speed work on the project, the building job was awarded to the second low bidder.

Firemen Assist Child Who Stopped Breathing

Prompt and alert action by the Bowling Green Volunteer Fire Company is credited with helping save the life of an infant in that area Wednesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert O. Koon, of Cresap Drive, in Bowling Green, called the company when their infant son stopped breathing.

Fifteen men responded to the call, and after arrival at the home instructed the mother in mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, which revived the child. Taken to Memorial Hospital in the ambulance of the Cresaptown Fire Company, the child is reported "resting comfortably".

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States is being "outgunned" by the Russians in the number of books being published in non-Communist countries, U.S. Information Director Edward R. Murrow said Thursday.

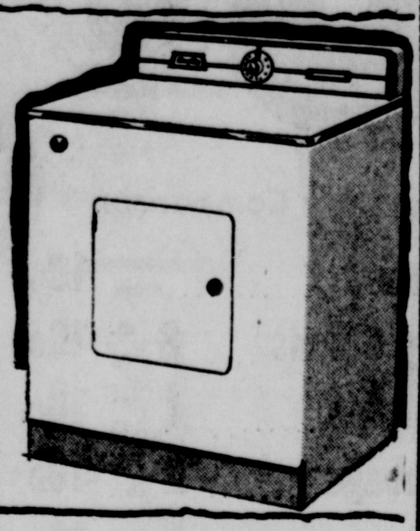

Addressing the American Council on Education, Murrow said Russian books distributed to non-Communist countries rose by 30 per cent last year to a high of 40 million volumes.

The board hopes, Jenkins said, to have a higher percentage of occupancy and thereby make the hospital stronger financially.

Besides Jenkins who is president of the corporation and board chairman, other board members are William H. Lemmert, D. Varner Carpenter, Frank E. Hines, Francis Carrington.

Members by virtue of their offices are John J. Rowan, president of the Board of Allegany County Commissioners, and Joseph E. James, mayor of Frostburg.

The transfer of the hospital from state subbsidy to operation by a private corporation of citizens began back in 1958 in the General Assembly when Del. Gordon Boone of Baltimore County, chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee, revealed that Miners Hospital was the only hospital in the state receiving this type of assistance.

The state does assist hospitals through various ways and it is these funds that Miners received from the comptroller this past fiscal year instead of the subsidy.

Boy Gunman Gets Mental Tests

The youth was transferred Wednesday from the Maryland Training School where he was confined Tuesday. The transfer was authorized by the Harford County Circuit Court because the center here has facilities for a psychiatric examination requested by juvenile authorities.

The center has 30 days to report to the court on the youth.

Miner Is Injured

FROSTBURG—A Gilmore man is reported in "good" condition in Miners Hospital, where he was admitted Tuesday with severe leg injuries suffered in a strip mining accident.

Attaches said Floyd Raynor, 54, of Gilmore, sustained his injuries when a bulldozer toppled over and pinned him beneath it.

The eye is to precise in its workings that it can distinguish points one ten thousandth of an inch apart or follow a baseball approaching at 100 miles an hour. It has a movable shield (the eyelash), wiping mechanism (upper eyelid) and cleansing agent (tears).

The Civil War brought about the first legal standards for the treatment of prisoners and populations of occupied territory. The Army code, published in 1863, was observed in the Franco-Prussian War and was the basis of the Hague Conventions.

Bidders On State Projects Warned

BALTIMORE (AP) — Contractors bidding on state projects were warned Thursday they faced forfeiture of bid bonds in cases where their own errors lead to mistakes on their filings for building jobs.

The comment was offered by State Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein and Albert P. Backhaus, director of public improvements.

Their warnings came in the wake of Board of Public Works action Wednesday allowing the apparent low bidder on a University of Maryland dormitory project to withdraw because it under-estimated costs.

The board said it permitted the withdrawal to avoid possible ensuing legal delays. To speed work on the project, the building job was awarded to the second low bidder.

The Pilgrims, casting anchor in a Cape Cod harbor in 1620, found the country of such "wild and savage hew," says the National Geographic Society, that they sought a more hospitable place to land. Now that cape is the only National Seashore outside North Carolina.

Firemen Assist Child Who Stopped Breathing

Prompt and alert action by the Bowling Green Volunteer Fire Company is credited with helping save the life of an infant in that area Wednesday night.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert O. Koon, of Cresap Drive, in Bowling Green, called the company when their infant son stopped breathing.

Fifteen men responded to the call, and after arrival at the home instructed the mother in mouth-to-mouth resuscitation, which revived the child. Taken to Memorial Hospital in the ambulance of the Cresaptown Fire Company, the child is reported "resting comfortably".

Distribute Books

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The United States is being "outgunned" by the Russians in the number of books being published in non-Communist countries, U.S. Information Director Edward R. Murrow said Thursday.

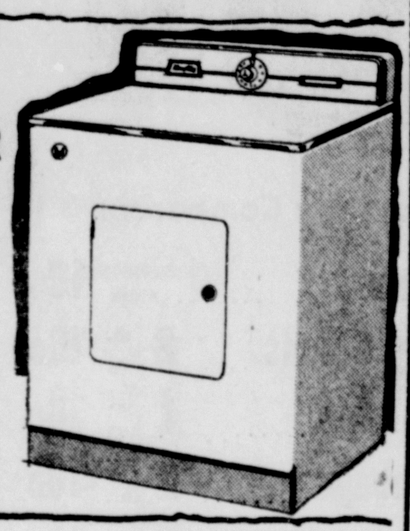

Addressing the American Council on Education, Murrow said Russian books distributed to non-Communist countries rose by 30 per cent last year to a high of 40 million volumes.

The Isthmus of Panama has been below sea level at various times in geological history, thus uniting the Atlantic and Pacific oceans.

Three Men Indicted

Three indictments by the October grand jury were placed on the open docket yesterday in Allegany County Circuit Court.

One of the indictments was against Eugene S. Lepley, Henderson Avenue, on a charge of assault with intent to murder Harry Milton Smith last June 15 during an altercation at a tavern on Mt. Savage Road near Greenpoint.

Lepley, who had been released from the state penitentiary only two months previously after serving seven and a half years of a 10-year sentence imposed in Circuit Court here in 1953 on a charge of assault with intent to rob an Ellerslie man, allegedly shot Smith with a .22 calibre rifle.

Police said one of the bullets coursed through one of Smith's thighs and lodged in the other. The shooting followed an earlier battle between Lepley and two of his nephews with Smith, according to police.

The other two indictments returned yesterday were against two New Hampshire men on charges of armed robbery in the holdup of the Allegany Liquor Store last March 18.

They are Edmund L. Vallee and Leonard W. Burnor. The two men stopped at the liquor store, corner of Henderson Avenue and Frederick Street and held up J. Milton Dick, the proprietor and obtained about $158.

The men were apprehended when one of two young women with the New Hampshire men reported the incident to police some time later. The two were brought here for trial some weeks ago after being extradited from New Hampshire.

The bride was Maud Franklin, 73, a widow. More than 1,000 well-wishers cheered the couple after the ceremony in Camberwell Register Office.

OSLO (AP)—Fisheries Minister Nils Bysoe said this week the watch on Norway's new 12-mile fishing limit will be reinforced by an air patrol if necessary.

Youth Arrested In Stolen Car

ROMNEY—A 17-year-old youth who was picked up Wednesday by West Virginia State Police while enroute to Florida in a stolen car is being held in Hampshire County Jail here for Pennsylvania authorities.

The youth, a resident of East Freedom, Pa., was stopped by police at Junction after an alert was issued when the boy drove away from a Burlington service station without paying for gasoline.

During questioning by authorities, the boy confessed to having stolen the car in Portage, Pa. He explained that he wanted to go to Florida, although he had no funds on hand and no means of transportation.

"I got them to stop starching your shirts—now they're starching the sheets!"

Ask Strict Curb On Obscene Literature

The October Grand Jury of Allegany County Circuit Court in its report after concluding deliberations at noon yesterday advocated strict supervision of so-called obscene literature that is being made available to the public.

The grand jury also reported 15 indictments after hearing 45 witnesses. One of the stronger recommendations was that Allegany County's legislators up the bond provisions of the law governing backfilling of strip mines to a minimum of $3,000 for each operation.

It was also recommended that the legislators review existing liquor laws for the county to determine if the number of licenses is in proportion to the population and to modernize the existing laws to this respect.

In regards to the obscene literature the report stated:

"The State's Attorney requested the Grand Jury to consider the obscenity laws of this state which makes it a crime for any person to sell any lewd, obscene or indecent book, magazine, drawing, or photograph, and reviewed a recent Court of Appeals decision regarding obscene literature setting forth the constitutional tests applied by the court.

"The grand jury then reviewed an accumulation of paper-backed books and magazines purchased by the county investigator Edwin R. Lilya) and the Cumberland Police Department at retail outlets throughout the county.

"The grand jury, after reviewing the publications, is of the opinion that many paper-backed books and 'girlie magazines' currently being offered for sale are obscene and obviously calculated to incite lustful thoughts in the mind of the reader and should be prohibited.

"The grand jury wishes to serve notice on all retail magazine outlets that the sale of offensive, repulsive and obscene literature will not be tolerated and the grand jury has requested the police officers of every community to maintain a constant vigil designed to eliminate these publications from circulation.

"The commercial exploitation of the morbid and shameful craving for material and prurient effect is considered to be extremely reprehensible and can only be controlled by constant police supervision and prosecution where necessary," the report said.

The report also called for painting the floor in the men's quarters of the County Home, installation of an elevator in Sylvan Retreat and removal of trees from the rear of the Court House to provide freer access in case of fire.

The installation of a fire escape from the third floor of the Court House was also advocated.

The usual recommendation concerning the antiquated County Jail was given and the County Commissioners agreed to take the necessary action toward planning and obtaining specifications for a new county building. This will be reported to the April grand jury.

The jury endorsed the effort of J. William Hunt, chairman of the Washington Memorial Committee, and U. S. Sen. J. Glenn Beall, author of Senate Bill 2999 for their continued work to get a monument in honor of George Washington.

The jurors cited the services of Police Chief Joseph Wilkes, of Luke, who has attended every grand jury session for the past 22 years. He was also congratulated on his impending retirement later this month.

Nurses Shown New Resucitation Method

A means of bringing the "dead" back to life partly through the simple use of two hands was explained to nurses of Sacred Heart Hospital Wednesday by Dr. Earl R. Paul, of the Sacred Heart staff, who, with the assistance of the Allegany-Garrett County Heart Association, conducted an oreintation period for the relatively new medical process.

The technique, known as closed chest cardiac resuscitation, is a method used to restore circulation to victims of cardiac arrest—the sudden and unexpected cessation of cardiac output, or stopping of the heart.

Basically, emergency closed-chest heart resuscitation initially involves applying pressure to a patient's lower breastbone in a rhythmic motion with the heel of one of the administrator's hands at the point of pressure. This is accompanied in emergency by mouth-to-mouth artificial respiration. Medicinal and electrical treatment by a qualified person follows.

Through efforts of charity, Sacred Heart Hospital has received a closed-chest defibrillator (capable of 440 volts of electricity) and a cardioscope (for electro-cardiograms), both of which are necessary in resuscitation processes.

Persons not trained in the administration of this resuscitation method have been cautioned not to try it, as other injuries and complications are possible. Also, qualified personnel would have the knowledge of heart arrest and its symptoms.

Cardiac arrest can occur as a total standstill of the heart, disorganized twitchings of the fibers of the heart, or sudden profound circulatory collapse with insufficient cardiac output to provide even coronary circulation.

Unexpected death that may be reversed by closed chest resuscitation can be caused by electric shock, anesthesia, adverse reaction to drugs or dye injections, cardiac catheterization, and suffocation from many causes, one of which might be drowning.

Thus it is evident that heart arrest can happen anywhere—at work, home, in accidents—and one of the main advantages of closed chest resuscitation is that it can be applied anywhere since no surgery is needed.

Previously, heart arrest was treated only at hospitals through the surgical process of open-chest heart massage.

Dr. Paul, who attended the Heart Association-sponsored institution for the closed chest technique in Richmond, Va., recently, gave a lecture and showed an illustrative film on the process to the nurses.

The local surgeon said he plans to submit information on the method to the Allegany-Garrett Medical Society, the staffs of Memorial and Sacred Heart hospitals, and expressed hope that acquaintance with closed-chest resuscitation will spread to local and area industries, rescue squads, and emergency units.

Mrs. Ora Mae Lewis, executive secretary of the Allegany-Garrett Heart Association, indicated that attempts will be made to provide such information for these groups through instruction by physicians.

Heart arrest was first dealt with by closed chest methods on a human at Johns Hopkins, Baltimore, in 1957. Its use by physicians since has spread.

It was emphasized during the lecture in the nurses' home Wednesday that use of closed-chest heart resuscitation is limited somewhat and should be employed only when chances are good that the victim can be restored to his pre-heart arrest condition. Not all patients should be resuscitated, it was stated, and a patient must be capable of being resuscitated with a possibility of some normal state of existence.

The American Heart Association has reported that natural death in the aged or death as the terminal stage of a chronic illness should not be reversed by this method. And in the event a patient is capable of the process, it should not be used after a delay of more than five minutes as irreversible brain damage might take place, only for death to occur ultimately after a tragic period of unconsciousness and expense.

Dr. Paul told the nurses: "All the heart needs is a second chance; heart arrest occurs often when the heart is too good to die."

Mt. Etna Erupts

CANTANIA, Sicily (UPI)—Mt. Etna rumbled into action before dawn Thursday and by daylight was spewing molten lava, ashes and huge clouds of smoke. The eruption occurred in a "saddle" between the awesome central crater and a small one to the northeast.

Warns Of Danger

LONDON (UPI)—Moscow radio said Thursday the U.S. decision to keep four of its British air bases open is part of a plan to turn the British Isles into a U.S. rocket and nuclear vantage ground. The move will bring the British people nothing but increased danger, it said.

Hunters Hurt By Pellets

A Flintstone area hunter was wounded by shotgun pellets about the chest, neck and arms yesterday morning when an undentified person shot at him in the Wheel's Ridge section of Piney Plains.

The shooting was the second involving hunters yesterday morning. Junior Beachy, 30, of Sparrows Point, was taken to Memorial Hospital yesterday afternoon for treatment of buckshot wounds of the arm, neck and back by pellets from a shotgun.

The squirrel and wild turkey season opened yesterday at daybreak and Benjamin F. Teeter, 64, of RD 2, Flintstone, went out early to try his luck. It turned out to be bad.

Teeter was taken to Memorial for treatment of numerous pellet wounds about the neck, chest and arms. Trooper R. J. Graham, who investigated, said the person who fired the shot fled without determining how badly Teeter was injured.

The wounded man was taken to Memorial by A. M. McPhail and C. D. Whetzel.

Mother, Daughter In Good Condition

A LaVale woman and her daughter are reported in "good" condition Wednesday at Sacred Heart Hospital where they were admitted Wednesday with injuries suffered in a two-car crash on U.S. Route 40 at the west end of LaVale.

Attaches said Mrs. Mabel Moravec, 43, and her daughter, Donna, were admitted for X-rays and observation.

$235,431 Payroll Noted By National Guard Units

The National Guard, citizen soldiers, and one of the strong lines of defense for this nation, also constitute big business in the communities where they are located.

During the fiscal year ending July 1, members of the First Medium Tank Battalion, 115th Armor, with companies in Hagerstown, Cumberland, Frostburg and Oakland, received in National Guard pay a total of $174,796.

These Guardsmen together with the salaries of the full-time technicians assigned to the unit which totaled $60,635 brought into their communities a total of $235,431.

In Cumberland and Frostburg, the Guard members received $104,968, while the full-time technicians had wages of $44,166 for a total of $149,134.

In addition to the wages, the operation of the Guard was also felt in this section.

Gasoline for tanks, trucks and jeeps purchased locally amounted to approximately 9,600 gallons.

In addition, the technicians purchased oil, grease and replacement parts for the various vehicles.

Blankets, uniforms and other items of wear were cleaned and repaired by local concerns.

The construction of the local armory on Brown Avenue provided many jobs for local tradesmen and brought additional capital into the area.

Nurses Shown New Resucitation Method

A means of bringing the "dead" back to life partly through the simple use of two hands was explained to nurses of Sacred Heart Hospital Wednesday by Dr. Earl R. Paul, of the Sacred Heart staff, who, with the assistance of the Allegany-Garrett County Heart Association, conducted an oreintation period for the relatively new medical process.

The technique, known as closed chest cardiac resuscitation, is a method used to restore circulation to victims of cardiac arrest—the sudden and unexpected cessation of cardiac output, or stopping of the heart.

Basically, emergency closed-chest heart resuscitation initially involves applying pressure to a patient's lower breastbone in a rhythmic motion with the heel of one of the administrator's hands at the point of pressure. This is accompanied in emergency by mouth-to-mouth artificial respiration. Medicinal and electrical treatment by a qualified person follows.

Through efforts of charity, Sacred Heart Hospital has received a closed-chest defibrillator (capable of 440 volts of electricity) and a cardioscope (for electro-cardiograms), both of which are necessary in resuscitation processes.

Persons not trained in the administration of this resuscitation method have been cautioned not to try it, as other injuries and complications are possible. Also, qualified personnel would have the knowledge of heart arrest and its symptoms.

Cardiac arrest can occur as a total standstill of the heart, disorganized twitchings of the fibers of the heart, or sudden profound circulatory collapse with insufficient cardiac output to provide even coronary circulation.

Unexpected death that may be reversed by closed chest resuscitation can be caused by electric shock, anesthesia, adverse reaction to drugs or dye injections, cardiac catheterization, and suffocation from many causes, one of which might be drowning.

If Going To Bangkok, Join A Tour Group

By RALPH VILLERS

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — This is one of those far away places with the strange sounding names they sing about — and once seen, you'll be singing about it too.

Bangkok is the perfect vantage point from which to get a glimpse of old and new Asia at the same time. They still buy and sell fresh fruits and vegetables and what have you from little boats on the river — or offer some of the finest examples of Auto Age traffic jams you can find anywhere in the world.

The dazzling under the sun color both inside and outside the buildings of the Grand Palace (pick out any color in the rainbow and you'll find it there) is a picture from another and more royal age.

But the road widening by filling in the brackish water klongs (or canals) that lace through this city of 1.5 million people is a page from the new and building Asia.

And, at that, Bangkok isn't such a far away place anymore. For example, Scandinavian Airlines System (SAS) recently inaugurated through-plane jet service from Copenhagen that takes minutes to Bangkok. Add a little over seven hours, for crossing the Atlantic, and it's little more than a day from New York.

Once in Bangkok, as in practically any Asian city, the smartest way to see it is as part of a tour group. It saves getting lost in a confusion of streets that tend to curve and twist, rather than run true.

A tour is the most practical way of getting inside the grounds of the Grand Palace, because it leaves getting permission from the Royal Household Bureau up to the tour agency. The palace is a "must see" on any visit to Bangkok. The ornate colors of the gold-trimmed Funeral Hall, and the 7,800 hand-painted figures on the wall (representing angels with their hands folded in welcome) is typical of Siamese architecture and art going back to the late 18th Century.

If it's a Sunday or a Buddhist holy day, you can get in to see the interior of the Wat Pra Kaew (Temple of the Emerald Buddah), and marvel at the gold leafed altar and figures, topped by the emerald-green Buddha carved from a single block of jasper. And you'll see the devout offering incense and flowers before entering the temple sans shoes.

Scenes like that, and the towering demon gate-keeper statues with their weapons, are what make amateur photographers wish they had brought an extra roll of color film along. There's too much color and gold leaf to remember.

You'll find wats (or temples) all over the city — if you count them you should reach something like 300. One of the most fascinating is the Wat Po, the Temple of the Reclining Buddha. This gold-leafed figure stretches 160 feet on its bed, and you have to stand either at the head or the huge feet to get a look at the length of it because of pillars supporting the roof.

The temple too will interest souvenir collectors — authentic temple rubbings sell for $1.50 to $2.

Runyon Fund Hopes To Go Out Of Business

By CLAIRE COX

NEW YORK (UPI)—Damon Runyon's guys and dolls are betting in his name that they'll help come up with a winner to benefit mankind.

Their investment is hard work, for free, in behalf of the Damon Runyon Memorial Fund for Cancer Research. The payoff would be a victory over cancer and, with a Runyon-like story twist, would wipe out the memorial they have established in his honor.

The fund has invested more than $15 million in fighting the disease that killed the famed "poet laureate" of Broadway 15 years ago. When the cause and cure of cancer is found the fund will go out of business.

John H. Teeter, an engineer and investment broker who oversees the fund's activities, said it operates much the same as other charitable foundations, but with several differences.

One is low overhead. Money contributed by individuals or organizations goes directly into the fight against the killer disease. The fund has one office, of modest size, with an executive director, four full-time workers and one part-time worker. All administrative costs are met with proceeds from benefit sales of tickets to sporting events and contributions earmarked solely for that purpose. Columnist Walter Winchell has given heavily to this department.

Another difference is diversification. Teeter, a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and husband of Christine McGuire, one of the three singing McGuire sisters, has established a policy of trying to spread scientific expeditions against cancer in laboratories in every state in the country. He calls this a "seeding" operation.

"We believe in going to areas where nothing is going on in cancer research," Teeter said in an interview. "Our grants to the University of Miami and the University of Florida were the first research grants in medicine in Florida. They formed the nucleus for medical schools. That is a seeding operation."

Other such operations have involved Tuskegee Institute, a Negro school specializing in nutrition and institutions in Nevada, where the fund established cobalt bomb research. Teeter said the fund enabled the organization of the first medical school in New Jersey and helped Dartmouth start a two-year medical school.

"One day, if we ever have an atom bomb problem, all the big medical centers will be gone," he said. "We may have to rely on a horse doctor in Arkansas. We never should have all our talent in one place.

"Besides, we may find the answer in Kokomo or Nevada. Some little guy, not a high-priced team may be the one who will find the final answer to the cancer problem."

Teeter, who came to the Foundation from the American Cancer Society, was not one of Runyon's close friends, although he met him several times. But Teeter's bosses were pals of the writer and work closely with the organization. Dan Parker, sports editor of the New York Daily Mirror, is president. Bob Hope and Joe DiMaggio are vice presidents and Arthur Godfrey is secretary.

Guys such as Milton Berle, Frank Sinatra, Bing Crosby, Jimmy Durante and Sugar Ray Robinson and dolls such as Dagmar, Marlene Dietrich and Lucille Ball have given generously of time and money.

Winchell, as treasurer, has signed his name to every check for the 1,214 research grants and 489 fellowship awards involving work in 315 institutions in the 50 states, Washington, D.C., and 25 foreign countries.

Money has been allocated at a rate of about $1.2 million a year. Some of the recipients include the Germ Free Laboratory in Tampa, Fla., where scientists raise germ free animals and then produce cancers in them; the M. D. Anderson hospital in Houston, Tex., where the nation's first cobalt bomb was developed, and Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where the first work in very high voltage X-ray cancer treatment was conducted.

The largest grant was $50,000 to Memorial Hospital in New York which, with the Rockefeller Institute and the New York University-Cornell Medical Center, occupies a single square block in New York that has become the world capital for cancer research.

The Runyon Fund shares in some Community Fund collections in various cities, but other than that it conducts no fund-raising drives.

As much as 70 per cent of the fund's annual income comes from bequests from wills, Teeter said. At average of two wills a week mention the fund, Teeter said.

Petticoat Brigade Fights Fires

By POLLY WITTE

CASTLEWOOD, Colo. (UPI) — The petticoat brigade "makes the scene" when there is a fire in this suburb southeast of Denver. And, the chief admits it's a good show.

Fire fighters are women in Castlewood, where about a dozen "Moms" cover an average of six to seven fire calls a week in a 24-square mile area.

A five-foot-two, 120-pound brunette bundle of energy named Frances Roth, mother of four ranging from 15 to 21, runs the volunteer fire brigade which was organized 10 years ago. She isn't chief — the chief is a man — but it doesn't take long to realize that she is "strawboss," as she puts it.

"The husbands kept yapping about how they worked all day and so forth, and 'who was going to put out any fires that might start?'" said Mrs. Roth.

"It was pretty clear that fires start whether the boys are home or not," she said. "So, we women figure we could handle them — we didn't want them to worry about us — and, anyway, we decided we probably could be firemen just as well as the men."

It took some nagging, Mrs. Roth said, "before the boys agreed to let us run the fire department during the daytime."

The Castlewood fire district, which has a population of 600 persons, could not afford outside help without a special tax levy or assessment.

Bill Stahm, a construction worker who is Castlewood's fire chief, said "the girls are doing their job well."

The men handle fire calls after suppertime, "unless there's a real big one and the women have to be called in to help," said Mrs. Roth.

There are "fire phones" in six Castlewood area homes, and all are connected like the old-time party-line telephones.

Frances is one of the six women manning telephones, and each knows where the others can be reached if necessary.

Equipment consists of two small pumper trucks, an array of pressure nozzles and hoses, truck mounted water tanks with 500 gallon capacities, and a station wagon full of emergency first-aid equipment such as a resuscitator and oxygen tank.

The fire women dress in rubber "bunker coats" — styled like a fireman's regular coat, but in bright red.

"They didn't cost any more, so we just got red," said Mrs. Roth.

If Going To Bangkok, Join A Tour Group

By RALPH VILLERS

BANGKOK, Thailand (UPI) — This is one of those far away places with the strange sounding names they sing about — and once seen, you'll be singing about too.

Bangkok is the perfect vantage point from which to get a glimpse of old and new Asia at the same time. They still buy and sell fresh fruits and vegetables and what have you from little boats on the river — or offer some of the finest examples of Auto Age traffic jams you can find anywhere in the world.

The dazzling under the sun color both inside and outside the buildings of the Grand Palace (pick out any color in the rainbow and you'll find it there) is a picture from another and more royal age.

But the road widening by filling in the brackish water klongs (or canals) that lace through this city of 1.5 million people is a page from the new and building Asia.

And, at that, Bangkok isn't such a far away place anymore. For example, Scandinavian Airlines System (SAS) recently inaugurated through-plane jet service from Copenhagen that takes minutes to Bangkok. Add a little over seven hours, for crossing the Atlantic, and it's little more than a day from New York.

Once in Bangkok, as in practically any Asian city, the smartest way to see it is as part of a tour group. It saves getting lost in a confusion of streets that tend to curve and twist, rather than run true.

A tour is the most practical way of getting inside the grounds of the Grand Palace, because it leaves getting permission from the Royal Household Bureau up to the tour agency. The palace is a "must see" on any visit to Bangkok. The ornate colors of the gold-trimmed Funeral Hall, and the 7,500 hand-painted figures on the wall (representing angels with their hands folded in welcome) is typical of Siamese architecture and art going back to the late 18th Century.

If it's a Sunday or a Buddhist holy day, you can get in to see the interior of the Wat Pra Kaew (Temple of the Emerald Buddah), and marvel at the gold leafed altar and figures, topped by the emerald-green Buddha carved from a single block of jasper. And you'll see the devout offering incense and flowers before entering the temple sans shoes. Scenes like that, and the towering demon gate-keeper statues with their weapons, are what make amateur photographers wish they had brought an extra roll of color film along. There's too much color and gold leaf to remember.

You'll find wats (or temples) all over the city — if you count them you should reach something like 300. One of the most fascinating is the Wat Po, the Temple of the Reclining Buddha. This gold-leafed figure stretches 160 feet on its bed, and you have to stand either at the head or the huge feet to get a look at the length of it because of pillars supporting the roof.

The temple too will interest souvenir collectors — authentic temple rubbings sell for $1.50 to $2.

Runyon Fund Hopes To Go Out Of Business

By CLAIRE COX

NEW YORK (UPI)—Damon Runyon's guys and dolls are betting in his name that they'll help come up with a winner to benefit mankind.

Their investment is hard work, for free, in behalf of the Damon Runyon Memorial Fund for Cancer Research. The payoff would be a victory over cancer and, with a Runyon-like story twist, would wipe out the memorial they have established in his honor.

The fund has invested more than $15 million in fighting the disease that killed the famed "poet laureate" of Broadway 15 years ago. When the cause and cure of cancer is found the fund will go out of business.

John H. Teeter, an engineer and investment broker who oversees the fund's activities, said it operates much the same as other charitable foundations, but with several differences.

One is low overhead. Money contributed by individuals or organizations goes directly into the fight against the killer disease. The fund has one office, of modest size, with an executive director, four full-time workers and one part-time worker. All administrative costs are met with proceeds from benefit sales of tickets to sporting events and contributions earmarked solely for that purpose. Columnist Walter Winchell has given heavily to this department.

Another difference is diversification. Teeter, a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology and husband of Christine McGuire, one of the three singing McGuire sisters, has established a policy of trying to spread scientific expeditions against cancer in laboratories in every state in the country. He calls this a "seeding" operation.

"We believe in going to areas where nothing is going on in cancer research," Teeter said in an interview. "Our grants to the University of Miami and the University of Florida were the first research grants in medicine in Florida. They formed the nucleus for medical schools. That is a seeding operation."

Other such operations have involved Tuskegee Institute, a Negro school specializing in nutrition and institutions in Nevada, where the fund established cobalt bomb research. Teeter said the fund enabled the organization of the first medical school in New Jersey and helped Dartmouth start a two-year medical school.

"One day, if we ever have an atom bomb problem, all the big medical centers will be gone," he said. "We may have to rely on a horse doctor in Arkansas. We never should have all our talent in one place.

"Besides, we may find the answer in Kokomo or Nevada. Some little guy, not a high-priced team may be the one who will find the final answer to the cancer problem."

Teeter, who came to the Foundation from the American Cancer Society, was not one of Runyon's close friends, although he met him several times. But Teeter's bosses were pals of the writer and work closely with the organization. Dan Parker, sports editor of the New York Daily Mirror, is president. Bob Hope and Joe DiMaggio are vice presidents and Arthur Godfrey is secretary.

Guys such as Milton Berle, Frank Sinatra, Bing Crosby, Jimmy Durante and Sugar Ray Robinson and dolls such as Dagmar, Marlene Dietrich and Lucille Ball have given generously of time and money.

Winchell, as treasurer, has signed his name to every check for the 1,214 research grants and 489 fellowship awards involving work in 315 institutions in the 50 states, Washington, D.C., and 25 foreign countries.

Money has been allocated at a rate of about $1.2 million a year. Some of the recipients include the Germ Free Laboratory in Tampa, Fla., where scientists raise germ free animals and then produce cancers in them; the M. D. Anderson hospital in Houston, Tex., where the nation's first cobalt bomb was developed, and Massachusetts Institute of Technology, where the first work in very high voltage X-ray cancer treatment was conducted.

The largest grant was $50,000 to Memorial Hospital in New York which, with the Rockefeller Institute and the New York University-Cornell Medical Center, occupies a single square block in New York that has become the world capital for cancer research.

The Runyon Fund shares in some Community Fund collections in various cities, but other than that it conducts no fund-raising drives.

As much as 70 per cent of the fund's annual income comes from bequests from wills, Teeter said. An average of two wills a week mention the fund, Teeter said.

Petticoat Brigade Fights Fires

By POLLY WITTE

CASTLEWOOD, Colo. (UPI) — The petticoat brigade "makes the scene" when there is a fire in this suburb southeast of Denver. And, the chief admits it's a good show.

Fire fighters are women in Castlewood, where about a dozen "Moms" cover an average of six to seven fire calls a week in a 24-square mile area.

A five-foot-two, 120-pound brunette bundle of energy named Frances Roth, mother of four ranging from 15 to 21, runs the volunteer fire brigade which was organized 10 years ago. She isn't chief — the chief is a man — but it doesn't take long to realize that she is "strawboss," as she puts it.

"The husbands kept yapping about how they worked all day and so forth, and 'who was going to put out any fires that might start?'" said Mrs. Roth.

"It was pretty clear that fires start whether the boys are home or not," she said. "So, we women figure we could handle them — we didn't want them to worry about us — and, anyway, we decided we probably could be firemen just as well as the men."

It took some nagging, Mrs. Roth said, "before the boys agreed to let us run the fire department during the daytime."

The Castlewood fire district, which has a population of 600 persons, could not afford outside help without a special tax levy or assessment.

Bill Stahm, a construction worker who is Castlewood's fire chief, said "the girls are doing their job well."

The men handle fire calls after suppertime, "unless there's a real big one and the women have to be called in to help," said Mrs. Roth.

There are "fire phones" in six Castlewood area homes, and all are connected like the old-time party-line telephones.

Frances is one of the six women manning telephones, and each knows where the others can be reached if necessary.

Equipment consists of two small pumper trucks, an array of pressure nozzles and hoses, truck mounted water tanks with 500 gallon capacities, and a station wagon full of emergency first-aid equipment such as a resuscitator and oxygen tank.

The fire women dress in rubber "bunker coats" — styled like a fireman's regular coat, but in bright red.

"They didn't cost any more, so we just got red," said Mrs. Roth.

Med Students Can Become Army Officers

The Army has set up a program whereby qualified individuals may become commissioned officers in the Medical Service Corps, Army Reserve, while enrolled in medical or dental schools approved by the American Medical Association or American Dental Association.

Students enrolled in approved medical or dental schools are eligible for appointment as second lieutenants, Medical Service Corps (ARNGUS or USAR, as appropriate) and may participate in the reserve program in Reserve Component Medical Units.

Or by participating in an annual summer training program. Such participation, according to the local recruiting office, not only accrues immediate benefits, but also serves to fulfill the statutory obligated requirements for reserve military training under the provisions of current legislation.

The local recruiter, Sgt. Thomas Walbert, said students appointed under this program will be assigned to one of the following:

A reserve troop programmed medical unit to fill an officer space vacancy, where the officer will be authorized pay for (1) attending the scheduled weekly meeting; and (2) the two weeks of active duty for training during the summer.

A USAR control group (annual training) wherein the officer, within funding limitations, will be authorized a tour of active duty training during the summer not to exceed 15 days.

The CENTENNIAL SCRAPBOOK

The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

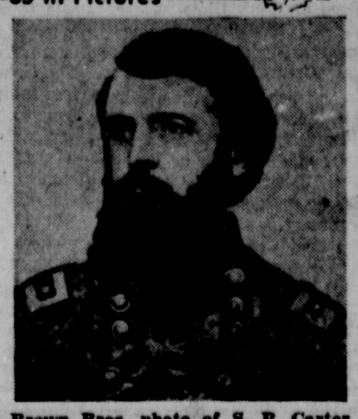

No. 66 That invaluable reference work, "The Dictionary of American Biography," says only one man, Samuel P. Carter, was both a rear admiral, U. S. Navy, and a major general, U. S. Army.

Carter, born in Tennessee in 1819, was given a middle name drawn from Virginia history: Powhatan. After attending College of New Jersey (Princeton), he chose the Navy as a career, served as midshipman in warships in the Pacific and Great Lakes, and was enabled to be one of the first graduates (1846) of the original Naval Academy. He was a veteran of the Mexican War and the East Indian Squadron, with the rank of lieutenant commander, U. S. N., when delegated, opportunistically, in 1861, to round up and train Union troops in his native Tennessee.

Carter stayed with the troops, proved an able leader of mounted forces, and while still on U. S. Navy rolls was appointed early in 1862 a brigadier general of cavalry. That year he led (from Kentucky into Tennessee) a daring cavalry raid that destroyed two important railroad bridges and inflicted 295 casualties on the Rebel forces. Carter's own Union horsemen suffered the loss of only three troopers during the foray. This was recorded as "the first successful Union cavalry operation in the West."

The Tennessean had advanced to command of XXIII Corps, with the rank of major general, when the war ended. He returned then to the Navy, earned promotions to commodore and rear admiral, and retired in 1882.

VA Will Make Payments On Vets Insurance

Premium payments and interest on commercial life insurance policies of reservists and National Guardsmen who are ordered to active duty may be guaranteed by the Veterans Administration under provisions of the Soldiers and Sailors Relief Act, Sam Weston, officer in charge of the local VA office announced yesterday.

Mr. Weston said this protection covers the policyholder's period of active service and two years afterward. It applies only to life policies that do not impose special premium rates for military duties or clauses limiting benefits because of service. The total amount that VA can guarantee may not exceed $10,000 in each case.

Veterans are reminded that the protection is in reality a loan against the policy and that the premiums and interest thus guaranteed must eventually be repaid by the veteran.

The policy also must have been in effect for at least 180 days before the owner entered active service and must be in force on a premium basis at the time of application for protection. Government and National Service Life Insurance policies are not eligible under the act.

Once a policy is protected, it will not lapse or terminate for nonpayment of premiums, indebtedness or interest while the policy holder is on active duty and for two years after his discharge, unless the owner requests withdrawal of the protective provisions.

Mr. Weston said the policyholder must apply for protection on VA Form 9-380 to the insurance company and the VA. These forms are available at the VA office in the Post Office Building.

Midland Report Reveals Good Fiscal Shape

Mayor Lionel D. Baker of Midland reported yesterday that he has received a report from Lowell M. Sowers Jr., certified public accountant, setting forth the "excellent" financial condition of the town.

The report, which covers the year that ended June 30, shows a cash balance of $5,568.82, with accounts payable of $2,568.45.

Fixed assets total $18,656.64 and current assets, including cash in bank, total $6,061.28, making total assets of $24,717.92.

The report made allowances for depreciation on the playground, machinery and equipment, town building and paved streets.

Mr. Sowers praised the work of the council, the treasurer, town clerk and tax collector, for the manner in which the town's fiscal affairs are being conducted.

W.Va. Democrats To Elect Chairman Next Week

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The election next Wednesday of Robert P. McDonough, Parkersburg, as new Democratic West Virginia chairman now appears almost certain.

With the public backing of Gov. W. W. Barron, McDonough probably will be elected with little or no opposition at a Democratic Executive Committee meeting to succeed Hulett C. Smith, Beckley. Smith, state commerce commissioner, said earlier he would resign at the meeting.

There had been some reports that certain other candidates were being pushed by factions of the party. But Barron's clear backing of McDonough is expected to kill off anyone else's chances.

Barron had made it fairly clear nearly three months ago that he would like to see McDonough in the job. He described McDonough as "the leading candidate" when Smith said he would step down as chairman on becoming state commerce commissioner July 14.

The governor said he was not attempting to "dictate to the party" but as its titular head "I would be remiss in my duties if I failed to speak clearly and forcefully in what I consider to be the best interests of the party."

He described McDonough, who came into the party spotlight when he headed President Kennedy's primary campaign in West Virginia last year, as "the ablest man available to do the job that needs to be done."

Barron added that the party needs "a strong, aggressive state chairman" and that he believes McDonough is that man.

Med Students Can Become Army Officers

The Army has set up a program whereby qualified individuals may become commissioned officers in the Medical Service Corps, Army Reserve, while enrolled in medical or dental schools approved by the American Medical Association or American Dental Association.

Students enrolled in approved medical or dental schools are eligible for appointment as second lieutenants, Medical Service Corps (ARNGUS or USAR, as appropriate) and may participate in the reserve program in Reserve Component Medical Units.

Or by participating in an annual summer training program. Such participation, according to the local recruiting office, not only accrues immediate benefits, but also serves to fulfill the statutory obligated requirements for reserve military training under the provisions of current legislation.

The local recruiter, Sgt. Thomas Walbert, said students appointed under this program will be assigned to one of the following:

A reserve troop programmed medical unit to fill an officer space vacancy, where the officer will be authorized pay for (1) attending the scheduled weekly meeting; and (2) the two weeks of active duty for training during the summer.

A USAR control group (annual training) wherein the officer, within funding limitations, will be authorized a tour of active duty training during the summer not to exceed 15 days.

The War for the Union 1861-65 in Pictures

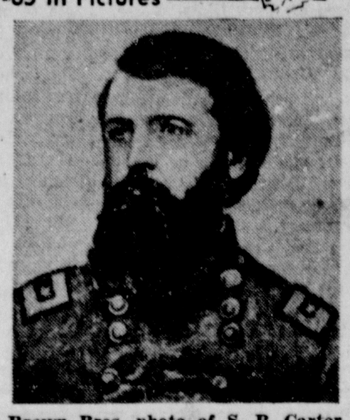

No. 66 That invaluable reference work, "The Dictionary of American Biography," says only one man, Samuel P. Carter, was both a rear admiral, U. S. Navy, and a major general, U. S. Army.

Carter, born in Tennessee in 1819, was given a middle name drawn from Virginia history: Powhatan. After attending College of New Jersey (Princeton), he chose the Navy as a career, served as midshipman in warships in the Pacific and Great Lakes, and was enabled to be one of the first graduates (1846) of the original Naval Academy. He was a veteran of the Mexican War and the East Indian Squadron, with the rank of lieutenant commander, U. S. N., when delegated, opportunistically, in 1861, to round up and train Union troops in his native Tennessee.

Carter stayed with the troops, proved an able leader of mounted forces, and while still on U. S. Navy rolls was appointed early in 1862 a brigadier general of cavalry. That year he led (from Kentucky into Tennessee) a daring cavalry raid that destroyed two important railroad bridges and inflicted 295 casualties on the Rebel forces. Carter's own Union horsemen suffered the loss of only three troopers during the foray. This was recorded as "the first successful Union cavalry operation in the West."

The Tennessean had advanced to command of XXIII Corps, with the rank of major general, when the war ended. He returned then to the Navy, earned promotions to commodore and rear admiral, and retired in 1882.

Midland Report Reveals Good Fiscal Shape

Mayor Lionel D. Baker of Midland reported yesterday that he has received a report from Lowell M. Sowers Jr., certified public accountant, setting forth the "excellent" financial condition of the town.

The report, which covers the year that ended June 30, shows a cash balance of $5,568.82, with accounts payable of $2,568.45.

Fixed assets total $18,656.64 and current assets, including cash in bank, total $6,061.28, making total assets of $24,717.92.

The report made allowances for depreciation on the playground, machinery and equipment, town building and paved streets.

Mr. Sowers praised the work of the council, the treasurer, town clerk and tax collector, for the manner in which the town's fiscal affairs are being conducted.

W.Va. Democrats To Elect Chairman Next Week

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The election next Wednesday of Robert P. McDonough, Parkersburg, as new Democratic West Virginia chairman now appears almost certain.

With the public backing of Gov. W. W. Barron, McDonough probably will be elected with little or no opposition at a Democratic Executive Committee meeting to succeed Hulett C. Smith, Beckley. Smith, state commerce commissioner, said earlier he would resign at the meeting.

There had been some reports that certain other candidates were being pushed by factions of the party. But Barron's clear backing of McDonough is expected to kill off anyone else's chances.

Barron had made it fairly clear nearly three months ago that he would like to see McDonough in the job. He described McDonough as "the leading candidate" when Smith said he would step down as chairman on becoming state commerce commissioner July 14.

The governor said he was not attempting to "dictate to the party" but as its titular head "I would be remiss in my duties if I failed to speak clearly and forcefully in what I consider to be the best interests of the party."

He described McDonough, who came into the party spotlight when he headed President Kennedy's primary campaign in West Virginia last year, as "the ablest man available to do the job that needs to be done."

Barron added that the party needs "a strong, aggressive state chairman" and that he believes McDonough is that man.

Construction contracts for the first eight months of 1961 amounted to $501,293,000, an 11 per cent increase.

VA Will Make Payments On Vets Insurance

Premium payments and interest on commercial life insurance policies of reservists and National Guardsmen who are ordered to active duty may be guaranteed by the Veterans Administration under provisions of the Soldiers and Sailors Relief Act, Sam Weston, officer in charge of the local VA office announced yesterday.

Mr. Weston said this protection covers the policyholder's period of active service and two years afterward. It applies only to life policies that do not impose special premium rates for military duties or clauses limiting benefits because of service. The total amount that VA can guarantee may not exceed $10,000 in each case.

Veterans are reminded that the protection is in reality a loan against the policy and that the premiums and interest thus guaranteed must eventually be repaid by the veteran.

The policy also must have been in effect for at least 180 days before the owner entered active service and must be in force on a premium basis at the time of application for protection. Government and National Service Life Insurance policies are not eligible under the act.

Once a policy is protected, it will not lapse or terminate for nonpayment of premiums, indebtedness or interest while the policy holder is on active duty and for two years after his discharge, unless the owner requests withdrawal of the protective provisions.

Mr. Weston said the policyholder must apply for protection on VA Form 9-380 to the insurance company and the VA. These forms are available at the VA office in the Post Office Building.

Buying A Share In The Past

One unusual though relatively minor measure considered by the 87th Congress passed in the waning moments of the session. It provides a $4 million appropriation to save the historic treasures of the Nile River Valley.

More than 300 miles of the valley in Nubian Egypt and the Sudan will be inundated when the construction of the high dam near Aswan is completed. This means that much of the cultural heritage of ancient Egypt will be destroyed unless something is done. These American dollars will do something.

Of the $4 million, $2.5 will go toward the preservation of two large groups of temples at Philae and Abu Simbel and $1.5 million in grants to American archaeological expeditions doing research in Nubia.

The bill aroused considerable opposition and seemed to get nowhere. Some Congressmen could see no reason for spending $4 million on a lot of old stones in faraway Egypt. Others saw the proposal as aid to Nasser and fought it for that reason. But it squeezed through at the last minute.

Nasser and his government have been realistic and broadminded about this project. They have offered to cede half of any archaeological discoveries to parties engaging in excavations if the parties come from nations aiding in the project. This is unprecedented. Egypt generally has allowed very little in the form of archaeological treasures to be taken from the country.

American expeditions may well discover material worth more than the total appropriated, even though they will be forced to work hurriedly in advance of the encroachment of the waters.

In any case, this $4 million, a tiny sum compared to other expenditures approved this year, will be money well spent. Future generations, their knowledge of the past so much the richer, will agree.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

The Gift Of Prophecy

Charles Collingwood who discusses the short-comings of the press for CBS-TV finds that newspapers are weak in the realm of prophecy. He says:

"One of the chronic failures of the press is its inability to decipher the handwriting on the wall. The result is that events, clearly foreshadowed, come as a stunning surprise. Footnote: see Cuba, Laos, the Congo, Angola, Berlin, et cetera, et cetera."

The great TV networks maintain news staffs throughout the world and therefore should be, at least, as prophetic as any other reporters. Never have I seen the radio or TV do a better or as good a reporting job as the newspapers or news services. Collingwood is himself a newsman and although his work is interesting and even charming, the gift of foresight and prophecy is no more his than it is most reporters or, for that matter, evaluators of the State Department or the CIA. Karl von Wiegand of the Hearst Newspapers was very much a prophet and got into trouble because he was so much ahead of his time, that no one believed him.

Collingwood pays me something of a compliment which does not puff me up too much. Not only is the prophet not believed but when he speaks out, men seek a motive. Referring to the Guiana situation, Collingwood said:

"George Sokolsky sounded an alarm on April 4th, but thereafter, the press maintained almost total silence except for occasional remarks by professional anti-Communists like Fulton Lewis Jr. and reports in the conservative papers of speeches by Connecticut's Senator Thomas Dodd, and so forth. And perhaps that is part of the reason the press neglected the Guiana story so long. The anti-Communist specialists had made the story their province, and they have cried 'wolf' so often that most newspapermen back away from their special causes . . . ."

Of course, the anti-Communist specialists would naturally know what the Communists are up to, just as a top-notch baseball reporter has some idea about what is happening in the baseball business.

The reason that newspapers buy what we write and continue to print it year by year is that we provide what others do not have. It is as simple as that. Like every other kind of specialist, an anti-Communist specialist must do an enormous amount of work in his field. Eugene Lyons, for instance, who is such a specialist for the Reader's Digest, labors as diligently in this field as any science reporter does in his. Of course, Lyons is believed no more than I am, not because he cries: "Wolf! Wolf!" too often but because the subject is very complex, requires intensive knowledge and just judgment and sounds quite screwy to those who regard themselves as anti-Communists but do not know what Communism is and those who believe that all human beings are much like themselves, fairly good-natured, practically honest, who know movements by names but little of the substance thereof.

It did not, however, require the gift of prophecy to know the Guiana story. It was clear for all to see for several years. All that was required was diligent reading of the material at hand. As a matter of fact, this was also true of the Cuba story about which there were many correct evaluations while there were also many incorrect evaluations. The anti-Communist specialists were naturally correct for two reasons: first, they know the names of important Communists and therefore knew the names of Che Guevara and Raul Castro which gave them a clue to what was going on; secondly, by diligent labor, they have become accustomed to patterns and grasp rapidly the nature of a movement by the pattern that asserts itself.

Not to show off but to show what it takes to be a specialist, I began to study the Communist movement at Columbia University in 1915 or 1916 under Professor Vladimir Simkhovitch, a keen authority. This was before Lenin seized power in Russia. I went to Russia in 1917 and lived through the first year of the Communist Revolution, observing it daily as a reporter. I then was expelled from Russia and landed in China where for more than 13 years I had an opportunity to study this movement closely. Since 1931, I have been watching this movement in the United States. Since about 1913, I have read the literature of Marxism and its various manifestations.

It is not surprising that I guessed right about Guiana. It would have been astonishing if I did not know what Dr. Cheddi Jagan was up to.

Nixon: The Man In The Middle In California

By Joseph Alsop

WASHINGTON

In the general commotion, little attention has been paid to one of the most interesting aspects of former Vice President Richard M. Nixon's decision to be a candidate for the California governorship.

In brief, Nixon made a rather clear break with the increasingly active and local extreme right of the Republican Party, at the very moment when he was declaring his intentions to seek the Republican Gubernatorial nomination.

The break was revealed by two things Nixon said at the monster press conference at which he announced his candidacy. First he stated that he wanted no part of a right-to-work law for California, thus recording his opposition to the project of the extreme right. Second, he also avowed his opposition to the John Birch Society, which is rapidly becoming the base-organization of the extreme right.

Considering the nature of Nixon's past political backing, this break with the right wing extremists, is a fairly dramatic development. It is not perhaps as dramatic as the row caused by former Goodwin Knight's loud charges that Nixon tried to buy him out of the governorship race, which has been getting all the attention. But it still means a lot when a leading politician cuts himself off from a former source of powerful support.

It must be remembered that Nixon, 'though a moderate himself, was always the favored candidate of the Republican right-wingers until the emergence of the new right-wing hero, Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona.

In 1960, the Goldwater movement had not ripened to the point where it constituted a real threat to Nixon. Although Goldwater had enough backers to play a conspicuous role at the Republican Convention in 1960, Nixon then got the vast majority of right-wing delegates.

But one of the main results of Nixon's defeat by President Kennedy — in purely Republican terms, perhaps the most conspicuous single result—was to cut Nixon off from his former right-wing backing. The extremists in the Republican Party all share the opinion which Sen. Goldwater himself has quite openly expressed, that Nixon lost because he "did not fight hard enough." They are bitter about it, too.

Reports from California indicate that the shift there has been extra sharp. In the business community, especially numerous former Nixon enthusiasts have gone over to Goldwater, or even beyond Goldwater, into the John Birch Society. Furthermore, the extreme Republican right-wingers have their own candidate in the Gubernatorial primary, in the person of the youthful Republican Leader of the State Assembly, Joseph Shell.

Thus Nixon may be expected to lose votes on the right to Shell, while he contends for more moderate Republican votes with Knight, the glad-handing continuator of Earl Warren tradition. It is not clear, as yet, whether the former Lt. Governor under Knight, Harold G. Powers, will also stay in the race; but he seems most likely to withdraw in the end. Whatever Powers does, however, Nixon is now the man in the middle, in this most significant of all the Republican contests before the 1962 election. The outcome will affect the party's future in more ways than one. Even if Nixon wins the nomination, for instance, Sen. Goldwater still stands to gain materially if his fellow right-winger, Shell, makes a serious showing against a candidate of Nixon's national reputation.

It is fitting, however, for Nixon to be the man in the middle in California, for this is plainly the national posture he now means to adopt. If all goes well for him, he will not merely be Governor of California. He will also offer the most obvious median choice halfway between Sen. Goldwater and Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York.

It is entirely possible that all will not go well for Nixon. The California Republican primary looks rough. At this stage many local wiseacres think that after such a primary, Nixon will have no better than an even chance to beat incumbent Gov. Pat Brown.

But if Nixon is nominated and elected, he will have to out-Sherman Gen. Sherman, in order to prevent a strong draft-Nixon movement by those Republicans who do not want their party to move left with Rockefeller or right with Goldwater.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

CD CHIEFS—The metropolitan area of the nation's capital is generally considered to be the No. 1 Soviet nuclear target in the event of a war. Yet, only one of seven area community Civil Defense chiefs has followed his own advice on the matter of having a home fallout shelter.

The lone official possessing a fallout shelter is the civil defense chief of Montgomery County in Maryland, adjacent to Washington's borders. He's had one for the last three years.

The six others have so far failed to heed the warnings in their own pamphlets, which state that "everyone, even those far from a likely target, would need shelter from fallout."

The Montgomery County official said he had his shelter built because "my conscience bothered me and I had to do something." He keeps it stocked with food, water, a portable radio and a chemical toilet.

Several of the other defense officials asked that their names not be used because their lack of a shelter would be professionally embarrassing.

One said he lived in a bachelor apartment, another said his family "plans to go somewhere else in the event of an attack," but that he's going to build a shelter anyway because it's becoming embarrassing for him not to have one. A third said, "I have a very good basement, with access to a well."

One of the six says an apple tree in his backyard will have to go, because his cellar is not adequate, and although he's been putting the day off, that apple tree is about to come down.

Navy And Air Force Steer Clear Of John Birch Society Hoopla

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — The U. S. Navy and Air Force are keeping strictly aloof from the John Birch un-Americanism hoopla which the Army fell for in San Antonio, Germany, and other areas. They don't want to make headlines with Gen. Edwin Walker incidents.

When Culver City, Calif., wanted to use the Navy Band for a so-called "freedom program" featuring the film, "Communism on the Map," Adm. Daniel F. Smith, Chief of Navy Information, shied away. He had already seen what happened at an earlier rally at Santa Monica and knew that this film carried innuendo that Harry Truman, his former commander-in-chief, was a traitor.

Going into the office of Assistant Secretary of Defense Arthur Sylvester, Admiral Smith said:

"Unless you order me to do so, I shall not permit the Navy Band to play at the Culver City rally."

Sylvester emphatically agreed.

Earlier, the 4th Army got itself unmeshed in a Junior Chamber of Commerce "seminar" on Communism at San Antonio which split the town wide open. The Air Force at San Antonio is a much bigger and more important unit of national defense, but it stayed strictly aloof.

The 4th Army, however, under the command of Lt. Gen. Donald Booth, issued official orders giving "retirement point credit to army personnel who attend the seminar. Personnel from this office will be available at the Municipal Auditorium (just inside the main entrance) to assist individual reservists in preparing DA form 1380 for the award of point credit," read the official order.

"Request that all recipients of this letter give the seminar wide publicity," continued the order. "Particularly desire that you inform all possible enlisted reservists of the details of the seminar, to include the award of point credit and the tentative program."

The seminar for which the reservists got credit was filled with invective and innuendo against the late President Roosevelt, the late Gen. George Marshall, and former Secretary of State Dean Acheson. Listening to these diatribes, according to the 4th Army official order, entitled Army reservists to credit.

Fraternal Oversight

President Kennedy almost overlooked a well-known cabinet officer when he signed the juvenile delinquency control bill into law. He used a number of pens in the signing, then handed them to members of Congress who sponsored the law — John Brademas of Indiana and Edith Green of Oregon, Democrats; Sen. Jacob Javits of New York, Republican; and Democratic Sen. Tom Dodd of Connecticut.

Kennedy then began passing out the remaining pens to other supporters of the legislation — Democratic Rep. Robert Giaimo of Connecticut and GOP Rep. Carroll Kearns of Pennsylvania. Suddenly Kearns broke in:

"Just a minute. Stop the line, Mr. President. You're forgetting Bobby."

"Oh, we have one for him, also," said the President, handing a pen to his brother.

Rabble-Rousing Band Wagon

It continued: "One of the biggest scandals in modern history is about to break. A member of the U. S. Senate who exerts great influence with the White House has been caught red-handed in a recommendation which patriotic members of Congress brand as a transmission belt to treason, if not treason itself.

"You will have difficulty believing what I am about to tell you, but I know what I am talking about. High officials in the armed services are receiving orders out of the Pentagon to the effect that officers who make extremely strong statements against Communism will be disciplined."

"With tears in my soul," he wrote, "I appeal to you to stand with us with your money, your prayers, and your moral support as you have never stood before. Some people who receive this could really give generously if they so desired. . . . .let the humble giver be honored. . . . .insert the coupon in the enclosed self-addressed envelope which requires no postage and rush to the nearest mail box."

Not So Mysterious

The mysterious Senator that Smith referred to was Sen. William Fulbright of Arkansas, and the secret memo was so non-secret that Fulbright himself published it in the Congressional Record. He also made a speech on the Senate floor — neither mysterious, nor secret.

The memo was addressed to Secretary of Defense McNamara, calling attention to the fact that the military were getting mixed up in patrisan politics along with some of the big munitions makers — just as retiring President Eisenhower warned in his farewell speech to the nation.

Apparently Gerald L. K. Smith's money-raising letter didn't bring results, so he followed it up with a second appeal headed "stop treason!!!" it said:

"A few days ago I sent out a confidential letter to a few friends. Since that letter went out we have learned the name of the mystery Senator who wrote the treason memo. . . . .

"The fight is on," continued Smith, getting down to the real purpose of his letter. "Help us fight. We need money. Enough did not come as a result of the earlier letter. Stop treason!! Give again!! GLKS."

Note—In his farewell address to the American people, retiring President Eisenhower warned of what Sen. Fulbright has warned against — the influence of a combination of "an immense military establishment and a large arms industry — we must guard against the acquisition of unwarranted influence by the military-industrial complex," cautioned Eisenhower.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

My father and I were burying the baseball season. Big John is a true aficionado. In front of the television set, he makes every play, sets up every bunt, and makes all the long heaves from center to the plate. He played some second base before the turn of the century and he saves his bitterness for the players he likes best.

He saw the first game ever played in Yankee Stadium and, if he lives long enough, he'll see the last. John has been a Yankee fan all along and nothing these days gives him the emotional satisfaction of watching the New York American League team mop up the opposition.

His hair is white, his face is lean, and the blue eyes never leave the TV set, even if time has been called because of rain. Like most old-timers, he thinks that the game has lost much in recent years.

"These ballplayers," he says scornfully, "must be made of glass. Almost every time there's a close play at second, one player writhes on the ground and the trainer comes running out, the manager, and half the team. Time is called and, when the kid finally gets to his feet and limps around, the crowd applauds his guts.

"What guts? Maris complained that the baseball writers were bothering him with questions about beating Babe Ruth's record of 60 homers. It made him nervous. Ruth was never worried about questions, or whether anyone would pitch to him or not. Many a morning he showed up so hung over he could hardly see the outfield from the plate."

Gehrig never missed a game season after season until an illness came along that took him away. Grover Cleveland Alexander, on the Cards, was too old for anything but a saloon stool when he was called upon to pitch to Tony Lazzeri in the World Series. He threw three low and away and fanned the kid.

Today, it's all home runs. My father doesn't believe that the ball is any livelier than in the old days. The deluge of homers is due to the fact that the crowd comes to see home runs. It's the big payoff and every anemic player who learns to pull the ball down the line 320 feet is a killer.

Mantle is my father's big disappointment. No matter how well Mickey does, my father says: "He can do better. He's potentially greater than any ballplayer I ever saw, if he ever learns to stop daydreaming. He has no drive. Maris is not a good hitter, in spite of all the homers he hits."

We sat all afternoon at our private wake. "What ever became of the place hitter?" he said, shaking his head. "Ty Cobb — and, in recent years, Don Mueller — used to get up to the plate and look for a hole in the infield and drill a ball through it like a pool player aiming for a pocket.

"Today, they drag themselves to the plate as though nobody loves them, and then they stand there pulling on the cap, digging small graves with their cleats, rubbing their eyes, and, if you wait long enough, they will lift the bat and waggle it. Sickening."

What about the pitchers? I said. He snorted. There are no pitchers, he said. There are throwers. Fast throwers and junk throwers. A pitcher is a man with an arm, a mind, and courage. "The last one I saw was Sal Maglie. He had the moxie to throw a wide curve on a three and two count with the bags loaded.

"You know anybody who does that today? Whitey Ford is the top pitcher and he's gone by the seventh inning. He's good for half a game. In other days — and I don't mean way back when Ie was playing — ball players sat up half the night studying baseball.

"I knew Eddie Mayo of the Tigers personally. He wasn't the greatest, but he was good enough to last. Eddie would read the evening paper and then sit and invent plays, or replay ones which hadn't turned out right. Willie Mays was the only man I ever saw whom study would hurt. He had so much natural baseball in him that any coaching at all would make him less of a player. Eddie Stanky had more courage and less talent than anyone else in the majors.

"DiMaggio was so good that, even when he was taped up from the stomach to the chest, they wouldn't leave him off the lineup. He played, sick or well, and he never complained. Pitchers? Well, give me a few like Spahn and Feller and Roberts and Ruffing and Hubbell and Pennock. Pierce was another good man.

"The record book only tells half the story. You have to see how these men handled themselves in dangerous situations. Today, they call a meeting of the board of directors before they throw the ball."

My mother never cared for baseball. She used to holler at my father when the game was on. She died four years ago. Now, he wishes she was back, just to turn the set off in the middle of an exciting play. . .

Russian Food Producing Methods Inefficient

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Half of the Russian people are engaged in producing food, but their methods are said to be inefficient and inadequate. According to Nutrition Items, canning and freezing methods are 30 years behind ours. Some of their trouble stems from a shortage of packaging materials such as cardboard, glass, paper, and metals.

Meats and grains are scarce. There are only 2 million refrigerators in Russia. As a result 50 per cent of all their meat is made into sausage. The report also says beef and pork are the most abundant meats but the animals are underfed and undernourished. The Russian supply of vegetables and fruits is increasing and milk is produced in quantities equal to ours, but they have a distribution problem.

Despite these conditions, the typical Russian diet is adequate even though less than 3,000 calories a day. The bulk (56 per cent) is made up of grains and potatoes; 15 per cent is animal protein; 10 per cent fats and oils, and 10 per cent sugar.

Russians eat six times as much bread as the average American. This may explain why so many of their women are on the stout side. On the other hand, we are criticized for consuming too many of our calories in the form of animal fat. This is said to raise our blood cholesterol and encourage hardening of the arteries.

There is no doubt that the chance of developing a stroke or heart attack is greater when the cholesterol level of the blood is high. But many physicians are not convinced that fats in the diet are to blame entirely.

What a revolution we would have if the quality protein foods such as fine beef, pork, and lamb —along with fats such as cream and butter—were shown to be the culprit in arteriosclerosis. This revolution would not be fought with bombs and guns but many industries would be hurt, if not devastated.

SCARLET FEVER

Mrs. T. writes: How long does scarlet fever last?

REPLY

Two weeks, provided complications do not develop. Some health departments suggest an additional week away from school.

ARRESTED

E. B. writes: If sputum tests are negative for a long time, is tuberculosis considered arrested?

REPLY

Yes, provided there are no chest X-ray signs of progress of the disease.

CALCIUM REDUCTION

R. W. writes: If a person is on a low calcium diet for kidney stones, won't lack of this mineral weaken the bones?

REPLY

No, because it is difficult to eliminate all the calcium from the diet.

EGGS AND FAT

G. E. S. writes: Are eggs just as bad as fats for hardening of the arteries?

REPLY

No. Eggs contain cholesterol but the saturated fatty acids in animal fats are more likely to raise the cholesterol level of the blood. On the other hand, there is no need to be concerned if the cholesterol level is normal.

RADIOACTIVE IODINE

H. E. F. writes: Is an atomic cocktail (used to examine the thyroid) harmful to other organs of the body? I always have understood that radium produces cancer.

REPLY

Radioactive products, properly used, will not lead to cancer. But they are not recommended in young people because we do not know what will happen 50 years from now. So far, no one has developed cancer from such treatments.

ABDOMINAL DISTRESS

I. B. writes: What would cause a gall bladder attack four years after the gall bladder was removed?

REPLY

It's obvious that the attack could not be due to the gall bladder. A stone may have developed in the common duct, the passageway through which bile flows from the liver into the intestine. Other abdominal disorders mimic gall bladder trouble, including bowel spasm, peptic ulcer, and kidney disease.

CHRONIC COUGH

E. W. writes: When my husband catches cold, the cough hangs on for months. Do you think his lungs are diseased?

REPLY

Possibly. A chest X-ray will answer the question in a few minutes. Colds that hang on usually are caused by (1) a chronic lung disorder; (2) irritation such as from smoking or air pollution; (3) persistent infection in the sinuses or tonsils; and (4) allergy.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

When Brendan Behan deserted his favorite Dublin pubs for a look-see at New York, an enthusiastic Irish friend high in the police department provided him with an official escort for his first go round the town. One of the policemen remarked, "You being such a celebrity now, Mr. Behan, I guess you're pretty accustomed to having a police escort."

"That I am," agreed Behan with a loud guffaw, "though usually I'm in handcuffs."

A ventriloquist told veteran showman Bill Kennedy he had developed the sock novelty act of the year. "I throw my mother-in-law's voice," he beamed. "What's so unusual about that?" scoffed Kennedy. "You don't dig this yet," the ventriloquist explained earnestly. "I throw her voice while it's still in her!"

Buying A Share In The Past

One unusual though relatively minor measure considered by the 87th Congress passed in the waning moments of the session. It provides a $4 million appropriation to save the historic treasures of the Nile River Valley.

More than 300 miles of the valley in Nubian Egypt and the Sudan will be inundated when the construction of the high dam near Aswan is completed. This means that much of the cultural heritage of ancient Egypt will be destroyed unless something is done. These American dollars will do something.

Of the $4 million, $2.5 will go toward the preservation of two large groups of temples at Philae and Abu Simbel and $1.5 million in grants to American archaeological expeditions doing research in Nubia.

The bill aroused considerable opposition and seemed to get nowhere. Some Congressmen could see no reason for spending $4 million on a lot of old stones in faraway Egypt. Others saw the proposal as aid to Nasser and fought it for that reason. But it squeezed through at the last minute.

Nasser and his government have been realistic and broadminded about this project. They have offered to cede half of any archaeological discoveries to parties engaging in excavations if the parties come from nations aiding in the project. This is unprecedented. Egypt generally has allowed very little in the form of archaeological treasures to be taken from the country.

American expeditions may well discover material worth more than the total appropriated, even though they will be forced to work hurriedly in advance of the encroachment of the waters.

In any case, this $4 million, a tiny sum compared to other expenditures approved this year, will be money well spent. Future generations, their knowledge of the past so much the richer, will agree.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

The Gift Of Prophecy

Charles Collingwood who discusses the short-comings of the press for CBS-TV finds that newspapers are weak in the realm of prophecy. He says:

"One of the chronic failures of the press is its inability to decipher the handwriting on the wall. The result is that events, clearly foreshadowed, come as a stunning surprise. Footnote: see Cuba, Laos, the Congo, Angola, Berlin, et cetera, et cetera."

The great TV networks maintain news staffs throughout the world and therefore should be, at least, as prophetic as any other reporters. Never have I seen the radio or TV do a better or as good a reporting job as the newspapers or news services. Collingwood is himself a newsman and although his work is interesting and even charming, the gift of foresight and prophecy is no more his than it is most reporters or, for that matter, evaluators of the State Department or the CIA. Karl von Wiegand of the Hearst Newspapers was very much a prophet and got into trouble because he was so much ahead of his time, that no one believed him.

Collingwood pays me something of a compliment which does not puff me up too much. Not only is the prophet not believed but when he speaks out, men seek a motive. Referring to the Guiana situation, Collingwood said:

"George Sokolsky sounded an alarm on April 4th, but thereafter, the press maintained almost total silence except for occasional remarks by professional anti-Communists like Fulton Lewis Jr. and reports in the conservative papers of speeches by Connecticut's Senator Thomas Dodd, and so forth. And perhaps that is part of the reason the press neglected the Guiana story so long. The anti-Communist specialists had made the story their province, and they have cried 'wolf' so often that most newspapermen back away from their special causes . . . ."

Of course, the anti-Communist specialists would naturally know what the Communists are up to, just as a top-notch baseball reporter has some idea about what is happening in the baseball business.

The reason that newspapers buy what we write and continue to print it year by year is that we provide what others do not have. It is as simple as that. Like every other kind of specialist, an anti-Communist specialist must do an enormous amount of work in his field. Eugene Lyons, for instance, who is such a specialist for the Reader's Digest, labors as diligently in this field as any science reporter does in his. Of course, Lyons is believed no more than I am, not because he cries: "Wolf! Wolf!" too often but because the subject is very complex, requires intensive knowledge and just judgment and sounds quite screwy to those who regard themselves as anti-Communists but do not know what Communism is and those who believe that all human beings are much like themselves, fairly good-natured, practically honest, who know movements by names but little of the substance thereof.

It did not, however, require the gift of prophecy to know the Guiana story. It was clear for all to see for several years. All that was required was diligent reading of the material at hand. As a matter of fact, this was also true of the Cuba story about which there were many correct evaluations while there were also many incorrect evaluations. The anti-Communist specialists were naturally correct for two reasons: first, they know the names of important Communists and therefore knew the names of Che Guevara and Raul Castro which gave them a clue to what was going on; secondly, by diligent labor, they have become accustomed to patterns and grasp rapidly the nature of a movement by the pattern that asserts itself.

Not to show off but to show what it takes to be a specialist, I began to study the Communist movement at Columbia University in 1915 or 1916 under Professor Vladimir Simkhovitch, a keen authority. This was before Lenin seized power in Russia. I went to Russia in 1917 and lived through the first year of the Communist Revolution, observing it daily as a reporter. I then was expelled from Russia and landed in China where for more than 13 years I had an opportunity to study this movement closely. Since 1931, I have been watching this movement in the United States. Since about 1913, I have read the literature of Marxism and its various manifestations.

It is not surprising that I guessed right about Guiana. It would have been astonishing if I did not know what Dr. Cheddi Jagan was up to.

California Primary

Nixon: The Man In The Middle In California

By Joseph Alsop

WASHINGTON

In the general commotion, little attention has been paid to one of the most interesting aspects of former Vice President Richard M. Nixon's decision to be a candidate for the California governorship.

In brief, Nixon made a rather clear break with the increasingly active and local extreme right of the Republican Party, at the very moment when he was declaring his intentions to seek the Republican Gubernatorial nomination.

The break was revealed by two things Nixon said at the monster press conference at which he announced his candidacy. First he stated that he wanted no part of a right-to-work law for California, thus recording his opposition to the project of the extreme right. Second, he also avowed his opposition to the John Birch Society, which is rapidly becoming the base-organization of the extreme right.

Considering the nature of Nixon's past political backing, this break with the right wing extremists, is a fairly dramatic development. It is not perhaps as dramatic as the row caused by former Goodwin Knight's loud charges that Nixon tried to buy him out of the governorship race, which has been getting all the attention. But it still means a lot when a leading politician cuts himself off from a former source of powerful support.

It must be remembered that Nixon, 'though a moderate himself, was always the favored candidate of the Republican right-wingers until the emergence of the new right-wing hero, Sen. Barry Goldwater of Arizona.

In 1960, the Goldwater movement had not ripened to the point where it constituted a real threat to Nixon. Although Goldwater had enough backers to play a conspicuous role at the Republican Convention in 1960, Nixon then got the vast majority of right-wing delegates.

But one of the main results of Nixon's defeat by President Kennedy — in purely Republican terms, perhaps the most conspicuous single result—was to cut Nixon off from his former right-wing backing. The extremists in the Republican Party all share the opinion which Sen. Goldwater himself has quite openly expressed, that Nixon lost because he "did not fight hard enough." They are bitter about it, too.

Reports from California indicate that the shift there has been extra sharp. In the business community, especially numerous former Nixon enthusiasts have gone over to Goldwater, or even beyond Goldwater, into the John Birch Society. Furthermore, the extreme Republican right-wingers have their own candidate in the Gubernatorial primary, in the person of the youthful Republican Leader of the State Assembly, Joseph Shell.

Thus Nixon may be expected to lose votes on the right to Shell, while he contends for more moderate Republican votes with Knight, the glad-handing continuator of Earl Warren tradition. It is not clear, as yet, whether the former Lt. Governor under Knight, Harold G. Powers, will also stay in the race; but he seems most likely to withdraw in the end. Whatever Powers does, however, Nixon is now the man in the middle, in this most significant of all the Republican contests before the 1962 election. The outcome will affect the party's future in more ways than one. Even if Nixon wins the nomination, for instance, Sen. Goldwater still stands to gain materially if his fellow right-winger, Shell, makes a serious showing against a candidate of Nixon's national reputation.

It is fitting, however, for Nixon to be the man in the middle in California, for this is plainly the national posture he now means to adopt. If all goes well for him, he will not merely be Governor of California. He will also offer the most obvious median choice halfway between Sen. Goldwater and Gov. Nelson Rockefeller of New York.

It is entirely possible that all will not go well for Nixon. The California Republican primary looks rough. At this stage many local wiseacres think that after such a primary, Nixon will have no better than an even chance to beat incumbent Gov. Pat Brown.

But if Nixon is nominated and elected, he will have to out-Sherman Gen. Sherman, in order to prevent a strong draft-Nixon movement by those Republicans who do not want their party to move left with Rockefeller or right with Goldwater.

Inside Washington

By Henry Cathcart

CD CHIEFS—The metropolitan area of the nation's capital is generally considered to be the No. 1 Soviet nuclear target in the event of a war. Yet, only one of seven area community Civil Defense chiefs has followed his own advice on the matter of having a home fallout shelter.

The lone official possessing a fallout shelter is the civil defense chief of Montgomery County in Maryland, adjacent to Washington's borders. He's had one for the last three years.

The six others have so far failed to heed the warnings in their own pamphlets, which state that "everyone, even those far from a likely target, would need shelter from fallout."

The Montgomery County official said he had his shelter built because "my conscience bothered me and I had to do something." He keeps it stocked with food, water, a portable radio and a chemical toilet.

Several of the other defense officials asked that their names not be used because their lack of a shelter would be professionally embarrassing.

One said he lived in a bachelor apartment, another said his family "plans to go somewhere else in the event of an attack," but that he's going to build a shelter anyway because it's becoming embarrassing for him not to have one. A third said, "I have a very good basement, with access to a well."

One of the six says an apple tree in his backyard will have to go, because his cellar is not adequate, and although he's been putting the day off, that apple tree is about to come down.

Navy And Air Force Steer Clear Of John Birch Society Hoopla

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON — The U. S. Navy and Air Force are keeping strictly aloof from the John Birch un-Americanism hoopla which the Army fell for in San Antonio, Germany, and other areas. They don't want to make headlines with Gen. Edwin Walker incidents.

When Culver City, Calif., wanted to use the Navy Band for a so-called "freedom program" featuring the film, "Communism on the Map," Adm. Daniel F. Smith, Chief of Navy Information, shied away. He had already seen what happened at an earlier rally at Santa Monica and knew that this film carried innuendo that Harry Truman, his former commander-in-chief, was a traitor.

Going into the office of Assistant Secretary of Defense Arthur Sylvester, Admiral Smith said:

"Unless you order me to do so, I shall not permit the Navy Band to play at the Culver City rally."

Sylvester emphatically agreed.

Earlier, the 4th Army got itself unmeshed in a Junior Chamber of Commerce "seminar" on Communism at San Antonio which split the town wide open. The Air Force at San Antonio is a much bigger and more important unit of national defense, but it stayed strictly aloof.

The 4th Army, however, under the command of Lt. Gen. Donald Booth, issued official orders giving "retirement point credit to army personnel who attend the seminar. Personnel from this office will be available at the Municipal Auditorium (just inside the main entrance) to assist individual reservists in preparing DA form 1380 for the award of point credit," read the official order.

"Request that all recipients of this letter give the seminar wide publicity," continued the order. "Particularly desire that you inform all possible enlisted reservists of the details of the seminar, to include the award of point credit and the tentative program."

The seminar for which the reservists got credit was filled with invective and innuendo against the late President Roosevelt, the late Gen. George Marshall, and former Secretary of State Dean Acheson. Listening to these diatribes, according to the 4th Army official order, entitled Army reservists to credit.

Fraternal Oversight

President Kennedy almost overlooked a well-known cabinet officer when he signed the juvenile delinquency control bill into law. He used a number of pens in the signing, then handed them to members of Congress who sponsored the law — John Brademas of Indiana and Edith Green of Oregon, Democrats; Sen. Jacob Javits of New York, Republican; and Democratic Sen. Tom Dodd of Connecticut.

Kennedy then began passing out the remaining pens to other supporters of the legislation — Democratic Rep. Robert Giaimo of Connecticut and GOP Rep. Carroll Kearns of Pennsylvania. Suddenly Kearns broke in:

"Just a minute. Stop the line, Mr. President. You're forgetting Bobby."

"Oh, we have one for him, also," said the President, handing a pen to his brother.

Rabble-Rousing Band Wagon

It continued: "One of the biggest scandals in modern history is about to break. A member of the U. S. Senate who exerts great influence with the White House has been caught red-handed in a recommendation which patriotic members of Congress brand as a transmission belt to treason, if not treason itself.

"You will have difficulty believing what I am about to tell you, but I know what I am talking about. High officials in the armed services are receiving orders out of the Pentagon to the effect that officers who make extremely strong statements against Communism will be disciplined."

"With tears in my soul," he wrote, "I appeal to you to stand with us with your money, your prayers, and your moral support as you have never stood before. Some people who receive this could really give generously if they so desired. . . . .let the humble giver be honored. . . . .insert the coupon in the enclosed self-addressed envelope which requires no postage and rush to the nearest mail box."

Not So Mysterious

The mysterious Senator that Smith referred to was Sen. William Fulbright of Arkansas, and the secret memo was so non-secret that Fulbright himself published it in the Congressional Record. He also made a speech on the Senate floor — neither mysterious, nor secret.

The memo was addressed to Secretary of Defense McNamara, calling attention to the fact that the military were getting mixed up in patrisan politics along with some of the big munitions makers — just as retiring President Eisenhower warned in his farewell speech to the nation.

Apparently Gerald L. K. Smith's money-raising letter didn't bring results, so he followed it up with a second appeal headed "stop treason!!!" it said:

"A few days ago I sent out a confidential letter to a few friends. Since that letter went out we have learned the name of the mystery Senator who wrote the treason memo. . . . .

"The fight is on," continued Smith, getting down to the real purpose of his letter. "Help us fight. We need money. Enough did not come as a result of the earlier letter. Stop treason!! Give again!! GLKS."

Note—In his farewell address to the American people, retiring President Eisenhower warned of what Sen. Fulbright has warned against — the influence of a combination of "an immense military establishment and a large arms industry — we must guard against the acquisition of unwarranted influence by the military-industrial complex," cautioned Eisenhower.

Jim Bishop: Reporter

By Jim Bishop

My father and I were burying the baseball season. Big John is a true aficionado. In front of the television set, he makes every play, sets up every bunt, and makes all the long heaves from center to the plate. He played some second base before the turn of the century and he saves his bitterness for the players he likes best.

He saw the first game ever played in Yankee Stadium and, if he lives long enough, he'll see the last. John has been a Yankee fan all along and nothing these days gives him the emotional satisfaction of watching the New York American League team mop up the opposition.

His hair is white, his face is lean, and the blue eyes never leave the TV set, even if time has been called because of rain. Like most old-timers, he thinks that the game has lost much in recent years.

"These ballplayers," he says scornfully, "must be made of glass. Almost every time there's a close play at second, one player writhes on the ground and the trainer comes running out, the manager, and half the team. Time is called and, when the kid finally gets to his feet and limps around, the crowd applauds his guts.

"What guts? Maris complained that the baseball writers were bothering him with questions about beating Babe Ruth's record of 60 homers. It made him nervous. Ruth was never worried about questions, or whether anyone would pitch to him or not. Many a morning he showed up so hung over he could hardly see the outfield from the plate."

Gehrig never missed a game season after season until an illness came along that took him away. Grover Cleveland Alexander, on the Cards, was too old for anything but a saloon stool when he was called upon to pitch to Tony Lazzeri in the World Series. He threw three low and away and fanned the kid.

Today, it's all home runs. My father doesn't believe that the ball is any livelier than in the old days. The deluge of homers is due to the fact that the crowd comes to see home runs. It's the big payoff and every anemic player who learns to pull the ball down the line 320 feet is a killer.

Mantle is my father's big disappointment. No matter how well Mickey does, my father says: "He can do better. He's potentially greater than any ballplayer I ever saw, if he ever learns to stop daydreaming. He has no drive. Maris is not a good hitter, in spite of all the homers he hits."

We sat all afternoon at our private wake. "What ever became of the place hitter?" he said, shaking his head. "Ty Cobb — and, in recent years, Don Mueller — used to get up to the plate and look for a hole in the infield and drill a ball through it like a pool player aiming for a pocket.

"Today, they drag themselves to the plate as though nobody loves them, and then they stand there pulling on the cap, digging small graves with their cleats, rubbing their eyes, and, if you wait long enough, they will lift the bat and waggle it. Sickening."

What about the pitchers? I said. He snorted. There are no pitchers, he said. There are throwers. Fast throwers and junk throwers. A pitcher is a man with an arm, a mind, and courage. "The last one I saw was Sal Maglie. He had the moxie to throw a wide curve on a three and two count with the bags loaded.

"You know anybody who does that today? Whitey Ford is the top pitcher and he's gone by the seventh inning. He's good for half a game. In other days — and I don't mean way back when Ie was playing — ball players sat up half the night studying baseball.

I. B. writes: What would cause a gall bladder attack four years after the gall bladder was removed?

REPLY

It's obvious that the attack could not be due to the gall bladder. A stone may have developed in the common duct, the passageway through which bile flows from the liver into the intestine. Other abdominal disorders mimic gall bladder trouble, including bowel spasm, peptic ulcer, and kidney disease.

CHRONIC COUGH

E. W. writes: When my husband catches cold, the cough hangs on for months. Do you think his lungs are diseased?

REPLY

Possibly. A chest X-ray will answer the question in a few minutes. Colds that hang on usually are caused by (1) a chronic lung disorder; (2) irritation such as from smoking or air pollution; (3) persistent infection in the sinuses or tonsils; and (4) allergy.

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

By Bennett Cerf

When Brendan Behan deserted his favorite Dublin pubs for a look-see at New York, an enthusiastic Irish friend high in the police department provided him with an official escort for his first go round the town. One of the policemen remarked, "You being such a celebrity now, Mr. Behan, I guess you're pretty accustomed to having a police escort."

"That I am," agreed Behan with a loud guffaw, "though usually I'm in handcuffs."

A ventriloquist told veteran showman Bill Kennedy he had developed the sock novelty act of the year. "I throw my mother-in-law's voice," he beamed. "What's so unusual about that?" scoffed Kennedy. "You don't dig this yet," the ventriloquist explained

Visitors Crowd Elkins At 25th Forest Festival

ELKINS, W. Va. (UPI)—Downtown Elkins had a carnival air Thursday — complete with music, tents and exhibits — at the opening of the 25th annual Mountain State Forest Festival.

The city was already overcrowded with visitors, some of whom had to seek lodging as far away as Philippi. And the weather was perfect. The bright sunshine accented the beauty of the surrounding countryside.

The first day's activities were highlighted by the arrival of Queen Silvia XXV, Rebecca Bess of Piedmont. She was met at Blackwater Falls State Park by a 20-car caravan of local officials who escorted her to a reception here.

The motorcade stopped at schools all along the way where Miss Bess met the students and received token gifts from them. She will be crowned officially Friday afternoon by Gov. W. W. Barron who returned to his hometown Thursday to participate in the festival.

A dinner was held Thursday night to honor aout 350 special guests. The U. S. Army band arrived to give a pre - coronation concert on Friday.

Fifty-two bands also were on hand to participate in a two-mile-long parade Saturday featuring 35 floats entered by various communities and civic groups.

The lone note of disappointment came from President Kennedy who confirmed by telegram that he would be unable to attend the silver anniversary of the festival. He is scheduled for talks with Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Gromyko Friday.

"I deeply regret that pressing official matters make it impossible for me to join you..." Kennedy said in a wire to festival officials.

"I wish to extend my congratulations to the festival queen and greetings and best wishes to Governor Barron, Senators Randolph and Byrd, Congressman Harley Staggers and all those in attendance at what I am sure will be a very colorful and significant event."

W.Va. Ski Trails Facing Financial Difficulties

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The future success of West Virginia's skiing areas seems to depend a great deal on the interest shown by out-of-state enthusiasts.

The Ski Club of Washington, which has about 800 members and has operated ski runs at Cabin Mountain near Davis, Tucker County, for several years, says it may be forced to drop its operation unless patronage picks up this year.

The ski club, one of the largest in the sport, told the State Commerce Department a lack of patronage the past two years has forced it to dip into regional membership dues to finance the Davis operation this year.

"And unless we are successful this season," the club said, "we are afraid the future of Cabin Mountain as a skiing area will be dim."

The Commerce Department has been trying to work out some of the club's problems since learning of the Davis situation. The club said it was "encouraged to have the state of West Virginia show concern over the future of winter sports in the Canaan Valley."

The department is hoping to boost lagging support particularly by non-club members using the facilities.

The Cabin Mountain facilities will be open each weekend starting in December and running through March. Three-day weekends will be Dec. 23-25 and Dec. 30-Jan. 1.

The Commerce Department said another skiing area near Davis, Weiss Knob, also will be operated again this year, as will Bald Knob near Beckley. Gregg's Knob near Terra Alta will not reopen.

Two Area Dealers Attend Conference

KEYSER — Two local men, accompanied by their wives, have returned from Washington where they attended the annual business meeting of the McCullough Chainsaw Dealers.

W. R. Gingerich and his son Donald Gingerich, who operate a business on the McCoole Road, were among many dealers presented special awards for service covering 10 years or more with the company.

During the weekend outing their wives joined them for a tour of the nation's capital and other points of interest.

Historical Society Plans Activities

Reports were made by various committees covering the subjects of "Tents," "Penn Alps Store," "Arts and Crafts," "Posters," "Tours," and "The Sing." Demonstrations were given and a report was made on "Pioneer Kitchens".

The Sing, sponsored by the society, will be held at 4:30 p. m. EST, Friday and Saturday at the Folk Festival. The committee for The Sing includes Paul B. Yoder, chairman, Floyd Bender and Alva Miller.

Miss Viola Broadwater served as recorder for the meeting.

Survey Planned For Shelters In Mineral County

KEYSER — William J. Matthews Jr., state director of Civil Defense, and George Mullen, state field coordinator, attended the Civil Defense meeting held in Ridgeley, with Raymond W. Lee, Mineral County Civil Defense director, as guest speaker.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers is going to make a survey of all public buildings in West Virginia for future public fallout shelters which will be equipped under federal funds. All public buildings will be surveyed and private buildings only at the owner's request.

Charles Leary, Keyser, has resigned as fire coordinator of this area and a replacement has not yet been named. An appointment will be made during a meeting of all fire companies of the area in the near future.

There will be a meeting of all fire companies in Mineral County at the Piedmont Volunteer Fire Department building tonight at 8 o'clock. All companies are asked to have at least two representatives present.

Moorefield Merchants Complete Organization

MOOREFIELD — The Moorefield Merchants Association in meeting Tuesday set up a permanent organization, fixed closing hours for the holiday season, closing hours for the summer months and selected Dollar Dates for 1962. The group also agreed on the holidays to be observed next year.

Named chairman for the group was R. E. Fisher and Mrs. Virginia Bond secretary.

Stores with Christmas merchandise will remain open evenings until 8 p. m. beginning Wednesday, December 13. Saturday closing hours will be 8 p. m. (EST) throughout the year which means during the months daylight time is observed the stores will remain open until 9 p. m.

Holidays to be observed next year will be Decoration Day, Monday, May 30, Wednesday, July 4; Labor Day, Monday September 3, Thanksgiving, Thursday November 22, Christmas, Monday, December 25 and New Year's Day Monday January 1. Veterans Day November 11 will be an optional holiday to be determined by each store as desired. Stores generally will remain open next month on Veterans Day as it falls on Saturday.

Dollar Days will be celebrated on Friday and Saturday February 23 and 24 and on Friday and Saturday August 17 and 18.

The Merchants Association will attempt to put up more elaborate Christmas decorations and hope to purchase a permanent type to be used and added to each year. W. C. Harper, E. L. Puffenberger and Wayne Barr were named the committee to investigate the street decorations.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD — Obviously, Stanley Kramer is very pleased with Judy Garland and Burt Lancaster in "Judgment at at Nuremberg," for he has both of them on a contract to co-star in "A Child Is Waiting."

Judy will do this before she films "The Lonely Stage," and Burt will face the cameras for Kramer before he stars in "The Leopard"— and best of all news is that it will be made right in good old Hollywood at the Revue Studios.

Another member of the "Judgment at Nuremberg" group, Abby Mann, who wrote "Nuremberg," will produce "A Child Is Waiting." The story deals with mentally ill children, and Burt plays a doctor, with Judy as a nurse.

How do you like this combination?—Shirley MacLaine and Bob Mitchum — we hope you do, because you're going to see them together in "Two for the Seesaw," for the Mirisch Bros.

Bob was signed in a matter of hours ago, and, of course, Shirley has always been set for this.

With some of the TV networks saying they may not run certain shows in various series, due to too much violence in them, 20th Century-Fox is in a lucky spot regarding one segment of "Bus Stop."

This is a show "Bus Stop" filmed under the title "Told by an Idiot." It stars Fabian as a teenage killer, and the boy is just plain fabulous. But the show is full of violence, so ABC may reject it.

If this happens, Robert Blees, the "Bus Stop" producer, will shoot an added half hour, and "Told by an Idiot" will be released as a movie in this country. If, however, ABC does run it, 20th will show the movie version only in Europe. Either way, they can't lose.

The battle that was expected in the break-up of Keely Smith and Louis Prima turned into a very amicable divorce. I talked with Keely, and she said, "we both regret the termination of our marriage, and part with only feelings of mutual respect and high regard for each other."

I asked Keely if that meant that she felt she got a break, financially speaking. She said that Louis had been more than fair, but she had promised not to discuss the amount of money with anybody, or the terms of the terms of the agreement.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

You can put it down in your little red book that Elizabeth Taylor is not enciente. I get this right from headquarters. Amazing how these rumors travel.

The photograph that has a place of honor in Ethel Merman's dressing room is that of Barbara Jean, her grandchild, Ethel Jr.'s baby.

The death of Donald Cook was very sad. He will be brought to Portland, Oregon, for burial, and his 24-year-old daughter by Maxine Lewis will attend the funeral. Services also were held at the Little Church Around the Corner in New York.

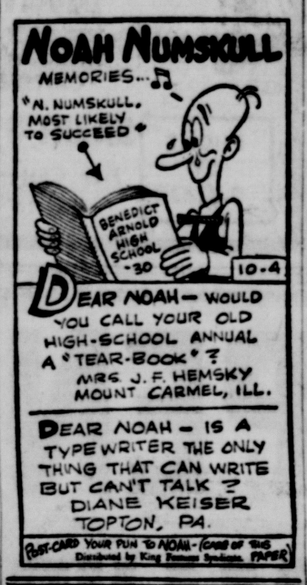

A new book coming out, "The Outlawed" by William R. Cox has both Tony Curtis and Paul Newman bidding for the movie rights.

I certainly would like to have accepted Jack Benny's invitation to be with him today (Thursday) in Waukegan, Illinois, when the Jack Benny High School is dedicated. Illinois is my home state too. Every baby born on Jack Benny Day will be remembered with some cash by the "Penny-pinching" Benny.

That's all today, see you tomorrow.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Enlarged Pores? Scrub Them "Small"!

Those large open pores that usually accompany a very oily complexion will never shrink in size . . . but they can be scrubbed and tightened to appear smaller and less noticeable.

Remember, the pores only show when they are clogged with oily dirt or makeup. They can always be concealed on a clean face. I mean, SUPER-clean . . . as oily skins must always be in order to look fresh, young and blemish-free.

Complete makeup removal, using a non-oily cleanser (especially in cold and windy weather) is essential. But even more important is thorough washing with soap and water, a session that can be twice as long and vigorous as the gentle cleansing permitted dry and sensitive skins.

A coarse washcloth or a complexion brush is a good implement for tackling an oily face. Work the brush or cloth in a circular upward movement, to get an uplifting facial massage at the same time. Don't be too rough on tender skin tissue . . . but be sure to use plenty of energy. Substitute a deep-pore cleanser, if you prefer.

Clearing out all that oil, grime and old makeup will prevent blackheads from forming to stretch and spotlight the pores and perhaps to infect. Holding a warm cloth against the face for a time will help to loosen any stubborn pore matter.

Rinse your face several times in clear cool water, finishing with very cold water, to tighten the skin. (Never, NEVER use ice cubes!)

There are other finishing tricks you can try. Witch hazel or a commercial astringent can be very effective in toning up the skin surface. Several grainy preparations promise the skin a slight planning, for surface smoothness.

A facial mask that you give yourself every week (or even oftener) is an excellent skin softener and toner. Since it steps up blood circulation, it helps guard against breakouts, too.

A simple application of vanishing cream, buttermilk, moistened oatmeal or an egg (yolk first, then the white) is sufficient for an easy and inexpensive mask. And, of course, there are many fine commercial masks available.

Experiment with all of them... and choose the kind that produces the best results for you. You may find that your favorite mask follows the egg-and-oatmeal recipe given in my booklet, "Secrets of Skin Care." For this and other tips in the treatment of abnormally oily skin, you'll want to read this beauty text yourself.

If you will just mail your request to me, John Robert Powers, c/o this newspaper, including 10c and a stamped, self-addressed envelope, your copy will be delivered to you within three weeks.

Transfer Studies

NEW BRUNSWICK, N.J. (UPI) —The center of alcohol studies, which was established at Yale University in 1921, will be transferred to Rutgers University, it was announced Thursday. Dr. Mason W. Gross, Rutgers president, said the institution would be known as the Rutgers Center of Alcohol Studies.

Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: I live in Port Elizabeth, South Africa, but since human problems are the same all over the world, I think you can help me.

My husband is an only son. He is devoted to his thrice-divorced mother although she gave him to an aunt for raising. Before we married I made it clear I did not want to share quarters with her. He agreed, but asked if she might occupy our new flat while we honeymooned. I said "Fine."

When we returned she was settled in our place and made no mention of leaving. After two months I insisted that we find another flat because he didn't have the nerve to ask her to leave.

Now my husband wants to start a family but I fear eventually his mother will ask to live with us and he will be too gutless to refuse. I will then be trapped. Perhaps the time to end the marriage is now, when there are no children.—WORRIED

DEAR WORRIED: If you are seeking an excuse to end your marriage or put off having a family, this is as good as any.

It would be foolish, however, to take such a drastic step in anticipation of a problem which may never materialize. Simply adhere to your position of a separate roof for Mama and adopt a positive approach toward your marriage. It will work—if you want it to.

DEAR ANN: I'm 18 and expecting a baby in three months. My boy friend refused to marry me although we went steady for two years and we talked about marriage a lot. I was so heartbroken and ashamed I told him I never wanted to see him again. I decided to put my child up for adoption.

Last night his mother came over to talk to me. This is the first I've heard from her since I got in a family way although she has known for quite some time. She offered to pay all medical expenses plus $500 if I would give my baby to her sister-in-law. Her sister-in-law has been married for 13 years and has had five miscarriages. She is 43 and having a difficult time getting a baby through an agency.

My head is swimming from all the advice I've had. I've decided to do as you say.

—BITTER TEARS

DEAR BITTER TEARS: If you sell your baby to this boy's aunt it will be the second biggest mistake of your life.

Haven't you suffered enough? Do you want the additional pain of watching your child grow up under your very nose—probably unable to get near him except on phony pretexts?

Tell the woman NO—then continue with your plan to put the child up for adoption through a licensed agency.

DEAR ANN: I can't let you get away with this any longer. You keep telling kids they should take music lessons even if they hate it "because it's good for you." Don't you know this only makes kids hate it more?

I'm a grown man now but I have vivid memories of the agonies I suffered practicing the trombone. I was tone deaf and had no sense of rhythm. The neighbors upstairs used to knock on our floor with a hammer, the neighbors downstairs pounded their ceiling with a broom handle. We had fights every day. I can still hear my mother yelling "Practice! Lessons cost money!"

I have three children and when we want music in our house we turn on the radio or spin a few records. Peace, it's wonderful.

—POP

DEAR POP: Yes? And who makes that music? Probably musicians who hated to practice when they were young.

Are your parents too strict? You can benefit from the experience of thousands of teen-agers if you write for ANN LANDERS' booklet, "How To Live With Your Parents," enclosing with your request 20c in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Keeping Up With Hollywood

by Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD — Obviously, Stanley Kramer is very pleased with Judy Garland and Burt Lancaster in "Judgment at at Nuremberg," for he has both of them on a contract to co-star in "A Child Is Waiting."

Judy will do this before she films "The Lonely Stage," and Burt will face the cameras for Kramer before he stars in "The Leopard"— and best of all news is that it will be made right in good old Hollywood at the Revue Studios.

Another member of the "Judgment at Nuremberg" group, Abby Mann, who wrote "Nuremberg," will produce "A Child Is Waiting." The story deals with mentally ill children, and Burt plays a doctor, with Judy as a nurse.

How do you like this combination?—Shirley MacLaine and Bob Mitchum — we hope you do, because you're going to see them together in "Two for the Seesaw," for the Mirisch Bros.

Bob was signed in a matter of hours ago, and, of course, Shirley has always been set for this.

With some of the TV networks saying they may not run certain shows in various series, due to too much violence in them, 20th Century-Fox is in a lucky spot regarding one segment of "Bus Stop."

This is a show "Bus Stop" filmed under the title "Told by an Idiot." It stars Fabian as a teenage killer, and the boy is just plain fabulous. But the show is full of violence, so ABC may reject it.

If this happens, Robert Blees, the "Bus Stop" producer, will shoot an added half hour, and "Told by an Idiot" will be released as a movie in this country. If, however, ABC does run it, 20th will show the movie version only in Europe. Either way, they can't lose.

The battle that was expected in the break-up of Keely Smith and Louis Prima turned into a very amicable divorce. I talked with Keely, and she said, "we both regret the termination of our marriage, and part with only feelings of mutual respect and high regard for each other."

I asked Keely if that meant that she felt she got a break, financially speaking. She said that Louis had been more than fair, but she had promised not to discuss the amount of money with anybody, or the terms of the terms of the agreement.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

You can put it down in your little red book that Elizabeth Taylor is not enciente. I get this right from headquarters. Amazing how these rumors travel.

The photograph that has a place of honor in Ethel Merman's dressing room is that of Barbara Jean, her grandchild, Ethel Jr.'s baby.

The death of Donald Cook was very sad. He will be brought to Portland, Oregon, for burial, and his 24-year-old daughter by Maxine Lewis will attend the funeral. Services also were held at the Little Church Around the Corner in New York.

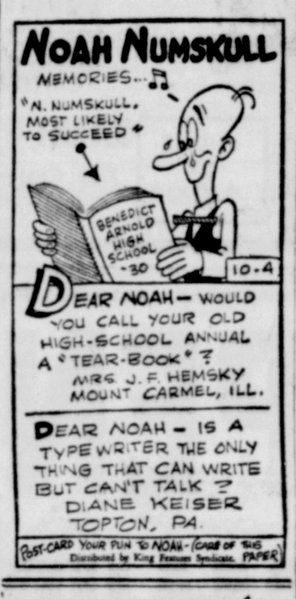

A new book coming out, "The Outlawed" by William R. Cox has both Tony Curtis and Paul Newman bidding for the movie rights.

I certainly would like to have accepted Jack Benny's invitation to be with him today (Thursday) in Waukegan, Illinois, when the Jack Benny High School is dedicated. Illinois is my home state too. Every baby born on Jack Benny Day will be remembered with some cash by the "Penny-pinching" Benny.

That's all today, see you tomorrow.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Enlarged Pores? Scrub Them "Small"!

Those large open pores that usually accompany a very oily complexion will never shrink in size . . . but they can be scrubbed and tightened to appear smaller and less noticeable.

Remember, the pores only show when they are clogged with oily dirt or makeup. They can always be concealed on a clean face. I mean, SUPER-clean . . . as oily skins must always be in order to look fresh, young and blemish-free.

Complete makeup removal, using a non-oily cleanser (especially in cold and windy weather) is essential. But even more important is thorough washing with soap and water, a session that can be twice as long and vigorous as the gentle cleansing permitted dry and sensitive skins.

A coarse washcloth or a complexion brush is a good implement for tackling an oily face. Work the brush or cloth in a circular upward movement, to get an uplifting facial massage at the same time. Don't be too rough on tender skin tissue . . . but be sure to use plenty of energy. Substitute a deep-pore cleanser, if you prefer.

Clearing out all that oil, grime and old makeup will prevent blackheads from forming to stretch and spotlight the pores and perhaps to infect. Holding a warm cloth against the face for a time will help to loosen any stubborn pore matter.

Rinse your face several times in clear cool water, finishing with very cold water, to tighten the skin. (Never, NEVER use ice cubes!)

There are other finishing tricks you can try. Witch hazel or a commercial astringent can be very effective in toning up the skin surface. Several grainy preparations promise the skin a slight planning, for surface smoothness.

A facial mask that you give yourself every week (or even oftener) is an excellent skin softener and toner. Since it steps up blood circulation, it helps guard against breakouts, too.

Reds Square Series With 6-2 Triumph As Yankee Defense Fails

Coleman, Berra Belt Home Runs; Miscues Costly

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — Hulking Joey Jay, first Little League grad to make the majors, squared the World Series for Cincinnati Thursday with a four-hit 6-2 victory in the second game, while the New York defense goofed with three errors and costly mental lapses.

Speedy Elio Chacon, subbing for the injured Don Blasingame, scooted home from third with the tie-breaking run in the fifth while a confused Elston Howard hesitated after recovering a passed ball.

Matters speedily worsened for the Yanks when a strategic move by Manager Ralph Houk backfired into a run-scoring single by rookie John Edwards in the sixth.

A wild throw by relief ace Luis Arroyo and a shocking three-base muff of a fly ball by Yogi Berra contributed to two more Cincinnati runs in the eighth.

Trade Home Runs

The teams traded two-run homers in the fourth after Jay and loser Ralph Terry had battled through three scoreless innings. Gordon Coleman slammed a long liner into the bleachers in right center after Frank Robinson's hard shot had bounced off Clete Boyer's chest for an error.

Berra quickly squared matters with his 12th series home run, following a walk to Roger Maris, the home run hero who struck out twice and ran his series hitless streak to seven at bats. Yogi now trails only Babe Ruth with 15 and Mickey Mantle with 14 in series homers.

Edwards, 23, with only two previous years of pro experience, also got his chance when the veteran Darrell Johnson benched himself because of a torn side muscle.

Rookie Catcher Comes Through

The rookie catchre hit a run-scoring single in the sixth although he is a left-handed batter and right-handed hitting Gene Freese had been walked intentionally to get at him. Again in the eighth, Edwards came through with a double to left that knocked in a second run.

But the big man was Jay, a 6-5, 225-pounder who won 21 games for the Reds after Milwaukee traded him last winter. Time after time the big fellow went to 3-2 on a hitter only to dig down deep and come up with that something extra he needed.

Jay's victory was particularly satisfying to Cincinnati fans who had been haunted by the possibility of another 4-game sweep such as the Yanks had inflicted upon Bill McKechnie's Reds in 1939. In fact, this was the first series game the Reds ever have won from the Yanks.

Bobby Richardson's single leading off the first, Berra's homer in the fourth and his single in the sixth plus Tony Kubek's single in the eighth were the only hits off Jay this bright, sunshiny afternoon. He walked six and struck out six.

The M&M boys again failed to live up to expectations. Mantle still is sidelined by the minor surgery he underwent last week for an abscess on his right hip. He couldn't even appear as a pinch hitter when needed. Maris still hasn't hit the ball ou' of the infield in two hitless games.

Turning Point In Game

Howard appeared confused as he quickly recovered the ball. He looked toward second because

Tribe Trades Jim Piersall

Acquire Donovan, Green From Nats

NEW YORK (AP)—The Cleveland Indians made a long expected move Thursday by trading Jimmy Piersall, the volatile, controversial centerfielder, to the Washington Senators for right-handed pitching star Dick Donovan and three other players.

In tthe first player deal of the current World Series, the Indians also got outfielder-catcher Gene Green, utility infielder Jim Mahoney and a third player to be delivered by Jan. 1. No cash was involved.

Piersall, 32, a brilliant fielder, broke into the .300 hitting set for the first time in his major league career. He batted .322 in 121 games, making him the fourth highest hitter in the American League.

Donovan, 33, topped the major leagues in earned runs with a 2.40 mark for those pitchers who worked enough to qualify for the title.

He was picked by Washingon from the Chicago White Sox a year ago in the American League's expansion draft.

Luis Arroyo of the Yankees saved 12 of Whitey Ford's first 23 victories this season. Arroyo won 5 games and lost 1 while pitching in relief in Ford's other starts.

Reds Square Series With 6-2 Triumph As Yankee Defense Fails

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK (AP) — Hulking Joey Jay, first Little League grad to make the majors, squared the World Series for Cincinnati Thursday with a four-hit 6-2 victory in the second game, while the New York defense goofed with three errors and costly mental lapses.

Speedy Elio Chacon, subbing for the injured Don Blasingame, scooted home from third with the tie-breaking run in the fifth while a confused Elston Howard hesitated after recovering a passed ball.

Matters speedily worsened for the Yanks when a strategic move by Manager Ralph Houk backfired into a run-scoring single by rookie John Edwards in the sixth.

A wild throw by relief ace Luis Arroyo and a shocking three-base muff of a fly ball by Yogi Berra contributed to two more Cincinnati runs in the eighth.

Trade Home Runs

The teams traded two-run homers in the fourth after Jay and loser Ralph Terry had battled through three scoreless innings. Gordon Coleman slammed a long liner into the bleachers in right center after Frank Robinson's hard shot had bounced off Clete Boyer's chest for an error.

Berra quickly squared matters with his 12th series home run, following a walk to Roger Maris, the home run hero who struck out twice and ran his series hitless streak to seven at bats. Yogi now trails only Babe Ruth with 15 and Mickey Mantle with 14 in series homers.

Edwards, 23, with only two previous years of pro experience, also got his chance when the veteran Darrell Johnson benched himself because of a torn side muscle.

Rookie Catcher Comes Through

The rookie catchre hit a run-scoring single in the sixth although he is a left-handed batter and right-handed hitting Gene Freese had been walked intentionally to get at him. Again in the eighth, Edwards came through with a double to left that knocked in a second run.

But the big man was Jay, a 6-5, 225-pounder who won 21 games for the Reds after Milwaukee traded him last winter. Time after time the big fellow went to 3-2 on a hitter only to dig down deep and come up with that something extra he needed.

Jay's victory was particularly satisfying to Cincinnati fans who had been haunted by the possibility of another 4-game sweep such as the Yanks had inflicted upon Bill McKechnie's Reds in 1939. In fact, this was the first series game the Reds ever have won from the Yanks.

Bobby Richardson's single leading off the first, Berra's homer in the fourth and his single in the sixth plus Tony Kubek's single in the eighth were the only hits off Jay this bright, sunshiny afternoon. He walked six and struck out six.

The M&M boys again failed to live up to expectations. Mantle still is sidelined by the minor surgery he underwent last week for an abscess on his right hip. He couldn't even appear as a pinch hitter when needed. Maris still hasn't hit the ball ou' of the infield in two hitless games.

Turning Point In Game

Howard appeared confused as he quickly recovered the ball. He looked toward second because

Acquire Donovan, Green From Nats

NEW YORK (AP)—The Cleveland Indians made a long expected move Thursday by trading Jimmy Piersall, the volatile, controversial centerfielder, to the Washington Senators for right-handed pitching star Dick Donovan and three other players.

In tthe first player deal of the current World Series, the Indians also got outfielder-catcher Gene Green, utility infielder Jim Mahoney and a third player to be delivered by Jan. 1. No cash was involved.

Piersall, 32, a brilliant fielder, broke into the .300 hitting set for the first time in his major league career. He batted .322 in 121 games, making him the fourth highest hitter in the American League.

Donovan, 33, topped the major leagues in earned runs with a 2.40 mark for those pitchers who worked enough to qualify for the title.

He was picked by Washingon from the Chicago White Sox a year ago in the American League's expansion draft.

Luis Arroyo of the Yankees saved 12 of Whitey Ford's first 23 victories this season. Arroyo won 5 games and lost 1 while pitching in relief in Ford's other starts.

LaSalle Hosts Keyser, Romney At Beall In PVC Games Tonight

Hawks Visit Petersburg In Loop Tilt

Tornado Has Won Six In Row From Explorer Eleven

Beaten last week in a pair of upset losses, the LaSalle High Explorers and Keyser High's Golden Tornado eleven will clash tonight at 8 o'clock at Fort Hill Stadium in the feature attraction of a slim Potomac Valley Conference slate which also will find Romney High's unbeaten Pioneers visiting the defending champion Beall Mountaineers at Frostburg in another night tilt and Ridgeley High's Blackhawks traveling to Petersburg to meet the Vikings in an afternoon contest.

Keyser, upended last Friday 19-13 by Allegany High's Campers after three straight triumphs, will tackle a surprizingly strong Explorer team which also lost last week, 18-14, at Bedford.

Coach Fred "Tack" Clark's Keyser squad has won six in a row from LaSalle including last year's 19-13 triumph and will be seeking win No. 14 in tonight's 26th game of the series. LaSalle has captured 11 wins while one game ended in a tie.

Conference Opener

The Tornado is 1-0 in the PVC while tonight's fray at the local stadium will be the conference opener for Coach Jimmy Manges' Explorers.

Keyser unleashed a terrific running game in bowing last Friday to Allegany with fullback Chuck Bradfield the main cog in the attack. Prior to the loss the Tornado had defeated Martinsburg, 6-0; Charles Town, 34-0; and Ridgeley, 36-7.

LaSalle has a fleet backfield paced by speedster Bill Stakem and quarterback Jerry Lowery. The Explorers, 2-2-0 on the season, defeated St. Francis of Morgantown, 27-0, and Berlin, 27-0, after losing their season's opener, 7-6 to Fort Hill, then bowed to Bedford last Friday.

Officials for tonight's stadium clash will be John J. Cavanaugh, Hubert Feeney, James Gaffney and Don Hodge.

Coach Roger Parker's Romney Pioneers, unbeaten in five games this season, will tackle their toughest opponent thus far when they meet Jerry Calhoun's Mountaineers on the Beall field at 8 o'clock.

Four Straight Shutouts

The Pioneers have scored four straight shutout triumphs and presently are 2-0 in the PVC. Beall's defending champions won three games in a row before losing on Saturday to Fort Hill, 25-0, in a non-conference game. They also are 2-0 in the PVC.

This will be the 15th game of the series between the two teams with Romney winning eight, Beall five and one game ending in a tie. The Mountaineers defeated Romney, 19-0 last year.

Ridgeley's Blackhawks, sputtering along with three losses in four games, including a 0-3 mark in the conference, will travel to Petersburg to meet the Vikings (1-2-1) in an afternoon PVC tilt.

Coach Wayne Barr's Petersburg eleven is 1-1-1 in the conference, losing to Beall, 20-0, beating Franklin, 13-7, and tying Moorefield, 13-13. Ridgeley, coached by Tom O'Connor, has lost to Circleville, 6-0, Keyser, 36-7, and Moorefield, 19-7, in the PVC while beating Berkeley Springs, 18-13, in a game outside the league.

Another contest on tap tonight will pit Northern High's Huskies (1-3) against the Southern Highlanders (2-2-0) at Oakland in a clash of Garrett County rivals.

Southern Won Three

Southern has won three of the five games between the two teams, beating Northern last year, 26-13.

Also slated for action today will be Circleville at Hillsboro, Berkeley Springs at Shepherdstown, Bedford at Portage, Bel Air at Frederick, North Hagerstown at Martinsburg in a CVAL clash and Parsons vs. Masontown at Kingwood.

Stengel, who managed the American League champions between 1949 and 1960, went down to the batting cage while the Yankees were taking batting practice and chatted with many of his old players.

Fan Trades Jury Box Seat For One In Front Of TV

A jury was being selected for a common pleas court case Wednesday when the defense attorney asked the temporarily seated jurors if the fact the World Series was starting would have any bearing on them.

H. S. Floyd, a farmer, said he would "have trouble concentrating on the case."

The state promptly exercised a premptory challenge and Floyd headed for the nearest TV set.

W. Va. To Allow Spearfishing If Rules Followed

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—It's all right to spear fish in West Virginia, but the Department of Natural Resources says it had better be done in the right places, in the right way and at the right time.

The department's 1962 regulations allow underwater spearfishing the year round, but it must be done only in the daytime and catches are limited to non-game fish, except catfish.

Also, spear guns may be fired only underwater and no explosive is allowed on the head or shaft of the guns.

The department said such fishing may be done in all waters west of U. S. 19, in addition to Cheat Lake and the Greenbrier River in Summers and Greenbrier Counties.

The approved list also includes the New River, sections of Sutton Reservoir, the Tygart River and Reservoir and sections of Bluestone Reservoir.

Bragan Is Named Houston Coach

NEW YORK (AP)—Bobby Bragan, former manager of the Pittsburgh Pirates, was named one of the three coaches of the Houston Colts, the baseball club which joins the National League next season along with the New York Mets.

Other coaches named Thursday by General Manager Paul Richards are Jimmy Adair, who served under Richards when he was manager of the Chicago White Sox and also of the Baltimore Orioles, and Jim Busby, player-coach with the Orioles this year.

Stengel Attends World Series Tilt

Stengel, who managed the American League champions between 1949 and 1960, went down to the batting cage while the Yankees were taking batting practice and chatted with many of his old players.

Stengel was signed last Friday as manager of the New York Mets in the National League next season.

Fan Trades Jury Box Seat For One In Front Of TV

A jury was being selected for a common pleas court case Wednesday when the defense attorney asked the temporarily seated jurors if the fact the World Series was starting would have any bearing on them.

H. S. Floyd, a farmer, said he would "have trouble concentrating on the case."

The state promptly exercised a premptory challenge and Floyd headed for the nearest TV set.

W. Va. To Allow Spearfishing If Rules Followed

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—It's all right to spear fish in West Virginia, but the Department of Natural Resources says it had better be done in the right places, in the right way and at the right time.

The department's 1962 regulations allow underwater spearfishing the year round, but it must be done only in the daytime and catches are limited to non-game fish, except catfish.

Also, spear guns may be fired only underwater and no explosive is allowed on the head or shaft of the guns.

The department said such fishing may be done in all waters west of U. S. 19, in addition to Cheat Lake and the Greenbrier River in Summers and Greenbrier Counties.

The approved list also includes the New River, sections of Sutton Reservoir, the Tygart River and Reservoir and sections of Bluestone Reservoir.

Chacon Went Home On Own In 5th Frame

Hutch Calls Score Key Play Of Game

By HAROLD HARRISON

NEW YORK, (AP)—Elio Chacon was running "on his own" Thursday when he scored from third base on a passed ball and gave the Cincinnati Reds a lead they maintained as they squared the 1961 World Series with a 6-2 victory over the New York Yankees.

Chacon, filling in at second base for the ailing Don Blasingame, had singled in the fifth and gone to third on a single by Eddie Kasko. Then, when one of Ralph Terry's pitches got away from Yank cater Elston Howard, Chacon came barreling in to score and give the Reds a 3-2 lead.

It came after Gordon Coleman of the Reds and Yogi Berra of the Yanks each had hit two-run homers in the fourth.

Coleman's blow, deep into the right centerfield seats, drove in the first Cincinnati runs of the series and Hutchinson called it "the spark that started us."

The Reds clubhouse had a far different appearance than Wednesday when the Yanks won 2-0. It was packed and the Cincinnatians were grinning.

Joey Jay, who set the Yankees down with four hits, said the pitch Berra hit for a home run "was not a good pitch."

"I'm not taking anything away from Berra," he said, "because he might have hit it anyhow but the pitch didn't go where I wanted it to."

Jay said he used mostly sliders and low curves, mixed with the fast ball. Catcher Johnny Edwards, who got two hits and drove in two runs, said the slider was Jay's best pitch.

Coleman, who sent the Reds into the lead with his two-run homer, said the blast was the biggest thrill of his career.

"I didn't see it go into the stands," he said. "I was running like mad toward second and I saw the outfielder (Roger Maris) turn away from the stands. Then I knew it was in."

As to the success of Cincinnati pitchers against the Yankees' Maris, Hutchinson said:

Frostburg had 24 shots at the Salisbury goal and were awarded 11 corner kicks. Salisbury garnered nine shots and had four corner kicks.

Frostburg utilized two full teams to good advantage in the contest, playing each about equal time. Sigler, Mann and Rinker were Frostburg's best players. Jay McCreg and Gary Royal were best for Salisbury.

Yanks Still Pick To Capture Series

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Yankees were favored Thursday at only 2-1 to win the World Series from the Cincinnati Reds, following Thursday's New York defeat that evened the series at one game each.

Despite Thursday's 6-2 defeat, the Yankees are favored at 7-5 to win Saturday's third series game at Cincinnati. They had been 8½-5 choices to take Thursday's contest.

Didn't Spot Chacon Move Says Howard

"Wasn't Our Day," Claims Pilot Houk

By TED SMITS

NEW YORK (AP)—The deciding run of the second game of the 1961 World Series, enabling Cincinnati to go on to a 6-2 victory over the New York Yankees, came in the fifth inning on a mixed up sort of play that won grudging praise from Manager Ralph Houk of the Yankees for Elio Chacon.

"Chacon broke. . .it worked. . . you see lots of plays like that during the season, but in the series . . ." and Houk shrugged philosophically.

The score was tied 2-2. With two out Chacon singled to center, and went to third on Eddie Kasko's single, also to center.

The ball dribbled back about 10 or 15 feet, and Howard scampered for it, as Terry came towards the plate.

Chacon broke for the plate, but Howard, when he got the ball, looked at second base expecting Kasko to try to advance but apparently not thinking Chacon would take the chance.

"I didn't see him (Chacon) right away," said Howard. "When Kasko broke I expected to throw to second, but when I caught Chacon out of the corner of my eye he was starting to slide, so I dove on top of him. It was a close decision.

This put Cincinnati ahead 3-2. The Reds added three more runs on an assortment of strange hits and plays, but it was the mixup at home plate that was the turning point.

"This wasn't our day," said Houk. "It was one of those days when a ball that's hit easy has a top spin on it. There were bad hops, and blooper hits, and broken bat hits. But I wouldn't call our play sloppy. I don't think we did anything to embarrass ourselves."

Houk said he had no intention to pinch hit his ailing ace, Mickey Mantle, once the Yankees fell four runs behind, and he still doesn't know when Mickey can play in the series.

Yogi Berra, who earlier in the game enhanced his fine World Series record by belting a two-run homer to tie the score at 2-2, had a simple explanation of his three-base error on Wally Post's drive to left in the eighth inning.

"I had the ball all the way, but it had a real backspin and it sank fast," said the chunky Yankee veteran. "It just zipped right through my legs and I didn't even feel anything."

Frostburg had 24 shots at the Salisbury goal and were awarded 11 corner kicks. Salisbury garnered nine shots and had four corner kicks.

Frostburg utilized two full teams to good advantage in the contest, playing each about equal time. Sigler, Mann and Rinker were Frostburg's best players. Jay McCreg and Gary Royal were best for Salisbury.

Yanks Still Pick To Capture Series

NEW YORK (UPI) — The New York Yankees were favored Thursday at only 2-1 to win the World Series from the Cincinnati Reds, following Thursday's New York defeat that evened the series at one game each.

Despite Thursday's 6-2 defeat, the Yankees are favored at 7-5 to win Saturday's third series game at Cincinnati. They had been 8½-5 choices to take Thursday's contest.

Didn't Spot Chacon Move Says Howard

"Wasn't Our Day," Claims Pilot Houk

By TED SMITS

NEW YORK (AP)—The deciding run of the second game of the 1961 World Series, enabling Cincinnati to go on to a 6-2 victory over the New York Yankees, came in the fifth inning on a mixed up sort of play that won grudging praise from Manager Ralph Houk of the Yankees for Elio Chacon.

"Chacon broke. . .it worked. . . you see lots of plays like that during the season, but in the series . . ." and Houk shrugged philosophically.

The score was tied 2-2. With two out Chacon singled to center, and went to third on Eddie Kasko's single, also to center.

The ball dribbled back about 10 or 15 feet, and Howard scampered for it, as Terry came towards the plate.

Chacon broke for the plate, but Howard, when he got the ball, looked at second base expecting Kasko to try to advance but apparently not thinking Chacon would take the chance.

"I didn't see him (Chacon) right away," said Howard. "When Kasko broke I expected to throw to second, but when I caught Chacon out of the corner of my eye he was starting to slide, so I dove on top of him. It was a close decision.

This put Cincinnati ahead 3-2. The Reds added three more runs on an assortment of strange hits and plays, but it was the mixup at home plate that was the turning point.

"This wasn't our day," said Houk. "It was one of those days when a ball that's hit easy has a top spin on it. There were bad hops, and blooper hits, and broken bat hits. But I wouldn't call our play sloppy. I don't think we did anything to embarrass ourselves."

Houk said he had no intention to pinch hit his ailing ace, Mickey Mantle, once the Yankees fell four runs behind, and he still doesn't know when Mickey can play in the series.

Yogi Berra, who earlier in the game enhanced his fine World Series record by belting a two-run homer to tie the score at 2-2, had a simple explanation of his three-base error on Wally Post's drive to left in the eighth inning.

"I had the ball all the way, but it had a real backspin and it sank fast," said the chunky Yankee veteran. "It just zipped right through my legs and I didn't even feel anything."

Yankees First

Richardson lined a 1 and 1 pitch into left field for a single. Kubek forced Richardson at second, Kasko to Chacon. Maris forced Kubek at second, Coleman to Kasko but was safe at first when Kasko's throw went past the first baseman. There was no error charged because Maris did not advance to second. Berra bounced out to Chacon. No runs, one hit, no errors, one left.

Reds Second

Robinson took two strikes and then popped to Kubek in short center. Coleman bounced out to Kubek. Boyer deflected Post's liner to shortstop Kubek but Post beat it out for a single when Skowron pulled his foot off the base stretching into the infield. Freese went down swinging. No runs, one hit, no errors, one left.

Yankees Second

Blanchard popped to Kasko. Howard rolled out to Freese. Skowron walked. Boyer forced Skowron at second, Kasko to Chacon. No runs, no hits, no errors, one left.

Reds Third

Yankees Third

Reds Fourth

Pinson flied to Berra. Robinson was safe at first when Boyer fumbled his easy bounder. Coleman hit an 0 and 1 pitch about five rows deep into the right field bleachers for a home run to put the Reds ahead, 2-0. Post went down swinging. Freese grounded out to Kubek. Two runs, one hit, one error, none left.

Yankees Fourth

Maris walked. Berra took a ball and then hit a home run deep into the lower right field stands to tie the score at 2-2. Blanchard bounced to Coleman who tossed to Jay, covering first. Howard walked. Skowron hit into a double play, Chacon to Kasko to Coleman. Two runs, one hit, no errors, none left.

Reds Fifth

Edwards lined to Richardson. Jay went down swinging. Chacon's looping fly dropped into short center for a single. Kasko lashed a grounder through the middle for a single, Chacon racing to third. Terry's third pitch to Pinson got away from Howard and Chacon, in a daring sprint for the plate, just scored ahead of the tag as Kasko went to second. Terry was very slow covering the plate. It was scored as a passed ball. Pinson struck out. One run, two hits, no errors, one left.

Yankees Fifth

Boyer walked. Terry failed to bunt on the first pitch and then popped to Chacon in short right. Richardson hit to Kasko but all runners were safe when Boyer, going on the hit and run, beat the throw to second. Richardson reached first when the throw was wide to Coleman. It was scored as a fielder's choice. Kubek went down swinging. Maris struck out on a 3 and 2 pitch. No runs, no hits, no errors, two left.

Reds Sixth

Yankees Sixth

Reds Seventh

Yankees Seventh

Skowron went down swinging on three pitches. Boyer flied to Pinson in deep center. Hector Lopez batted for Terry and walked. Chacon snared Richardson's sharp drive on one bounce and forced Lopez by out-racing him to the bag. No runs, no hits, no errors, one left.

Reds Eighth

Luis Arroyo replaced Terry on the mound for the Yankees. Robinson walked. Coleman dribbled a ball in front of the plate, but Arroyo's throw to first base was wild and Robinson scored to put the Reds ahead, 5-2. Coleman was out trying for third base, Blanchard to Boyer. It was scored as a hit and an error for Arroyo. Berra completely missed Post's long liner that was hit right at him and the Red outfielder went all the way to third on the error. Freese was purposely walked. Edwards broke his bat when he connected with the ball but looped a double into short left field. Post scoring to make it 6-2, and Freese going to third. Jay struck out. Chacon bounced out to Richardson. Two runs, two hits, two errors, two left.

Yankees Eighth

Reds Ninth

Yankees Ninth

Joey Jay Hurls

Kasko had made a move in that direction. Too late he saw the streaking Chacon. Pitcher Terry was not at home plate and the scoring station was unguarded.

The Yankee catcher hurried toward the plate and dived toward Chacon. Too late, signaled plate Umpire Jocko Conlan who was right on top of the play.

Chacon's run put the Reds out front 3-2 and they never yielded that advantage. Instead they kept adding to it as the Yanks' touted defense crumpled.

There were two out again in the sixth when the Reds struck at Terry once more. Wally Post doubled to the left field corner and Houk ordered Terry to walk Freese.

Eighth Is Nightmare

Arroyo walked Frank Robinson on a 3-2 pitch. When Coleman topped the ball in front of the plate, Arroyo threw it wildly past Bill Skowron into right field. It was scored as a hit and Robinson counted from first on the error. Coleman, in turn, was nailed at third on a fine peg from Johnny Blanchard to Boyer.

Manager Fred Hutchinson said Bob Purkey (16-12), a 32-year-old right-hander who has come up with a good knuckler, would pitch the third game at Cincinnati Saturday. Friday will be an open date with the next three games at Cincinnati.

Bill Stafford (14-9), a 23-year-old right-hander, will pitch for the Yanks in the third game. Manager Ralph Houk said he wasn't ready to name his Sunday pitcher. It probably will be Whitey Ford, shutout winner of the first game.

Udall Refuses To Watch Pros

To Await Redskins' Moves During Draft

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall said Thursday he will attend no Washington Redskin football games so long as the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People is picketing them in protest against the absence of Negroes in the Redskin lineup.

But as for barring the Redskins from using Washington's new federally owned stadium, Udall said he is waiting to see what happens at the December player draft meeting.

Udall, who complained early this year of alleged discrimination against Negroes by Redskin owner George Preston Marshall, said he is accepting in good faith a statement by Marshall that he intends to select two Negro college football players if possible.

This statement was contained in a letter to Pete Rozelle, National Football League Commissioner, in which Marshall listed Ernie Davis, halfback at Syracuse, and Larry Ferguson, halfback at Iowa.

Udall earlier this year had spoken of the possibility of barring the Redskins from the stadium if they had no Negro players by the time of their home game on Oct. 22.

Lopat To Coach For Athletics

NEW YORK (AP)—The Kansas City Athletics, reported Thursday they had signed Eddie Lopat, former New York Yankee pitcher, as pitching coach for next season.

Charles O. Finley, owner of the Athletics said the former Yankee star would replace Ted Wilks. Lopat was a coach with the Minnesota Twins this year.

PLYMOUTH

Reds First

Yankees First

Richardson lined a 1 and 1 pitch into left field for a single. Kubek forced Richardson at second, Kasko to Chacon. Maris forced Kubek at second, Coleman to Kasko but was safe at first when Kasko's throw went past the first baseman. There was no error charged because Maris did not advance to second. Berra bounced out to Chacon. No runs, one hit, no errors, one left.

Reds Second

Robinson took two strikes and then popped to Kubek in short center. Coleman bounced out to Kubek. Boyer deflected Post's liner to shortstop Kubek but Post beat it out for a single when Skowron pulled his foot off the base stretching into the infield. Freese went down swinging. No runs, one hit, no errors, one left.

Yankees Second

Blanchard popped to Kasko. Howard rolled out to Freese. Skowron walked. Boyer forced Skowron at second, Kasko to Chacon. No runs, no hits, no errors, one left.

Reds Third

Yankees Third

Reds Fourth

Pinson flied to Berra. Robinson was safe at first when Boyer fumbled his easy bounder. Coleman hit an 0 and 1 pitch about five rows deep into the right field bleachers for a home run to put the Reds ahead, 2-0. Post went down swinging. Freese grounded out to Kubek. Two runs, one hit, one error, none left.

Yankees Fourth

Maris walked. Berra took a ball and then hit a home run deep into the lower right field stands to tie the score at 2-2. Blanchard bounced to Coleman who tossed to Jay, covering first. Howard walked. Skowron hit into a double play, Chacon to Kasko to Coleman. Two runs, one hit, no errors, none left.

Reds Fifth

Edwards lined to Richardson. Jay went down swinging. Chacon's looping fly dropped into short center for a single. Kasko lashed a grounder through the middle for a single, Chacon racing to third. Terry's third pitch to Pinson got away from Howard and Chacon, in a daring sprint for the plate, just scored ahead of the tag as Kasko went to second. Terry was very slow covering the plate. It was scored as a passed ball. Pinson struck out. One run, two hits, no errors, one left.

Yankees Fifth

Boyer walked. Terry failed to bunt on the first pitch and then popped to Chacon in short right. Richardson hit to Kasko but all runners were safe when Boyer, going on the hit and run, beat the throw to second. Richardson reached first when the throw was wide to Coleman. It was scored as a fielder's choice. Kubek went down swinging. Maris struck out on a 3 and 2 pitch. No runs, no hits, no errors, two left.

Reds Sixth

Yankees Sixth

Reds Seventh

Yankees Seventh

Skowron went down swinging on three pitches. Boyer flied to Pinson in deep center. Hector Lopez batted for Terry and walked. Chacon snared Richardson's sharp drive on one bounce and forced Lopez by out-racing him to the bag. No runs, no hits, no errors, one left.

Reds Eighth

Luis Arroyo replaced Terry on the mound for the Yankees. Robinson walked. Coleman dribbled a ball in front of the plate, but Arroyo's throw to first base was wild and Robinson scored to put the Reds ahead, 5-2. Coleman was out trying for third base, Blanchard to Boyer. It was scored as a hit and an error for Arroyo. Berra completely missed Post's long liner that was hit right at him and the Red outfielder went all the way to third on the error. Freese was purposely walked. Edwards broke his bat when he connected with the ball but looped a double into short left field, Post scoring to make it 6-2, and Freese going to third. Jay struck out. Chacon bounced out to Richardson. Two runs, two hits, two errors, two left.

Yankees Eighth

Reds Ninth

Yankees Ninth

Joey Jay Hurls

Kasko had made a move in that direction. Too late he saw the streaking Chacon. Pitcher Terry was not at home plate and the scoring station was unguarded.

The Yankee catcher hurried toward the plate and dived toward Chacon. Too late, signaled plate Umpire Jocko Conlan who was right on top of the play.

Chacon's run put the Reds out front 3-2 and they never yielded that advantage. Instead they kept adding to it as the Yanks' touted defense crumpled.

There were two out again in the sixth when the Reds struck at Terry once more. Wally Post doubled to the left field corner and Houk ordered Terry to walk Freese.

Eighth Is Nightmare

The eighth was a nightmare for the Yanks.

Arroyo walked Frank Robinson on a 3-2 pitch. When Coleman topped the ball in front of the plate, Arroyo threw it wildly past Bill Skowron into right field. It was scored as a hit and Robinson counted from first on the error. Coleman, in turn, was nailed at third on a fine peg from Johnny Blanchard to Boyer.

Manager Fred Hutchinson said Bob Purkey (16-12), a 32-year-old right-hander who has come up with a good knuckler, would pitch the third game at Cincinnati Saturday. Friday will be an open date with the next three games at Cincinnati.

Bill Stafford (14-9), a 23-year-old right-hander, will pitch for the Yanks in the third game. Manager Ralph Houk said he wasn't ready to name his Sunday pitcher. It probably will be Whitey Ford, shutout winner of the first game.

Udall Refuses To Watch Pros

To Await Redskins' Moves During Draft

WASHINGTON (AP)—Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall said Thursday he will attend no Washington Redskin football games so long as the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People is picketing them in protest against the absence of Negroes in the Redskin lineup.

But as for barring the Redskins from using Washington's new federally owned stadium, Udall said he is waiting to see what happens at the December player draft meeting.

Udall, who complained early this year of alleged discrimination against Negroes by Redskin owner George Preston Marshall, said he is accepting in good faith a statement by Marshall that he intends to select two Negro college football players if possible.

This statement was contained in a letter to Pete Rozelle, National Football League Commissioner, in which Marshall listed Ernie Davis, halfback at Syracuse, and Larry Ferguson, halfback at Iowa.

Udall earlier this year had spoken of the possibility of barring the Redskins from the stadium if they had no Negro players by the time of their home game on Oct. 22.

Lopat To Coach For Athletics

NEW YORK (AP)—The Kansas City Athletics, reported Thursday they had signed Eddie Lopat, former New York Yankee pitcher, as pitching coach for next season.

Charles O. Finley, owner of the Athletics said the former Yankee star would replace Ted Wilks. Lopat was a coach with the Minnesota Twins this year.

Today is travel-break day in the World Series and it finds the Yanks and Reds all even. Guesses and predictions of all kinds have been made concerning the outcome of the fall classic and the right or wrong of each will be proved only after one team has won four games.

With this thought in mind and with at least a five game series now a certainty. . . we invite you to visit The Cas Taylors' Monday, Tuesday (and every day for that matter) to eat, drink and see the series on our color TV set.

Stocks Advance Sharply; Trading At 6-Week High

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks scored a sweeping gain as trading mounted to a six-week high Thursday.

The market was also the broadest in two months with 1,286 issues traded of which 696 advanced, 71 to new highs, and 358 declined, 15 to new lows.

Standard & Poor's 500 stocks showed a net gain of 0.59 with rails and utilities hitting new highs for the year, indicating that some $4 billion was annexed to paper values.

Dow-Jones industrials closed at 708.49 for a rise of 5.18. Features within the average were Du Pont up 4, Johns-Manville 2⅛ and Woolworth, Sears Roebuck, Allied Chemical, Eastman Kodak and U.S. Steel up a point or more. Union Carbide was again soft, down 1¼.

Rails closed within a hair's breadth of their 1961 high at 150.70, up 0.85 with C&O, Louisville & Nashville and Norfolk & Western ahead a point or more. A jump of 4½ in Commonwealth Edison helped propel utilities to a new post-1929 high of 126.01, up 1.39.

As a result of a giant 87,700-share block sale, apparently by an institution, Spiegel topped the most active list, up ⅝ on 154,100 shares.

Stocks Advance Sharply; Trading At 6-Week High

NEW YORK (UPI) — Stocks scored a sweeping gain as trading mounted to a six-week high Thursday.

Volume totaled 3,920,000 shares against 3,380,000 in the prior session, the best since Aug. 18.

The market was also the broadest in two months with 1,286 issues traded of which 696 advanced, 71 to new highs, and 358 declined, 15 to new lows.

Standard & Poor's 500 stocks showed a net gain of 0.59 with rails and utilities hitting new highs for the year, indicating that some $4 billion was annexed to paper values.

Dow-Jones industrials closed at 708.49 for a rise of 5.18. Features within the average were Du Pont up 4, Johns-Manville 2⅛ and Woolworth, Sears Roebuck, Allied Chemical, Eastman Kodak and U.S. Steel up a point or more. Union Carbide was again soft, down 1¼.

Rails closed within a hair's breadth of their 1961 high at 150.70, up 0.85 with C&O, Louisville & Nashville and Norfolk & Western ahead a point or more. A jump of 4½ in Commonwealth Edison helped propel utilities to a new post-1929 high of 126.01, up 1.39.

As a result of a giant 87,700-share block sale, apparently by an institution, Spiegel topped the most active list, up ⅝ on 154,100 shares.

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 ♦	Double	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♦

West threw away the time advantage of the opening lead today, but declarer carelessly gave it back to his opponents and they were quick to seize the second opportunity.

This was bad partnership. It should have been obvious from East's failure to high-low that the next round of diamonds would be ruffed.

The evidence pointed clearly to the heart shift. If South holds the ace of hearts, the contract cannot be defeated for, the defense will be limited to two clubs and one diamond.

But if East has the ace and jack of hearts, an early lead of that suit may be mandatory. However, declarer was quick to surrender the advantage he had gained by West's failure to shift. Upon winning the second trick, he drew trumps, and on the assumption that West's opening bid contained the ace of hearts, he led that suit toward dummy.

East won and returned a heart, establishing a second defensive trick in that suit. There was nothing for declarer to do but try the club finesse and, when it failed, he was down.

Success of the contract can be assured regardless of what holding West has. For his opening bid he is marked with either the ace of hearts or the king of clubs.

If he has the ace of hearts the hand cannot be lost regardless of the location of the king of clubs.

But if West has the king of clubs and East the ace of hearts, then the hand can be lost if the defense establishes two heart tricks.

Now declarer will be able to discard two of dummy's hearts on the ace and jack of clubs and limit his loss in that suit to one trick.

If it develops that East has the king of clubs, then West surely must have the ace of hearts, and declarer will lose a diamond, a club, and a heart.

ALLIED BUSY

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Allied Artists has reached its highest production activity of the past 18 months. Three pictures are being filmed and preparations are under way to turn out five more. Currently under the cameras are "Billy Budd," "The George Raft Story," and "Hell's Kitchen."

REVENGE

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Rick Traeger has been signed to play the role of Secret Service and Gestapo Chief Heinrich Himmler in the Allied Artists release of "Hitler." Traeger terms it "an actor's revenge." In 1942, he was arrested by the Gestapo as a member of the anti-Nazi underground and thrown in solitary confinement for three years.

BIG CAST

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — The number of speaking roles in "The George Raft Story" has swelled to 125. The film stars Ray Danton as Raft. As a sidelight, the Allied Artists troupe staged a birthday party for 1-year-old Zoltan Hargitay — son of Jayne Mansfield, one of the film's stars.

ASTAIRE RECORDS

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Choreo Records has acquired the recording rights to Fred Astaire's three Emmy winning television series. Jackie Mills, executive vice president of the firm, says the first long play release by Astaire will be entitled "The Astaire Medley."

"EL CID"

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Allied Artists says arrangements have been completed for the advertising and publicity campaign for Samuel Bronston's "El Cid."

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
Pass	1 ♦	Double	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	3 ♠	Pass
4 ♠	Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♦

West threw away the time advantage of the opening lead today, but declarer carelessly gave it back to his opponents and they were quick to seize the second opportunity.

This was bad partnership. It should have been obvious from East's failure to high-low that the next round of diamonds would be ruffed.

The evidence pointed clearly to the heart shift. If South holds the ace of hearts, the contract cannot be defeated for, the defense will be limited to two clubs and one diamond.

But if East has the ace and jack of hearts, an early lead of that suit may be mandatory. However, declarer was quick to surrender the advantage he had gained by West's failure to shift. Upon winning the second trick, he drew trumps, and on the assumption that West's opening bid contained the ace of hearts, he led that suit toward dummy.

East won and returned a heart, establishing a second defensive trick in that suit. There was nothing for declarer to do but try the club finesse and, when it failed, he was down.

Success of the contract can be assured regardless of what holding West has. For his opening bid he is marked with either the ace of hearts or the king of clubs.

If he has the ace of hearts the hand cannot be lost regardless of the location of the king of clubs.

But if West has the king of clubs and East the ace of hearts, then the hand can be lost if the defense establishes two heart tricks.

Now declarer will be able to discard two of dummy's hearts on the ace and jack of clubs and limit his loss in that suit to one trick.

If it develops that East has the king of clubs, then West surely must have the ace of hearts, and declarer will lose a diamond, a club, and a heart.

Opinion Seeks To Settle Stream Dispute

Sewage Disposal System Ordered

A six-page opinion has been filed in Allegany County Circuit Court by Associate Judge W. Earle Cobey in an effort to settle a dispute between two brothers involving a drainage problem in a stream along U. S. Route 40 about six miles east of Cumberland.

Guy Propst and Henrietta Propst, his wife, brought the action against Joseph A. Miltenberger Jr. and Jo Ann Miltenberger, his wife, and Fred M. Propst and Mary Propst, his wife. The plaintiffs sought an injunction requiring the Miltenbergers to restore the banks of the stream which runs across the plaintiffs' property to their former condition and to prohibit the Miltenbergers from further trespassing on their property. They also asked for an injunction against all the defendants denying them the right to continue depositing sewage in the stream.

Fred M. Propst and his wife purchased three-and-one-half acres in that area in 1957. A house standing on the southerly dividing line between this property and the one adjacent to it is rented to the Miltenbergers. A tile pipe discharges raw sewage from the Miltenberger house into the stream which runs across the corner of the plaintiffs' land and onto and across the adjoining property of Fred Propst. Guy Propst had purchased the adjoining property in 1955.

Brothers Quarrel

"After Fred acquired his land, the brothers started to quarrel about the location of the dividing line between their properties in the vicinity of the Miltenberger house," Judge Cobey wrote. "This case arises out of that dispute and unfortunately this decision cannot settle this boundary question," he adds.

When Route 40 was improved recently a large fill was made in the vicinity of the Miltenberger home and a much larger culvert was installed under the fill.

Shortly after the fill was completed, surface water began to erode its sides. This erosion deposited dirt in the stream. Eventually, this dirt caused the stream to silt up and clogged the sewage pipe from the Miltenberger house. As a result, the cellar was filled with water and sewage.

To clear up this offensive and unhealthy condition, Mr. Miltenberger cleared the stream of this silt and dirt. In doing so, the judge writes, he probably widened the stream.

Despite "no trespassing" signs on both sides of the stream, Miltenberger again dug debris out of the stream when the sewage line again became blocked partially.

Judge Cobey points out in his opinion "a little more forebearance on both sides would have solved this difficulty."

Time For Correction

The opinion explains that it is only equitable to give Fred Propst and his wife sufficient time to correct the bad sewage condition. They will be prohibited from depositing raw sewage from the Miltenberger house into the stream 90 days from the date on the opinion, September 26. This should allow them sufficient time to install a sanitary disposal system.

"Applying the civil law doctrine as to reasonableness of the use of a stream by the parties adjacent thereto, it would seem to be only fair in this case that until some disposition is made by the State Roads Commission with reference to protecting both the Propst properties from this continued deposit of silt and dirt in the stream from the fill, the defendants should have the right to go upon the property of the plaintiffs and keep the stream open," Judge Cobey wrote.

"The court will grant an injunction prohibiting the defendants from unnecessarily removing or damaging the banks of the stream along where it flows to the plaintiffs' property, but such injunction will be subject to the right of the defendants to enter upon the property of the plaintiffs to take such necessary steps as may be required to keep the stream bed clean so that water therin may flow freely unhindered by any silt or dirt deposited there from the fill," the judge added.

John M. Robb was attorney for the plaintiffs and Thomas B. Finan represented the defendants.

Sacred Heart Display Marks 'Pharmacy Week'

Sacred Heart Hospital is cooperating in the observance of National Pharmacy Week, Sister Mary Richard, hospital administrator, said yesterday.

A display in the hospital's main lobby points up the theme of this week's observance, "The Hospital Pharmacist Serves the Patient's Needs." It includes an authentic reproduction of a wrought bronze German mortar and pestle dated 1633.

A number of colorful apothecary jars, another mortar and pestle, and a variety of drugs are featured in the display, as well as a group of photographs of Sister Margaret Mary, hospital pharmacist, members of her staff, and pharmacy equipment.

Serving with Sister Margaret Mary on the hospital's pharmacy and therapeutic committee are Dr. Gina M. Glick, Dr. Carlton Brinsfield, Dr. Samuel M. Jacobson, Dr. Walter N. Himmler and Dr. A. J. Mirkin.

WACs Will Be Slimmer

The Women's Army Corps is going to take on a new slimmer look, according to Captain Colleen J. Maier, WAC Procurement Officer, U. S. Army Recruiting Main Station, Fairmont, W. Va.

With the buildup of the Army, WAC strength will go from its current 9,000 to at least 10,350, perhaps more. But the Army is going to be more selective in accepting prospective applicants, particularly when it comes to weight.

Maximum weights are being cut. For example, a young lady from 18 to 20 years of age and 58 inches tall used to be able to sign up if she tipped the scales up to 135 pounds. Now, she will not be accepted unless she can weigh in at 121 pounds or less.

Captain Maier said "experience has shown that WACs who control their weight more often become the best soldiers."

Information regarding WAC enlistment can be obtained from Sgt. Thomas Walbert, local Army recruiter, at the Post Office Building.

Education Of Teachers Called Second Rate

McMurrin Addresses Md. School Boards

ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP)—Sterling McMurrin, U. S. Commissioner of Education, told the Maryland Association of Boards of Education Thursday night that most colleges and universities "do not give prospective teachers as good an education as they do future doctors, lawyers, engineers, and others."

McMurrin, addressing the opening banquet of a two-day conference, said the educational system is getting teachers of "second and third rate ability."

"We must insist our teachers are people selected for ability and given a good liberal education," McMurrin told boards of education members from throughout the state.

He said "The greatest in American education today has to do with the quality of teaching."

McMurrin said "We are capable of committing far larger numbers of first rate people to the educational task and giving them a first rate education."

He said "I can't understand why we should not assume a person teaching high school should not be a 'B' student."

Friday, association members are scheduled to hear a talk by Edward G. Stapleton, superintendent of schools of Baltimore County. A number of workshops also are on the agenda.

Stapleton is expected to speak on "A Superintendent's View of the Role of School Board Members."

Gov. Tawes, State Superintendent of Schools Thomas G. Pullen Jr., and Perome Framptom Jr., president of the State Board of Education, will greet the school school board members Friday.

Two Land Week Programs Due In This County

This week has been proclaimed as Maryland Land Week by Governor J. Millard Tawes but the two planned programs in observance of this special week will occur later in the month.

"Our soil and other resources are important to everyone, not just those who own and use them," Governor Tawes said in issuing the Land Week proclamation. The way in which these resources are used and conserved will affect the individual, his neighbors and the lives of future generations.

First program in observance of Land Week is planned next Thursday at the meeting of the Cumberland Kiwanis Club scheduled for 12:15 p.m. at Central YMCA. A representative of Col. Warren R. Johnson, Baltimore district engineer of the U. S. Army Corps of Engineers, will discuss with the Kiwanians and their guests the three dams proposed for the North Branch of the Potomac River.

Chief of these dams recommended in a report in April to the U. S. Senators and Congressmen from this area of Maryland and West Virginia is a proposed $51,000,000 installation on the Potomac itself just upstream from Bloomington. Eventually, the Corps of Engineers also foresees a need for a dam on the Stony River near Mt. Storm, W. Va., and a second Savage River dam in Garrett County.

The second program planned in observance of Maryland Land Week is the annual district cooperators meeting of the Allegany Soil Conservation District to be held at the LaVale Fire Hall on Thursday, October 26.

Carl J. Johnson, deputy director of the Interstate Commission on the Potomac River Basin, will discuss water conservation needs for Maryland, West Virginia, Virginia, Pennsylvania and the District of Columbia.

1,000 Per Cent For CUF

Some idea of the growing popularity of County United Fund has been given by the employes of the Montgomery-Ward Store here, who have pledged 1,130.3 per cent more to the fund than they did last year and have achieved 162.8 per cent of this year's goal of $500 with a total of $813.80. The payroll deduction plan has been installed and every employe in the store made a contribution, according to James E. McGarrah, manager, in the dark suit above. Among employes who welcomed Cuffy, the CUF mascot to the store are, left to right, Mrs. Doris Walls, Miss Pauline VanSickle, Donald Myers, Miss Barbara Layman and Mrs. Catherine Sindy. City's Master Water Meter Is Checked

The study is being made for the city by John C. DePenning, project engineer for the Pitometer Associates.

This, according to Water Commissioner G. Ray Light, will be a double check, since the meter was calibrated recently.

The accuracy of the meter is vital to the city, since water consumption figures are based on water measured as it leaves the filter plant.

Rev. Brandt Is Appointed Superintendent

CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI)—The appointment of the Rev. Charles Earl Brandt, Romney, as interim superintendent of the Wheeling District of the West Virginia Methodist Conference was announced Thursday.

Bishop Fred G. Holloway said Brandt will replace Rev. R. Talmadge Mallory, who has been called to active duty as a chaplain with the West Virginia National Guard.

Holloway said the appointment of Brandt is effective Nov. 1, when Mallory departs for Ft. Knox, Ky., with the 150th Armored Cavalry Regiment.

Brandt was superintendent of the Moorefield District of the Methodist Church from 1937 to 1943. He retired in 1958 after having served as pastor of Central Methodist Church in Fairmont.

Judge Dorsey May Run For Governor

LEONARDTOWN, Md. (AP) — Judge Philip H. Dorsey of the 7th Judicial Circuit confirmed Thursday he is a potential candidate for governor in the Maryland Democratic primary next May.

A former state Senator from St. Marys County, Dorsey said he wanted to determine the public's sentiment before making any official announcement.

"Since rumors first appeared in the press about the possibility of my becoming a candidate for governor," Dorsey said, "I have received many phone calls and personal visits (of persons) requesting me to announce my candidacy.

"Now that court has recessed, it gives me the opportunity to try to find out for myself what the people are thinking."

Dorsey was reported Monday to be under consideration by Democratic leaders to replace Tawes should the governor decide not to seek re-election.

Others mentioned by party leaders as possible candidates if Tawes does not run are C. Ferdinand Sybert, Court of Appeals judge, Joseph Byrnes, judge on Baltimore's Supreme Bench, Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein, Atty. Gen. Thomas B. Finan, and Rep. Daniel Brewster.

Dorsey, who ran unsuccessfully for attorney general on Mahoney's ticket in 1954, said he also was interested "in what the political leaders are thinking, but my primary concern is what the general public's wishes are in reference to their next governor."

He said he soon would begin visiting both rural and metropolitan areas to determine the public sentiment.

Dorsey, now in the fifth year of a 15-year term as circuit court judge, has been politically active in Maryland for more than 25 years.

He was elected to the House of Delegates in 1931 and served two terms before his election to the senate in 1939. He vacated the senate seat in 1941 after being appointed people's council for the

Parkside School Addition Progresses

Work is progressing on the $134,933 addition to the Parkside Elementary School in LaVale. The George Construction Company is doing the work on a low bid submitted to the Allegany County Board of Education on July 27. The contract was awarded by the school board on August 3 and construction is expected to be completed by late winter. The addition, designed by the Silver Spring architectural frim of Johannes and Murray, includes six classrooms, toilets, janitor's supply room and a general storage room. The original 10-room school, already overcrowded, was completed in 1955. The Parkside job is the first project in the county's proposed $5,000,000 school construction program approved by the General Assembly in Annapolis last winter.

City Will Seek Federal Aid To Improve Port

Runway, Lighting Projects Needed

The City of Cumberland is preparing a request for federal aid toward the rehabilitation of the Cumberland Municipal Airport, Mayor J. Edwin Keech said last night.

He said the request will be submitted to the Federal Aviation Agency this month.

The FAA, he said, has notified the city that requests for available airport development funds must be in by October 31.

Funds Available

Under the present Federal Airport Act, the FAA is authorized to allocate up to $75,000,000, usually on a matching basis, during the fiscal year which ends next June 30 to help establish a nationwide system of public airports adequate to meet present and future needs of civil aviation.

Federal funds were sought early this year to help meet the costs of needed improvements to the airport. Plans were deferred, however, when it was learned that all available federal funds were allocated.

Mayor Keech said he discussed the needs of the airport yesterday with City Comptroller Arthur B. Gibson and City Engineer C. R. Nuzum, and plans to confer with W. Donald Smith, chairman of the Airport Commission, concerning the application.

May Cost $200,000

Funds will be sought, he said, toward the cost of resurfacing runways of the airport and for a new lighting system.

He estimated it will cost approximately $200,000 to resurface the runways and to install a modern lighting system on the field.

Mayor Keech said the use of the smooth-seal blacktop, such as was tested by the Cumberland Contracting Company on School Street, is being considered.

He said he could see no way to finance the city's share of the improvements without a bond issue, adding that the city faces a major expense soon if the surface of the aging runways is not preserved.

The airport, he said, is one of the greatest assets the City of Cumberland has.

Cooperator Is Cited In SCS Report

Mr. Higgins is interested in contour strip cropping and a new orchard on the contour. The farm was formerly owned by G. W. Stafford.

In his mothly report to the District Supervisors and state conservationist, Mr. Gordon pointed out that basis conservation plans have been set up for George H. Trail, of Flintstone, who has 135 acres of land, and Doc G. Flanagan, Dawson, who has 50 acres.

Mr. Gordon said a farm pond was completed on the farm of Samuel Cousins who resides in Oldtown, and a total of 1,330 feet of drain tile were laid on the M. R. Porter farm in Eckhart and the farm of Roy Shryock Sr., Town Creek.

Kenneth M. Stone, soil scientist of the local SCS office, is still soil mapping in Garrett County, according to Mr. Gordon, who reported that 37 followup contracts were made during the month.

He also reported on some plans for this month.

Opinion Seeks To Settle Stream Dispute

Sewage Disposal System Ordered

A six-page opinion has been filed in Allegany County Circuit Court by Associate Judge W. Earle Cobey in an effort to settle a dispute between two brothers involving a drainage problem in a stream along U. S. Route 40 about six miles east of Cumberland.

Guy Propst and Henrietta Propst, his wife, brought the action against Joseph A. Miltenberger Jr. and Jo Ann Miltenberger, his wife, and Fred M. Propst and Mary Propst, his wife. The plaintiffs sought an injunction requiring the Miltenbergers to restore the banks of the stream which runs across the plaintiffs' property to their former condition and to prohibit the Miltenbergers from further trespassing on their property. They also asked for an injunction against all the defendants denying them the right to continue depositing sewage in the stream.

Fred M. Propst and his wife purchased three-and-one-half acres in that area in 1957. A house standing on the southerly dividing line between this property and the one adjacent to it is rented to the Miltenbergers. A tile pipe discharges raw sewage from the Miltenberger house into the stream which runs across the corner of the plaintiffs' land and onto and across the adjoining property of Fred Propst. Guy Propst had purchased the adjoining property in 1955.

Brothers Quarrel

"After Fred acquired his land, the brothers started to quarrel about the location of the dividing line between their properties in the vicinity of the Miltenberger house," Judge Cobey wrote. "This case arises out of that dispute and unfortunately this decision cannot settle this boundary question," he adds.

When Route 40 was improved recently a large fill was made in the vicinity of the Miltenberger home and a much larger culvert was installed under the fill.

Shortly after the fill was completed, surface water began to erode its sides. This erosion deposited dirt in the stream. Eventually, this dirt caused the stream to silt up and clogged the sewage pipe from the Miltenberger house. As a result, the cellar was filled with water and sewage.

To clear up this offensive and unhealthy condition, Mr. Miltenberger cleared the stream of this silt and dirt. In doing so, the judge writes, he probably widened the stream.

Despite "no trespassing" signs on both sides of the stream, Miltenberger again dug debris out of the stream when the sewage line again became blocked partially.

Judge Cobey points out in his opinion "a little more forebearance on both sides would have solved this difficulty."

Time For Correction

The opinion explains that it is only equitable to give Fred Propst and his wife sufficient time to correct the bad sewage condition. They will be prohibited from depositing raw sewage from the Miltenberger house into the stream 90 days from the date on the opinion, September 26. This should allow them sufficient time to install a sanitary disposal system.

"Applying the civil law doctrine as to reasonableness of the use of a stream by the parties adjacent thereto, it would seem to be only fair in this case that until some disposition is made by the State Roads Commission with reference to protecting both the Propst properties from this continued deposit of silt and dirt in the stream from the fill, the defendants should have the right to go upon the property of the plaintiffs and keep the stream open," Judge Cobey wrote.

"The court will grant an injunction prohibiting the defendants from unnecessarily removing or damaging the banks of the stream along where it flows to the plaintiffs' property, but such injunction will be subject to the right of the defendants to enter upon the property of the plaintiffs to take such necessary steps as may be required to keep the stream bed clean so that water therin may flow freely unhindered by any silt or dirt deposited there from the fill," the judge added.

John M. Robb was attorney for the plaintiffs and Thomas B. Finan represented the defendants.

A former state Senator from St. Marys County, Dorsey said he wanted to determine the public's sentiment before making any official announcement.

"Since rumors first appeared in the press about the possibility of my becoming a candidate for governor," Dorsey said, "I have received many phone calls and personal visits (of persons) requesting me to announce my candidacy.

"Now that court has recessed, it gives me the opportunity to try to find out for myself what the people are thinking."

Dorsey was reported Monday to be under consideration by Democratic leaders to replace Tawes should the governor decide not to seek re-election.

Others mentioned by party leaders as possible candidates if Tawes does not run are C. Ferdinand Sybert, Court of Appeals judge, Joseph Byrnes, judge on Baltimore's Supreme Bench, Comptroller Louis L. Goldstein, Atty. Gen. Thomas B. Finan, and Rep. Daniel Brewster.

Meanwhile, George P. Mahoney and David Hume, the only major candidates who have announced for governor so far, have launched their campaigns.

Dorsey, who ran unsuccessfully for attorney general on Mahoney's ticket in 1954, said he also was interested "in what the political leaders are thinking, but my primary concern is what the general public's wishes are in reference to their next governor."

He said he soon would begin visiting both rural and metropolitan areas to determine the public sentiment.

Dorsey, now in the fifth year of a 15-year term as circuit court judge, has been politically active in Maryland for more than 25 years.

He was elected to the House of Delegates in 1931 and served two terms before his election to the senate in 1939. He vacated the senate seat in 1941 after being appointed people's council for the

City Will Seek Federal Aid To Improve Port

Runway, Lighting Projects Needed

The City of Cumberland is preparing a request for federal aid toward the rehabilitation of the Cumberland Municipal Airport, Mayor J. Edwin Keech said last night.

He said the request will be submitted to the Federal Aviation Agency this month.

The FAA, he said, has notified the city that requests for available airport development funds must be in by October 31.

Funds Available

Under the present Federal Airport Act, the FAA is authorized to allocate up to $75,000,000, usually on a matching basis, during the fiscal year which ends next June 30 to help establish a nationwide system of public airports adequate to meet present and future needs of civil aviation.

Federal funds were sought early this year to help meet the costs of needed improvements to the airport. Plans were deferred, however, when it was learned that all available federal funds were allocated.

Mayor Keech said he discussed the needs of the airport yesterday with City Comptroller Arthur B. Gibson and City Engineer C. R. Nuzum, and plans to confer with W. Donald Smith, chairman of the Airport Commission, concerning the application.

May Cost $200,000

Funds will be sought, he said, toward the cost of resurfacing runways of the airport and for a new lighting system.

He estimated it will cost approximately $200,000 to resurface the runways and to install a modern lighting system on the field.

Mayor Keech said the use of the smooth-seal blacktop, such as was tested by the Cumberland Contracting Company on School Street, is being considered.

He said he could see no way to finance the city's share of the improvements without a bond issue, adding that the city faces a major expense soon if the surface of the aging runways is not preserved.

The airport, he said, is one of the greatest assets the City of Cumberland has.

Cooperator Is Cited In SCS Report

In his mothly report to the District Supervisors and state conservationist, Mr. Gordon pointed out that basis conservation plans have been set up for George H. Trail, of Flintstone, who has 135 acres of land, and Doc G. Flanagan, Dawson, who has 50 acres.

Mr. Gordon said a farm pond was completed on the farm of Samuel Cousins who resides in Oldtown, and a total of 1,330 feet of drain tile were laid on the M. R. Porter farm in Eckhart and the farm of Roy Shryock Sr., Town Creek.

Kenneth M. Stone, soil scientist of the local SCS office, is still soil mapping in Garrett County, according to Mr. Gordon, who reported that 37 followup contracts were made during the month.

He also reported on some plans for this month.

He succeeds Paul A. Paulson, who has held the post for a number of years and has been transferred to the Baltimore area.

Mr. Bell was transferred from the Youngstown, Ohio, area and will make his headquarters in Hagerstown, his home for 35 years prior to 1939.

His work will be to supervise and assist in apprenticeship and training programs in this area.

Parkside School Addition Progresses

Work is progressing on the $134,933 addition to the Parkside Elementary School in LaVale. The George Construction Company is doing the work on a low bid submitted to the Allegany County Board of Education on July 27. The contract was awarded by the school board on August 3 and construction is expected to be completed by late winter. The addition, designed by the Silver Spring architectural frim of Johannes and Murray, includes six classrooms, toilets, janitor's supply room and a general storage room. The original 10-room school, already overcrowded, was completed in 1955. The Parkside job is the first project in the county's proposed $5,000,000 school construction program approved by the General Assembly in Annapolis last winter.
